Kansas City, Mo., April 7.—[Special.]—The long war against Thomas Pendergast's emocratic machine in Kansas ty reached the ss himself for e first time today, A federal and jury indict- Pendergast on arges of evading income taxes. For almost two ars Pendergast, ho has played important nd in state polics for a quarr of a century, s been engaged a fight to the nish with Gov. oyd C. [Gov. Stark, in Chicago yesterday attend the conference on interstate ade barriers, refused to comment Pendergast's indictment on the ound the matter is in the hands the court.]

Election Frauds Charged.

In the midst of Pendergast's politi- battle members of his machine ve been fighting federal and state urt indictments. In the last two ars 278 persons, most of them mem- rs of the Pendergast organization, ve been indicted for election frauds the federal court. Of these 278, except 19 were either convicted threw themselves on the mercy the court with guilty or no defense eas. Three Jackson county officials, aders in the organization, recently ere indicted in a state court on arges of neglect of duty.

But not until today did the barrage legal charges strike at the man ho has ruled Kansas City for so any years.

If convicted under the two counts the income tax indictment the poical dictator, who is now 66 years d. would face a maximum term of n years in prison and a maximum e of $20,000.

Accused in Rate Case.

The indictment accused him of ilfully and feloniously evading the yment of taxes on income totaling ore than $315,000 which he received 1935 and 1936. It was charged he ceived $315,000 during those years connection with a widely criticized mpromise settlement of Missouri's ,500,000 fire insurance rate controersy.

Indicted with Pendergast on arges of having received $62,000 in e insurance deal was R. E. O'Mally, the state superintendent of insurce who engineered the settlement. Malley later was discharged by Gov. ark.

Pendergast was arraigned before nited States Commissioner Charles Thompson this afternoon and reased on $10,000 bond. He was in a llen, belligerent mood as he apared in court. To interviewers he rked: "No comment." O'Malley as reported to be visiting in Balti- ore, Md. Federal Judge Merrill E. is, who received the grand jury's port, set his bond at $10,000.

Mystery Called Solved.

In a statement following the return the indictments United States Dist Attorney Maurice Milligan pronced solved the mystery concern- the distribution of $447,000 ich changed hands when the insurce case was compromised in 1935. The insurance case involved $9,500,- in impounded premiums which re disputed in litigation lasting for venteen years. The money was imunded after the state blocked an crease in fire insurance rates.

O'Malley and the insurance comnies involved finally came to an reement in 1935 by which policylders got 20 per cent of the imunded money and the insurance mpanies 80 per cent.

There were charges at the time of e settlement that the late Charles Street of Chicago, chairman of the tuarial committee for the insurance mpanies, levied on them about 5 r cent of the amount they received d distributed the money to various litical parties.

KING ZOG QUITS ALBANIAN CAPITAL; ADVANCING ITALIANS BOMB CITIES

Moves of Mussolini and Spain Rouse Fear in France.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 7.—The small west European democracies, Belgium, the Netherlands, Switzerland, as well as England and France, threw their defense preparations into high gear tonight as Italy's invasion of Albania sent new shivers of alarm through Europe.

A fear which has haunted the continent since last September sprang to life again. It is fear that a final catastrophe is imminent. It led Belgium to cancel the leaves of all soldiers on frontier duty.

The Netherlands government, while appealing to the nervous populace for calm, took the same step and ordered reservists destined for frontier duty to stand by. It was understood that the Swiss military authorities had ordered redoubled alertness along the German and Italian frontiers.

France Sees Double Threat.

For France, which has been speeding up defense preparations, the day brought a double threat. The menacing implication of Il Duce's attack on Albania was followed by official announcement of Spain's adherence to the anti-comintern pact. This spells doom to France's desperate attempts to woo Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish dictator, from the Rome-Berlin-Tokio lineup.

While the undeclared war on Albania showed that even an alliance with a Fascist state is not sufficient to save a weak nation from attack, the news from Burgos, temporary capital of Spain, gave the French government perhaps even more concern.

Duce Stays with Axis.

It has given the deathblow to hope that Mussolini might ultimately be detached from the Nazi alliance. At the same time it is bound to increase French nervousness over a third frontier, even if the fear that the anti-comintern pact will bind Spain by secret military clauses proves unjustified.

Marshal Henri Petain, wartime hero who as ambassador to Burgos made an unsuccessful attempt to win over his old pupil, Franco, to the French-British camp, returned to France today. There was considerable speculation as to whether he ever would go back to his post. He is said to be furious over the way his mission turned out and is ready to resign.

Nazi Troops Feared Moving.

Reports of troop movements within Germany provided an additional source of uneasiness in France. It was impossible to receive any confirmation of these reports. According to some sources they were linked to the precautions taken by the Netherlands government.

France regards Mussolini's attack on Albania as a move to bolster his prestige, which had suffered a check in his campaign against France, and as part of the Berlin-Rome offensive to prevent France and Great Britain from lining up allies against the axis in eastern Europe.

Franco Signs Anti-Red Pact.

BURGOS, Spain, April 7.—(AP)—The Spanish nationalist government today announced its adherence to the anti comintern pact whose signatories include its totalitarian friends, Germany and Italy.

The entry of Generalissimo Franco's régime into the pact against the communist international with headquarters in Moscow was made public by a foreign ministry statement which said:

"Having definitly conquered on the field of battle the communism which started the civil war in Spain, the Spanish government, to confirm its defensive attitude before potential dangers, has given its adhesion to the anti-comintern pact."

Spain was the sixth signatory to the accord, which besides Germany and Italy has been signed by Japan, Hungary, and Manchukuo.

[Germany and Japan were the original signers of the pact. They signed on Nov. 25, 1936, and Italy followed in November of the following year. Hungary and Manchukuo announced their adherence last January.]

QUEEN FLEES TO GREECE WITH 2 DAY OLD BABY

ATHENS, Greece, April 7.—Queen Geraldine of Albania and her son, who was born two days ago, are fugitives on Greek soil tonight.

The 23 year old queen, who is half American, fled from Tirana in an automobile with her child after Italian warships had begun to bombard Albanian coastal towns. King Zog, who is 43, remained in Albania.

The Albanian legation here said Queen Geraldine is ill and suffered considerably. She and her child, accompanied by two ladies in waiting, are in Florina, a small town near the Jugo-Slav frontier, where there is no inn that can boast more than the most primitive comfort.

May Continue Journey Today.

The queen is expected to continue by automobile tomorrow to Saloniki and there board a train for Athens. Because of her health, however, this may not be possible.

Dr. Alexander Luros, a physician, was understood to have left Athens tonight for Saloniki. He was accompanied by an assistant. They will meet the fugitive queen in Saloniki if she is able to travel. If she is not able to travel it is understood they will proceed to Florina.

Queen Geraldine is the daughter of the former Gladys Virginia Stewart of New York and Count Julius Nagy-Apponyi of the old Hungarian nobility. She is a granddaughter of John H. Stewart of the smart Baltimore riding set. She married King Zog in Tirana last April.

Winner of Beauty Contest.

It was after she won a beauty contest, sponsored by a Hungarian magazine at Budapest, that she met Zog. Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, was a witness at the wedding.

Hungarian officials at the time expressed hope that the marriage might weld closer the political, economic, and military interests of Italy, Hungary, and Albania. Albania at that time was a close ally of Italy.

Two Ports Reported Set on Fire by Bursting Shells.

BULLETIN.

ROME, April 8 (Saturday).—(AP)—An official communique said Italian troops entered Tirana, the capital of Albania, at 9:30 a. m. (2:30 a. m. Chicago time) today.

ROME, April 8 [Saturday.]—(AP)—Italian troops were reported officially today to be advancing steadily toward the Albanian capital of Tirana in an invasion which the Fascist press declared was the answer of Italy and Germany to attempts to encircle them.

The troops, which landed at four coastal cities under cover of warships' guns and 400 warplanes yesterday, were said to be within fifteen miles of Tirana.

Independent reports said there were destructive bombardments of Albanian towns and heavy fighting, but official statements did not confirm them.

King Zog Sends Plea to Duce.

King Zog and his government fled from Tirana to Elbasan, a mountain stronghold twenty-five miles to the south. The Albanian monarch was said to have sent to Premier Mussolini a plea which appeared to be one of almost full surrender.

It was understood that Zog had offered to end resistance and permit an Italian protectorate for Albania to be established—provided he be permitted to keep his throne and his country to retain a measure of independence.

Despite this offer, Italy apparently was determined to proceed relentlessly with military occupation and troops were pushing ahead over difficult terrain. They were advancing from Valona, Santi Quaranta, Durazzo, and San Giovanni di Medua, the four points where landings were made. Albanian reports said Durazzo was in ruins after airplane and warship bombardments. San Giovanni and Valona were said to have been set afire.

Gunfire Reported in Tirana.

A Stefani [Italian official news agency] dispatch from Tirana early today said widespread gunfire broke out in the Albanian capital after the government left. The shooting was reported especially intense near the Italian legation, where the Italian minister, his staf, and several Italian residents were armed and ready to defend themselves.

Later dispatches said order had been restored by a group of Italians acting under the direction of Col. Stamato. Duriny the disorder the palaces of King Zog and his sister were sacked and "important loot" carried off.

Another dispatch said there were reports in Tirana that a provisional government would be formed by responsible elements which would give to Albania a regime inspired by sane standards of justice and rectitude under the auspices of Italy.

Automobiles bearing all the treasure that could be packed into them were reported to have left Tirana for Elbasan yesterday, shortly after Italian troops landed on Albanian soil.

Looting Is Reported.

The Stefani dispatch said irresponsible elements which had participated in recent anti-Italian manifestations were sacking Tirana.

The report told of King Zog's dispatch of a mission to see the chief of the Italian landing forces and declared it was clear that the monarch intended to place obstacles in the way of the Italian troops by prolonging the negotiations.

It told of the destruction by Albanians of a bridge over the Shijak river on the road between the port of Durazzo and Tirana, but said:

"This did not constitute an obstacle for our valorous troops, who continued to advance toward the Albanian capital."

Report Jail Doors Opened.

Another official dispatch said Zog had opened the jails and let criminals loose.

At Bari, on the Italian coast opposite Durazzo, Marco Khodeli, the former Albanian prefect of Durazzo, made a radio address appealing to Albanians not to offer further resistance to the Italian troops.

He offered an explanation for Italy's action, saying that King Zog had pocketed a large part of the money Italy had poured into Albania for de-

Daisy Boasts of Six Spigots; So Here's Tale

Once there was a cow. Her name was Daisy. No one ever told her she should have a blue ribbon. She was skinny, and her parents were simple barnyard cows. But Mrs. Julia Schoczylas would not have traded her for the cow that jumped over the moon. Mrs. Schoczylas could talk to Daisy, and let her daughter play games with the cow in the back yard. And Daisy gave the family all her milk.

Daisy was red and white—not pretty, but you never noticed that. She wore a tag in one ear. But the oddest thing about her was this: She had six spigots where most cows have four.

Addresses Cow in Polish.

The night of Jan. 6 she vanished from Mrs. Schoczylas' truck farm near Calumet City. Mrs. Schoczylas asked authorities to search for her. Late in February a cow that looked like Daisy and had two extra places for milk was found in Edward Mosel's barn at Posen.

Police took Mrs. Schoczylas over there. She spoke to the cow in Polish and the police said the cow tried to go over where Mrs. Schoczylas was. Mrs. Schoczylas walked over to her and kissed her.

The police, who were then looking for cattle rustlers in the vicinity, charged Mosel with larceny. Justice of the Peace Arthur Dillner of Homewood awarded the cow to Mrs. Schoczylas.

Finance Company Sues.

But the Davis Finance company of 6231 Stewart avenue brought a replevin suit. It said Mosel had bought the cow from another man on a conditional sales contract which the company had acquired. Justice of the Peace Jacob De Young of South Holland heard part of the case March 30.

More evidence was heard yesterday after the court had gone to see the cow. Witnesses testified in the South Holland town hall that the cow's teeth showed she was 10 years old. They estimated this by the amount the teeth were worn down, but admitted she might be somewhat younger if she'd eaten hard food. Because Daisy was 9, and the cow in the contract 4, Mrs. Schoczylas stopped crying when she heard this. But the tag in the cow's ear wasn't the one Daisy had worn.

Mrs. Schoczylas described a rare kind of rivet with which Daisy's halter had been repaired. It was the kind found in the halter on the cow in Mosel's stable.

But the justice of the peace made this finding: The cow is 4 years old. She isn't Daisy. She's the cow Mosel bought and until he pays in full she's the property of the finance company. But the halter is Mrs. Schoczylas'.

Weeping, Mrs. Schoczylas gave notice of an appeal and was permitted to keep the cow until it is heard. She'll call her Daisy.

RAIDS BY POLICE SHUT 80 TAVERNS LACKING PERMITS

Eighty taverns were closed by police last night because their owners had not purchased new city licenses. The closings followed the issuance of a warning to the tavernkeepers by Commissioner Allman.

Four of the taverns shut were in the loop and five just south of the loop. Forty-four were closed in the Wabash avenue, Hyde Park, Woodlawn, Gresham, South Chicago, and Chicago Lawn districts. Seventeen were closed in the Albany Park, Hudson, and Summerdale districts, and ten in the New City and Stockyards districts.

More are expected to be shut down tonight. The annual tavern fee is $600. Thus far 9,111 licenses have been issued. Police estimate 280 tavern owners are delinquent.

He Butts His Head on Pole, but He Has a Good Reason

Columbus, O., April 7.—(AP)—A caller from Columbus' outskirts informed the sheriff's office today: "There's a man butting his head against a pole and he's been doing it for about an hour." Deputies found a man making a WPA trafic survey who said he was so nearsighted that he had to lean his head against the pole to fill out a chart.

Gift Coin Rolls Back 35 Years for 2 Brothers

For several years it has been the custom of William Zinzlow, president of the Lutheran Welfare society to visit the Oak Forest infirmary once a month to distribute 25 cent pieces to Lutheran inmates.

Mr. Zinzlow, who lives in Congress Park, made his monthly visit yesterday. He began reading off the names in alphabetical order. One by one the designated inmates, most of them old and infirm, came up to get their quarters. Mr. Zinzlow reached the "Js."

"Johannes," he called.

Answer Stirs a Search.

Up walked William Johannes, 63 years old, who has been at Oak Forest for twenty-eight years.

"My name's Johannes," he said, "William Johannes."

Mr. Zinzlow looked at his list, then shook his head. "It says Adolph Johannes," he said, "and you're not Adolph?"

"No, I'm William," replied Johannes. "But I had a brother named Adolph. It's 35 years since I last saw him. He must be dead a long time now, I guess."

What he heard interested Mr. Zinzlow. He went to the office of Superintendent Frank Venecek. They looked up the records.

Bring Inmates Together.

They found an Adolph Johannes, 60 years old, listed. He was in the hospital section of the infirmary. He had entered Oak Forest five years ago after having been found near death from hunger and cold.

Superintendent Venecek and Mr. Zinzlow took William Johannes into the ward to confront Adolph Johannes. The two men looked at each other in amazement. "William," cried one. "Adolph," cried the other. Then they embraced and wept.

And thus two brothers who had not seen each other in 35 years and who had been living in the same institution for five years, were reunited.

velopment of the country and had even taken money contributed abroad for the relief of the Albanian poor.

Italy had been unable to stand Zog's duplicity and deceit any longer, Khodell said, and had decided to act for the welfare of the Albanian people.

He described Zog and his family as vampires preying on a disgraced people. He declared Premier Mussolini was the real friend of the Albanian people and would keep his word to maintain Albania as a united and independent country.

Italy Warned by Britain.

Italy's blow at the country across the Adriatic brought a statement by Britons that the action might result in violation of the British-Italian friendship agreement of 1938.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, had a long talk with the Earl of Perth, British ambassador, and with the Jugo-Slav minister. Count Ciano was reported to have told Lord Perth that King Zog was to blame for Italy's action.

The foreign minister also was understood to have assured the British ambassador that Italy had no intention of doing anything that would violate the British-Italian agreement.

This was regarded in diplomatic quarters as indicating that Italy would refrain from declaring an outright protectorate over Albania, but would permit it to retain independence.

Protest Not Taken Seriously.

The Fascist press indicated that Britain's protest was not taken seriously. Newspapers said Italy's move would serve to open the eyes of Britain and France to the fact that they could not impose peace on Europe by attempting to check the march of Italy and Germany.

William Phillips, the American ambassador to Italy, also called upon Count Ciano to seek information concerning the invasion.

Italians first learned of the action against Albania when special editions of the newspapers announced the occupation in large type early in the day.

It mystified them, because for years they had believed Albania was completely under Italian domination. There was little excitement in Rome and virtually no jubilation was apparent.

Official Italian statements did not disclose the total number of men invading Albania. But a few days ago from 20,000 to 25,000 Italian soldiers were reported concentrated at Bari and at Brindisi, on the Adriatic across from Albania. Since then there have been reports of additional troop movements to those points.

[The Tirana radio in an official Albanian estimate of the Italian forces said about 400 heavy bombing planes, 100,000 troops, and 170 warships and transports took part in the operation.]

Remove Italians from Albania.

Before the invasion started hundreds of Italian residents had been removed from Albania by Italian warships.

The Fascist press unanimously contended that the occupation of Albania was Italy's right and was necessary for the defense of her vital interests. King Zog was denounced as a scoundrel. The theme followed by the press was that the invasion was for the well being of the Albanian people as well as to preserve peace in Europe.

Virginio Gayda, writing in Il Giornale D'Italia, charged that the Albanian monarch had asked for aid, including troops, which Italy, at the last moment, found would have served only for an attack on the Jugo-Slav border with the evident aim of disturbing the cordial relations between Italy and Jugo-Slavia.

Italy's refusal of the request, he asserted, was resented by King Zog and his followers and they were accused of having provoked acts of violence against Italian citizens living in Albania and against those Albanian leaders suspected of more authentic friendship for Italy.

Calls Claim to Albania Valid.

Gayda said the Italian government sought to clear up what he called the intolerable situation and to obtain guarantees for Italians and the Albanian people, but Zog avoided the pacifying attempts.

La Tribuna, commenting in the same vein, said:

"In the face of certain underhand maneuvers in Albania Italy had to act with the greatest firmness. Our title to Albania is perfectly valid, and any one wishing to inquire into it will find that it goes back to 229 B. C., when Roman law was imposed on the Illyrian populations."

Gen. Alberto Pariani, Italian undersecretary of war, returned from conferences in Germany with Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of high command of the German armed forces. Newspapers said the Keitel-Pariani conferences, held in Innsbruck, were devoted to the Albanian move, and thus linked Germany almost as directly to it as Italy. Gen. Pariani went to Mussolini with a report on his talks immediately upon his return to Rome.

Duce's Troops March in New Conquest

Italian soldiers were reported last night to be nearing Tirana, the capital of Albania. The captions in the map give a picture of the outstanding events of the day in the latest episode of European turmoil.

Albanians Are Defiant.

TIRANA, Albania, April 7.—(AP)—Hardy Albanian tribesmen fought desperately tonight to stem an Italian invasion backed up by bombing planes and naval guns. While the losing battle was in progress the nation awaited Premier Mussolini's reply to a peace overture by King Zog.

The government—torn between the resistance of its own primitive people and the realization that such a fight could not last long against the might of Fascist Italy—fled to the mountain hamlet of Elbasan. There, only twenty-five miles south of Tirana, Zog awaited the answer to the bid for peace which would leave him some measure of honor.

The government's move was announced in a radio broadcast. In the same broadcast, former Premier Mehdi Frasheri proclaimed that Albanian women as well as men were determined to resist the invasion. [There is a women's detachment in the Albanian army.]

Two of King Zog's sisters arrived tonight in Saloniki, Greece.

ONCE WEALTHY, HE'S ACCUSED OF $20 CHECK FRAUD

Twelve years ago Caleb A. Busick was wealthy. He was a real estate broker and president of the Barrington Oil company. He had a fine home in Winnetka, and was friendly with public officials and persons of social prominence.

In November, 1928, Busick and four others, including two ex-treasurers of Lake county, were tried on a charge of embezzling $100,000 from the county. A jury at Waukegan acquitted the five. Before that Busick had been defendant in a $40,000 breach of promise suit by Mrs. Ruth Ehrens, a divorcée.

Busick, who lives at 111 West Division street, is now 58 years old. He is no longer wealthy. Last night he was arrested and charged with operating a confidence game. Two loop hotels, the Fort Dearborn and the Atlantic, were complainants. Each alleged Busick cashed a worthless check for $20.

Count Ciano Flies Over Albania as Troops Land

ROME, April 7.—(AP)—Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, who piloted a bombing plane in the Ethiopian war, was reported in diplomatic quarters to have flown over Albania early today as the Italian troops were landing.

POLICE SEEKING NEW CLEWS IN CARVILLE KILLING

Police yesterday continued a search for James Reddan, 29 years old, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Joseph Carville, gunman and hoodlum. Carville's body was found in an automobile near 64th street and Harvard avenue a week ago.

Walter Casey, owner of the Wagon Wheel tavern at 674 West 63d street, and two employés were released yesterday after being questioned in the case. Police say the shooting happened in the tavern. Elmer Skoglund, a bartender, was held in bonds of $1,000 as a witness. Other witnesses are sought.

Mrs. Alice Janssen, who was found shot and wounded in the car with Carville, is in St. Bernard's hospital in a serious condition. According to the police, two bystanders drove the woman and Carville, not knowing he was dead, to the place where the car was found near the hospital.

EUROPE WAITING FOR ENGLAND TO MAKE NEXT MOVE

Anglo-Italian Mediterranean Pact May Be Ended.

BY DAVID DARPAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 7.—Diplomats today carefully watched the Mediterranean situation following Premier Mussolini's seizure of Albania. All were anxious to see whether the British would consider the Italian action a breach of the Anglo-Italian pact ratified last November.

Earl of Perth, England's envoy, busy at Rome.

This pact provided for maintenance of the status quo in the Mediterranean. Therefore, it was believed Britain might terminate the pact.

So far as was known tonight no steps had been taken in this direction, although Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax remained in London all day and twice sent his ambassador to Rome, the earl of Perth, scurrying to see the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Cabinet Members to Meet.

It was reported tonight that all cabinet ministers within reach of London would meet tomorrow to discuss Albania. Halifax will preside and a royal air force plane will bring Prime Minister Chamberlain to London if he is needed. He has gone to Scotland on a fishing trip over Easter.

The committee on imperial defense met today to consider steps to meet any future emergency.

Whether the British take action or not, they appear exceedingly uneasy about Il Duce's step, although it had been forecast for two or three weeks. It is, in fact, the second violation of the terms of the Anglo-Italian agreement by Mussolini, the other being continued maintenance of Italian armed forces in Spain after Generalissimo Francisco Franco officially declared the civil war at an end.

It was generally agreed that Mussolini's move across the Adriatic sea and into Albania is a strategic thrust. Albania is worth less economically than Ethiopia and the Italians already have been exploiting it to the limit for ten years.

British Fleet Barred.

Militarily, however, the Italian step encircles Jugo-Slavia and makes it seem impossible for that country to join the British alliance to stop Hitler of Germany.

It also appears to make it impossible for the British fleet to carry help to the Jugo-Slavs, for Mussolini now holds both sides of the entrance to the Adriatic sea. He could block passage into it by land guns, for it is only fifty miles across the strait of Otranto.

The Jugo-Slavians, hemmed in by Germany on the north and the Italians on the south, are in a helpless situation, especially with rebellious Croatia on their hands.

Turkey and Greece late today appeared to be taking a serious view of the Italian thrust, which brings an Italian threat to their doors. The ministers of these countries called to sound out Halifax on what Britain was going to do.

It was thought in some informed circles that Mussolini's seizure of Albania was a prelude to acquisition of the entire Dalmatian coast by him. Italians have held they were cheated of this territory by President Wilson after the world war.

In seizing Albania Mussolini has violated a treaty he signed with King Zog in 1927. It bound Italy not to interfere in external or internal affairs of Albania except on Albania's request.

Presumably this was the main point in the representation which Halifax instructed Lord Perth to make to Count Ciano.

FIND DEFECTIVE TEETH IN 99.9% OF PUPILS IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS

Examination of school children in twelve elementary schools during the last week showed that of every group of 100 students, 99.9 had defective teeth. This was the report yesterday of Dr. Carl Greenwald, chairman of the school examination committee of the Chicago Dental society. Of the 5,738 students inspected, only 150 were found to have teeth free from decay. Examinations will be conducted in all the schools.

Filling Station Owner Shot as He Battles Two Bandits

John Aylward, owner of a gasoline station at 7901 South Hoyne avenue, was shot in the right thigh last night when he resisted two young robbers. He was taken to St. George's hospital, where it was said the injury was not serious. Aylward told the police he grappled with one of the bandits and that the second one shot him. Both men fled without loot.

HORNER REACHES CITY TOMORROW; TALKS POLITICS

Plans Speech; Outlines Light Schedule of Work.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Gov. Henry Horner will arrive in Chicago late tomorrow, ending an absence of more than four months which he spent in Florida attempting to regain his health. Within the next few days he is expected to make a radio speech to the people of Illinois telling that his physicians now will allow him to take over his duties gradually.

The governor told reporters at Miami Beach yesterday, in his first interview since he arrived there last Nov. 25, that he will board a train today and will arrive here at 6:55 p. m. tomorrow on the Dixieland of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad. He expects to go to Springfield on Monday, but some of his friends here believe he may wait a day or two. They say this in anticipation that the long train ride might tire the governor.

Plans Light Schedule.

Once in Springfield, Mr. Horner will not attempt an immediate return to full duty.

"I promised my doctors," he said in Miami Beach," that I'd work only one or two hours a day until I get my strength back. I feel fine except I've got rubber legs."

Tanned and much thinner, the governor was dressed in light clothes and carried a cane. He did not use the stick in walking, however, but carried it jauntily over his arm. For the first five minutes of the interview he stood, then retired to a gayly striped lawn chair. He was smoking a cigar and remarked he was permitted one each day.

In McLeansboro, Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who has been acting as chief executive since November, said he would be glad to coöperate with the governor in every way he could.

Works with Horner Men.

Stelle, who was Horner's political enemy during the 1936 and 1938 Democratic primary fights, has worked closely with the governor's advisers in a so-called regency during the current legislative session. Although he had the power to supplant thousands of Horner employés with appointees of his own choice, he has not, as one Horner leader said yesterday, "rocked the boat."

The Florida reporters asked the governor whether he would run for a third term next year.

"If my health permits," he replied, "I might consider it, if the people want me. They seem to have gotten along well without me."

This possibility stirred the statehouse into high excitement. Should the governor run and be reëlected, he would be the first third term Democratic chief executive in the history of the state.

In McLeansboro, Stelle was asked whether he would seek the governorship next year.

"I have no plans at all," he said.

The governor was asked for comment upon the legislative economy investigation into expenditures by his and former administrations which is pending in Springfield as the result of Republican demands for retrenchment.

"I'm perfectly delighted," Mr. Horner replied. "I watch expenditures myself. I really court it because I'm thoroughly satisfied with our financial conditions. We have kept salaries down and that's our biggest trouble, because we want to raise them now."

Asked his views on the presidential boom in behalf of United States Senator Scott W. Lucas, whom he supported last fall, the governor said "I am thoroughly for Senator Lucas as a favorite son choice, but I don't know whether he will be a candidate."

Pleased by Kelly's Election.

Mr. Horner also expressed gratification over the reëlection of Mayor Kelly last Tuesday. Asked whether he considered the big vote for Dwight H. Green, Kelly's opponent, a gain for the Republican party, the governor said:

"Yes, I do. I don't like to say it, but I do."

"Do you think the Republicans will carry the state in 1940?" he was asked.

"No," was the decisive answer; "but still I'm alarmed about it because they carried the house of representatives last November."

"What about a third term for President Roosevelt?"

"Personally, I have no views on the subject because the question has not yet come up, and it's just a theoretical question," was Mr. Horner's answer.

78 FREED IN GAMBLING CASES.

Judge Francis Borrelli in South State street court yesterday dismissed gambling charges against sixty colored policy game operators and eighteen handbook operators because police lacked search warants when they arrested them.

Nears Settlement

MRS. MORELLA LEHMANN.

The suit for separate maintenance brought by Mrs. Morella Oldham Lehmann, former queen of the Michigan cherry festival, against her husband, George W. Lehmann, appeared near settlement yesterday. Lehmann, the son of E. J. Lehmann, loop merchant, and his young wife, who charged him with continuous intoxication and cruelty, spent the afternoon closed with Superior Judge Rudolph Desort. Robert E. Cantwell and Benjamin B. Davis, attorneys for the Lehmanns, emerged from the conference confident that an agreement would be reached when the case is called next Tuesday.

GERMANY BACKS MUSSOLINI IN HIS GRAB OF ALBANIA

Warns Other Powers Not to Interfere.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 7.—Germany today warned the western powers of Europe that she would not tolerate interference in the action of her dictatorial partner, Premier Mussolini of Italy, in his conquest of Albania.

The official German communique said:

"Germany fully appreciates Italy's need to safeguard her interests in Albania. Germany could neither understand nor approve if the democratic western powers—which possess no interest there—wish to intervene in the position and action of our axis partner which juridically is beyond dispute.

"Official German quarters regard the landing of Italian troops at Durazzo as an action in accord with the text of the spirit of the Italian-Albanian treaty of friendship of 1927, as well as with Italy's deep sympathy for the Albanian people.

"Source of Unrest."

"Germany understands that Italy cannot tolerate a permanent source of unrest — disturbing the general order and also threatening the lives of Italian residents — in a country which faces her across the Adriatic sea and which has so vital an interest for Italy."

Italy's move against Albania came less than a month after Germany's conquest of Czecho-Slovakia.

Military experts agreed tonight that the absorption of Czecho-Slovakia and Premier Mussolini's seizure of Albania were master strokes. They also said that these moves revealed to the mind trained along military lines that Germany and Italy merely were strengthening their position for new moves to increase their power.

Nazis Secure Eastern Flank.

Through the conquest of Czecho-Slovakia Germany secured "her eastern flank," neutral observers explained. Through the invasion of Albania, Mussolini probably will make himself master of the Adriatic and thus protect his eastern coast against any possible attack by the British fleet.

The conquest of Albania also would enable the axis partners to hold southeastern Europe as in a vice. They could threaten Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Greece and make it impossible for those countries to resist their orders. Hungary and Bulgaria are considered loyal satellites by the Italian and German dictators, who use them to bring additional pressure to bear on Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, and Greece.

Want "Lost Populations."

Hungarians and Bulgarians have been loud in their cries for "lost populations," which they want from Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, and Greece. Therefore they have proved to be useful tools for the dictators, who want to be unrestricted masters of southeastern Europe before starting on their venture for absolute control of the Mediterranean.

Italian and German military experts also think the occupation of Albania will make it easier for them to control the Dardanelles, now under Turkish domination and the strategic link between the Mediterranean and the Black seas. They want to close the Dardanelles at will when the final showdown takes place.

With the Dardanelles under the Fascist powers' control, Russia, Turkey and Rumania would be bottled up and unable to move effectively.

It was the belief today of many in Berlin that England and France wouldn't dare to precipitate their countries into a war for the sake of Albania.

New Respect for Hitler.

This, it was thought, would automatically lessen Franco-British prestige and induce all eastern European powers, including Poland, to give up their resistance to German penetration or to make the concessions the dictatorial powers demand.

This Nazi optimism is shared to a great extent by German army men, who are now following blindly Reichsfuehrer Hitler's suggestions. A few months ago they exerted the greatest pressure in favor of a more conservative course.

Berlin citizens were surprised to learn this morning that big contingents of German troops were moving on the motor roads around Berlin. Official quarters denied any such movements, but motorists reported differently.

ROBERT M. HUTCHINS HAS 2D PARLEY WITH ROOSEVELT ON SEC

Warm Springs, Ga., April 7.—[Special.]—Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, had a second conference today with President Roosevelt in the President's Pine mountain cottage. Hutchins, who is reported to have the inside track for the chairmanship of the Securities and Exchange commission, came here yesterday from Florida where he was vacationing.

The young university president has been mentioned as Mr. Roosevelt's choice for the commission to succeed William O. Douglas, who resigned as SEC chairman upon his appointment to the United States Supreme court.

Italy's invasion of Albania intruded upon the President's observance of Good Friday. Although he had planned to spend the day leisurely, a call from Washington got him out of bed before 8 o'clock. Throughout the day trans-Atlantic and long distance telephone calls brought him the latest information on European developments.

ALBANIA COMES DOWN CENTURIES WITH FOE AT GATE

Invasions Nothing New, Its History Shows.

Albania, invaded yesterday by Italian troops, is one of the youngest nations but the home of an old race.

The Albanians, unlike most of their Balkan neighbors, are not of Slavic strain. They are believed to have descended from Alexander the Great and the Macedonians and from the hill barbarians known to the Greeks as Illyrians and Epirots, who inhabited the Balkans before the Greeks.

Most of the nomads who penetrated the Albanian mountains in the middle ages were repelled and the Albanians have preserved a purity of race and tradition. The mountains have caused the country to develop a social organization along the tribal lines of primitive peoples.

River Divides Two Peoples.

The only racial dividing line among the Albanians is the River Shkumbini, which severs the country. The northern half of the land is occupied by Ghegs and the southern area by Tosks.

The Albanian territory was conquered by the Romans about the second century B. C. When the Roman empire split into the eastern [Byzantine] and western branches in the fourth century A. D., Albania became the Byzantine provinces of Dyrrachium and Nikopolis. It was overrun by the Goths during the fourth and fifth centuries, but was recovered by the Roman Emperor Justinian in 535.

In 640 northern Albania was invaded by Serb-Croatian tribes and remained more or less under their control until 1360, although the Bulgars occupied the southern portion after 861. On the death of the great Serb king, Stephen Dushan in 1358, his empire, stretching from the Gulf of Corinth to the Danube river, was split up. Albania came under feudal control of native chieftains.

The Turks swept into Albania in 1431. In 1502 they held the central port of Durazzo, but Ottoman sovereignty was never fully established. There were frequent revolts in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Ottoman Rule Falls.

In the middle of the nineteenth century there was a revival of nationalism in Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia. This, coupled with the declining power of the Turkish empire, induced the Albanians to prepare for autonomy while clinging to the Ottomans for protection.

In 1908 the Albanians threw their support to the successful revolt of the Young Turks. The new régime was even more oppressive and in 1912 the Albanians rose again. With the help of the Greeks, Serbians, and Bulgarians, they won their independence. William of Wied, a German prince, was named king of Albania by the European powers.

Prince William landed at Durazzo in March, 1914, but his reign lasted only six months. He was unable to reach the interior because of the opposition of his subjects.

During the world war Albania was invaded as the central powers drove through it to join hands with Turkey. The peace conference of 1919 restored the land's independence.

Zog Enters as President.

Zog, chief of a northern tribe, became minister of the interior in 1920. In 1925 a republic was proclaimed and Zog was elected president for seven years. In a treaty with Italy in 1926 to guard against Jugo-Slavian aggression it was provided the Italians would consider any disturbance in the status quo of Albania as opposed to their reciprocal political interests. It was also agreed that Italy would not interfere in Albania's internal or external affairs except at Albania's request.

Since then Italy has established political and economic control in Albania, having lent Zog large sums.

Albania's Start

(Story in adjoining column.)

Limits of Albania drawn up by ambassadors' meeting in London in July, 1913, after the Albanians had revolted and thrown off Turkish rule.

Rectifications of the boundaries of Albania and Jugo-Slavia negotiated by a conference of ambassadors in November, 1921, which decided the post-war area of the little nation.

On Sept. 1, 1928, Zog had himself proclaimed king. On April 27, 1938, he married a Hungarian countess of American blood who became Queen Geraldine. Their first child was born last Wednesday.

The area of Albania is 10,629 square miles and the population 1,003,124. Moslems number 700,000, Orthodox Christians 200,000, and Roman Catholics 100,000.

The country's principal industries are connected with agriculture. The land is important to Italy as a source of oil and minerals, at present undeveloped, and as an area strategically necessary to dominate the Adriatic sea and the Balkans.

Montenegro a Neighbor.

To the north of Albania lies what once was the kingdom of Montenegro. The name means Black mountain, and designates the country's topography.

Montenegro was a development of one of the earliest Serb state movements. It became a state in the fourteenth century, and long was ruled by bishops. This developed into a royal dynasty in the seventeenth century. The Montenegrins were constantly at war with the Turks. The mountain fastnesses and their martial fervor saved them from Ottoman domination.

In the world war Montenegro joined with Serbia against the central powers. Montenegro submitted to Austria in 1916, but two years later, when Austria collapsed, sentiment rose in Montenegro for a union with Serbia.

Slovenia, Croatia, Dalmatia, and Bosnia had declared their independence from Austria-Hungary, and their union with Serbia and Montenegro was proclaimed on Dec. 1, 1918. The new state, announced as the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, became Jugo-Slavia.

ALBANIAN ENVOY TO U. S. PREDICTS ZOG WILL FIGHT

Will Die Rather Than Give Up, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Faik Konitza, Albanian minister to the United States, predicted today that King Zog will die fighting rather than capitulate to Italy's unprovoked aggression.

The minister declared that he will defy any attempts by the Italian government to take over the Albanian legation here, and that he would burn the legation's archives before he would see them in the hands of Italian representatives.

Konitza conferred with Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the Italian invasion of his country. Hull declined comment on the situation, pending the receipt of more complete information. He revealed, however, that Hugh Grant, United States minister to Albania, had been in touch with most of the Americans in Tirana and that some American citizens had taken refuge in the legation.

U. S. Not to Send Warships.

Hull doubted that it would be advisable or necessary to send American naval vessels to evacuate Americans in Albania, but pointed out that there are three warships of the temporary European squadron in Spanish waters for use if necessary. Latest state department information showed that there were 233 Americans in Albania on Jan. 1 of this year.

It was learned that the state department has prepared for possible outbreak of a general European war by sending 1,550 army gas masks to American embassies and legations in Europe for the use of American diplomats and their employés. The shipments began last August. The department explained that the masks were only for diplomatic use and that it was unable to supply masks for other Americans in Europe.

Albania Gets Punch on Head.

"I think King Zog will die fighting, because he is a man of courage," said Konitza after seeing Hull. "He [Zog] has his faults, but he is brave. I and other Albanian intellectuals have dreamed of a close economic and political coöperation with Italy on an honorable basis. The elegant answer is a punch on our head."

Konitza said that the Fascist invasion of Albania is comparable to a prize fighter knocking down a child to impress the world with his strength.

Konitza's communications with his home office have been cut off since Italian troops began moving in.

DUCE CONCENTRATING TROOPS OFF TURKEY, PALESTINE REPORTS

JERUSALEM, April 7.—(AP)—Italy has been making intensive military preparations for three months in her Dodecanese Islands [Aegean Islands] off the southwestern Turkish coast, according to unofficial reports reaching Palestine.

Three Italian divisions were said to have been concentrated on Rhodes, largest of the Dodecanese, and at other Italian points in the Mediterranean.

Windsors Call Off Plan to Visit French Morocco

CANNES, France, April 7.—(AP)—The duke and duchess of Windsor tonight canceled a trip to French Morocco because of the Italian-Albanian conflict. The Windsors left Paris last night and had planned to leave tonight for Marseilles to sail for Casablanca.

Quezon Will Come to U. S. with Filipino Liberty Plea

MANILA, April 7.—(AP)—President Manuel Quezon plans to go to the United States in June to make a personal plea for enactment of amendments to the Philippine independence act, its Baguio correspondent reports to the Manila Tribune.

MUSSOLINI COUP THROWS BALKANS INTO AN UPROAR

Fear Italy Is Aiming at Eastward Conquest.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 7.—(AP)—Italy promised that Jugo-Slav interests would be respected in effecting the occupation of Albania, it was stated officially tonight, but the government, nevertheless, closed its border with Albania.

Increasing excitement was apparent here, although the government continued to issue reassuring statements.

Official quarters said that Jugo-Slavia was informed of the Italian intentions and that relations between the two countries were being "continued within the framework of the treaty of friendship."

[An Italo-Jugo-Slav five year non-aggression pact was signed on March 23, 1937.]

Border Trafic Halted.

Permission, however, was refused for special Jugo-Slav trains to depart for Tirana and from the border came reports that highway trafic across the frontier had suspended.

Regent Prince Paul consulted his ministers, and officials canceled Easter holiday plans.

Private comment was less confident than that by officials. The popular impression was that the Italian action had a direct bearing on Jugo-Slav security.

Jugo-Slavs felt themselves cut off from the sea by Italian control of the narrows connecting the Adriatic and the Mediterranean, which would be a result of the occupation of Albania.

Fear also was expressed that the position of Greece might become precarious and that, consequently, Jugo-Slavia's connection with the Aegean sea through friendly territory might be cut.

Greeks Are Alarmed.

ATHENS, Greece, April 7.—(AP)—Dictator Gen. John Metaxas marshaled his ministers and conferred with diplomats today on Italy's coup in neighboring Albania.

Greek officials did not conceal their alarm over the Rome-Berlin axis drive into the strategic mountains of their northwestern neighbor.

Premier Metaxas talked at length with the Italian, British, French, Netherlands, and Polish ministers, interviewing them one after another. Observers speculated on the inclusion of the Netherlands minister in the list, since no mutual Greek and Dutch interests appeared to be involved.

Turks Are Irritated.

ANKARA, Turkey, April 7.—(AP)—Turkey, in which Britain and France hope to find an ally in the eastern Mediterranean, viewed Italy's invasion of Albania today with alarm and misgivings.

Officials did not conceal their irritation. They feared that the ultimate objective of any totalitarian push in the Balkans would be the strategic Dardanelles, maritime gateway to Rumania's oil fields and Russia's wheat granaries in the Ukraine.

Rumanian Chief Off to Turkey.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 7.—(AP)—Rumanian officials followed Italy's invasion of Albania anxiously tonight as Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu journeyed to Istanbul, Turkey, for an emergency conference with Turkish authorities on the action.

Government circles expressed hope that the Italian move would be localized in Albania and that the Balkans would adjust themselves to the unexpected entry of another power into the complicated politics of the peninsula.

It was expected here that complete subjugation of the warlike Albanians would be a two month job even for the excellently equipped Italian army.

There was some concern in Rumania as to whether a prolonged campaign might inflame the martial spirit of Macedonians, sturdy mountaineers who want autonomy and resent intrusion into the sections of Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, and Greece that they occupy.

Consternation in Bulgaria.

[Copyright; 1939: By the New York Times.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 7.—Italy's action in Albania has caused consternation and nervousness here. Bulgarians fear that the long-expected division of the Balkans between the axis powers [Germany and Italy] has begun. Rumors say that Rumania, Bulgaria, and Jugo-Slavia, without Macedonia, will fall to Germany; the remainder to Italy.

ITALIAN RADIO CALLS ON ARABS TO FIGHT FRENCH

TUNIS, Tunisia, April 7.—(AP)—The Italian radio station at Tripoli, Libya, tonight broadcast a violent attack on the French administration of Tunisia and urged the natives to demonstrate Sunday. Some French observers said the attack in an Arab language broadcast was a call to revolt, but declared it would find no support. The Tripoli broadcaster said the Arabs of Tunisia were submitted to torture.

BABY'S DEATH CALLED ACCIDENT.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury in the case of Olga Genc, 19 months old, 5211 North Newcastle avenue. The baby died March 26 in Ravenswood hospital while under anesthetic for treatment of dog bite injuries.

UNGARY SEEKS OAD TO PEACE WITH RUMANIANS

as Slight Hope for Land; Feeler Sent Out.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

UDAPEST, Hungary, April 7.—Ru-nia ought to cede to Hungary the en administrative border districts abited mostly by Hungarians. Then -rule should be granted to the re than a million Hungarians liv- in Transylvania, well inside Ru-nia, and a corridor should be cre-d through which these Hungarians ld communicate freely with their herland.

These suggestions were published Great Britain and Poland began ertures to Hungary to join the p Hitler bloc. The propositions y appear as a bad joke, but they re seriously advanced in Budapest's ss.

There was no implication that the vernment had inspired the propos- about King Carol's government uld pay any attention to them of-al circles here would heartily in-se the ideas.

Hungarians in a Hole.

Talk of this sort discloses the em-rrassing situation in which the ngarians find themselves. Con-ced that war is coming, they see mselves forced into the position being at least a passive accom-ice of Germany. Their alternative pears to be suicidal resistance.

Certain scruples of conscience, how-er, make the Hungarians want to ep their skirts clean. They can-t change their story that their intry was brutally dismembered the treaty of the Trianon in 1919 d that they want their territories tored. At the same time they do t want to be indebted to Germany the restoration. Above all, they not want powerful neutrals like e United States to get the notion at they will rush into the war on e side of the Germans to grab oty.

Therefore they believe it would be nd of the Rumanians to solve the oblem by disgorging Rumania's ngarian minority and removing y reason for bitterness between e two countries.

Rumania Must Say "No."

Rumania's reply to the unofficial ngarian suggestions is sure to be No." It is taken for granted it will willing to make concessions to n the neutrality of Hungary in the ials which are to come, but those ncessions, informed Hungarians de-are, will not be territorial.

Rumania, from the Hungarian view, a nation such as Czecho-Slovakia s—an artificial creation of the irit of Versailles swollen with alien pulations.

The slightest concession by Ru-ania would be fatal, the Hun-rians say. It would provoke at ce the demand by Russia for the turn of Bessarabia and by Bul-ria for South Dobruja.

[Dobruja is a fertile wheat growing strict of 9,000 square miles. It is unded on the north and west by e Danube river, on the east by the lack sea, and on the south by Bul-aria. The district was transferred to umania by the treaty of Berlin on ly 13, 1878, but restored to Bulgaria nder the treaty of Bucharest on May 1918. It was reassigned to Rumania Nov. 27, 1919, by the treaty of euilly.]

It might even provoke a demand Germany for autonomy for the 0,000 Saxons who live in Rumania. heir ancestors settled there centu-es ago and the German speech has ever died.

As Hungarians see it, the fate of zecho-Slovakia has been a warning Rumania. Hungarians therefore xpect that no solution by conversa-ns will be found to this problem.

ROME AND BERLIN GET MANGANESE FROM COSTA RICA

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, April 7.—German and Italian interests are planning to exploit manganese deposits in the province of Guanacaste for the manufacture of munitions, according to a report in Tribuna.

[Guanacaste province is in northwest Costa Rica. It borders on the Pacific ocean.]

American steel interests began developing the manganese deposits during the world war but the cost of production was high. Tribuna says it learned that intense activities in the development of the manganese will be started.

Poland Releases Witos, Peasant Party Leader

CRAKOW, Poland, April 7.—(AP)—Vincent Witos, Polish Peasant party leader and former premier, who returned to Poland recently after a six year political exile, was released today for six months with the understanding he would in the meantime receive a pardon. Witos, who had been living in Czecho-Slovakia and Switzerland, voluntarily returned and was jailed. His return coincided with a move for national unity in the European crisis.

WARTIME BOOM PUTS BURGOS IN BIG TIME CLASS

Sleepy Cathedral Town's Population Soars.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BURGOS, Spain [by Mail].—One of war's by-products has been to change Burgos from a sleepy cathedral town of 40,000 living on its past into Spain's capital, with nearly treble its normal population. Capital of the kingdoms of Leon and Galicia in the middle ages, it had since become a mere provincial capital.

Arrow locates Burgos, scene of wartime boom.

Chosen as the provisional capital of Nationalist Spain because of its convenient location within reach of the fronts, of the northern seacoast, and of the French frontier, Burgos has been hard put to it to handle the sudden increase in its population, which is estimated at 100,000.

Hotels are crowded to overflowing, and travelers are warned that they may have to give up their rooms at any time to others sent here on official business. Recently notices were published in all Nationalist newspapers warning that no lodgings of any sort were available for casual visitors, and that those not coming here on business would do better not to come at all.

Birthplace of the Cid.

One big modern hotel of more than 100 rooms, built since the war started, has done much to help handle the extra demand for transient accommodation.

One of the city's chief claims to fame is that it was the birthplace of the Cid, Don Rodrigo Diaz de Bivar, Spain's great semi-legendary hero of the eleventh century.

Before the war visitors came to Burgos chiefly to see its famous cathedral. Now most of those who come are too busy to do much sight-seeing.

The city's streets are narrow, crooked, and typical of old European cities. Most of them are cobbled, and the sidewalks are narrow. Against the background of old streets and old buildings, the crowds of men in uniform who fill them now provide a strange contrast.

Through the streets rumble big camouflaged trucks, military cars of all sorts, and buses to supplement the overworked railroad. Men in uniforms of all sorts, attached to ministries here or on leave from the front, fill the sidewalks.

But except for the uniforms and the extra hustle and bustle, war has not affected Burgos much. Three movie shows do a good business with three shows a day; the cafés do capacity business, and at noon the promenade along the river front is crowded with strollers when the weather is not too sharp.

Burgos is famous among Spaniards as a cold city. It is swept a large part of the time by bitter winds off the high plateau of old Castille.

That fact gives it an entirely different appearance from San Sebastian, for example, which is warm most of the year. Burgos looks rather bleak, and the buildings are made for cold weather. In San Sebastian café life has already moved outdoors and terraces are crowded every day.

City Under Curfew Law.

Coming up from San Sebastian, on the coast, five hours by bus or five and a half by train, the traveler goes from sea level to some 2,700 feet, more than half a mile up in 150 miles.

One of the war's effects is to put Burgos to bed comparatively early. To avoid unnecessary waste of light, to see that servants and waiters are not overworked, and to help keep the city in order, there is a 1 o'clock curfew for cafés and hotels. No drinks may be served in bars or cafés.

Even the dominoes have their part in Spain's war time economy. There is a tax of one peseta [10 cents] every time a set of dominoes is handed out, to go to the fund for aiding soldiers' families. Drinks pay a 20 per cent tax, whether they are alcoholic or merely coffee or chocolate. After 1 a. m. the city goes to sleep.

CONGRESS IS WARNED U. S. FIGHTING PLANES INFERIOR TO NAZIS

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—Chairman Joseph S. Ames of the national advisory committee for aeronautics has advised congress that inferior United States aircraft might force on this country a policy of appeasement. Ames, in testimony made public today, said this country's fighting planes were "second best" to Germany's.

The committee also had placed in its record a letter from Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, and Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, which said in part:

"Another nation, by the development of five major research stations for aeronautics, now has aircraft of greater military effectiveness, and as matters stand will probably have enduring supremacy."

LEADER OF RADIO TRIO ORDERED TO BOOST ALIMONY

Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday increased from $5 to $20 a week the support payments of George McMichael for his divorced wife, Almira, and their son, David, 4 years old. McMichael is the leader of the Merry Macs, radio entertainers.

Attorneys for Mrs. McMichael explained her former husband shares in the $450 a week paid to the trio in addition to payments from motion pictures and recordings. At present McMichael is $550 in arrears in the support payments.

Mrs. McMichael obtained a divorce on the ground of cruelty in 1935. She lives at 5806 North Mason avenue.

Award $1,000 to Woman Injured by a Wringer

A jury in the Superior court of Judge Joseph Sabath last night awarded Mrs. Matilda Johnson of 6803 Anthony avenue damages of $1,000 from the Taylor Washing Machine company, 3931 Madison street. Mrs. Johnson had sued for $25,000, alleging that the wringer on a machine made by the company sprang open, struck her and fractured her neck. She appeared in court wearing a neck brace. The accident occurred Oct. 18, 1935.

JUGO-SLAVIA WILL BE NEXT VICTIM, SAYS MOSCOW

MOSCOW, April 7.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's interest in Italy's occupation of Albania is in the effect the invasion may have on Jugo-Slavia.

The communist party organ Pravda said that it was obvious Il Duce intended to "transform the Adriatic into an Italian lake," but that developments also indicated "a new act of Italian-German aggression in Europe, this time directed against Jugo-Slavia."

"This aggression, which is a direct result of the Munich capitulation," said Pravda, "creates an even greater menace to the interests of England and France in the Balkans and in the Mediterranean."

U.S. Bars Thomas Bata, Son of Czech Shoe Magnate

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—Despite the wealth he represents as the son of the founder of the big shoe industry of the Czech country, Thomas Bata, son of the late industrialist of that name, was excluded from this country at Ellis Island today because his passport was issued by the now extinct Czech government. Bata, whose uncle, Jan Bata, controls the shoe manufacturing corporation in former Czecho-Slovakia, arrived here yesterday on the Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary.

CITIZENS IN RAGE OVER 33D BREAK AT ST. CHARLES

4 Slug Way Out; Caught After Vandalism.

Residents of the Fox river valley, aroused by the escape of four youthful criminals Thursday from the St. Charles School for Boys, demanded yesterday that the state administration do something to stop easy flights from the unwalled institution. The four fugitives committed several acts of outlawry in the vicinity of the school before they were recaptured.

"Conditions that permit criminals to flee at will must be remedied," said Mayor I. G. Langum of St. Charles. "Our lives and properties are continually in danger and something must be done about it. Several delegations of citizens already have gone to Springfield with protests. We want action now; not promises."

Capture Three in Chicago.

The four youths who fled, all colored, are Anthony Guidry, 17, of 4005 South Park way, and Talbert Jennings, 18, of 6047 Calumet avenue, Chicago, and Sylvester Taylor, 18, and Hobart Lambert, 16, of Cairo. Each had been previously convicted of thefts and paroled.

Guidry was captured shortly after he tried to steal the car of Mayor Langum and was returned to St. Charles. The other three fled to Chicago in an automobile stolen from Mrs. Viola Vitales of St. Charles. Jennings was caught in his home by the police. Taylor and Lambert were seized shortly after they abandoned the car at 49th and Morgan streets.

At the state's attorney's office the three fugitives told Lieut. John Kelly and Prosecutor Frank Fitzgerald how they got away from the school.

Attack Night Watchman.

All were in the school hospital, supposedly incapacitated by colds, when they decided to make a break. Taylor went to a washroom and obtained a large cleaning brush, with which he felled P. J. Urtubees, a night watchman. They broke the watchman's glasses and took his keys.

Two other inmates who tried to halt them were overcome. The four then took clothing from a linen closet and fled without further interference. Their first stop was at the farm home of Ross J. Chrystal, two miles west of St. Charles. There they overturned an automobile and damaged a truck after discovering they could not start either vehicle.

Next they tried to start a car on the nearby farm of L. J. Abell, but were driven off by dogs. In St. Charles they attempted to steal the car of Charles Saelens, failed again, and went on after damaging the ignition system. Here Guidry separated from the other three and went to Mayor Langum's garage.

All Convicted for Theft.

Records show that Taylor and Lambert went to St. Charles for auto thefts in September, 1937, and were paroled thirteen months later. They were returned on March 29 of this year. Jennings had been an inmate only since March 27, but had previously been put on probation by the Juvenile court of Cook county for auto theft. Guidry, a persistent burglar, was first sent to St. Charles in 1935. He was paroled in October, 1936, and again in October, 1938. He was returned in March for his third term in the institution.

William T. Harmon, superintendent of the school, said the four boys might be turned over to the Kane county authorities for prosecution for their criminal acts of Thursday.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

SEEK ASSEMBLY AID TO FINANCE CHICAGO RELIEF

The legislature must do something about the relief problem in Chicago if the city is to keep its relief stations operating during the last six months of the year, Mayor Kelly said yesterday. He made his statement after a conference with Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons, City Controler Robert B. Upham, and State Senator Harold G. Ward, Kelly's spokesman in the state senate.

"I'm worried about the situation," the mayor admitted. "There are 105,000 families on relief and we've got to feed them."

Lyons revealed earlier this week that the Chicago relief administration must have a loan of approximately $650,000 from the city treasury if the relief stations are to be kept open for the last week of this month. He also said that an additional loan of a million dollars will be necessary to keep the CRA offices functioning throughout next month.

The CRA spent nearly all of its 1939 local relief funds in supplementing state funds during February and March and in repaying a loan of $1,910,000 made by the city council.

Loop Parking Lots Raise Minimum Charge to 35c

The Downtown Parking Lots and the R. G. Lydy Parking company announced yesterday that all their stations operating at a minimum charge of 30 cents will raise this to 35 cents today. Parking spaces with a higher minimum will not be affected. Nicholas Despenza, president of the Downtown, said that increased taxes and license fees made the raise necessary.

GIRL AUTO VICTIM DIES; HIT LACK OF POLICE ON CORNER

Parents Protest Dangers to School Children.

The death of a little school girl from injuries suffered in an automobile accident evoked from parents last night a storm of protest against the recent removal of a policeman from the intersection where the child was run down.

Victim of the tragedy was Joan Peterson, 8 years old, 8811 South Wood street, a pupil at the Foster Park elementary school, 8500 South Wood street. She was struck Monday at 87th and Wood streets by an automobile driven by Frank Finley, 8836 Union avenue. She died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital.

Many Children Cross There.

The intersection of 87th and Wood is crossed by many school children. A policeman was assigned there for the youngsters' protection, but on March 15 he was removed and reassigned to 87th street and Hermitage avenue.

Protests were made at the time by Mrs. Gilbert Blaul, 8836 Wood street, and others. Mrs. Blaul said last night that long before the transfer she wrote to Commissioner Allman about keeping a policeman at 87th and Wood and that the commissioner wrote her that Capt. James Fleming of the Gresham station had been instructed to keep a policeman at the intersection without interruption.

Among others who protested last night was Mrs. H. Andreson, 8622 Wood street, president of the Parent-Teacher association at the Foster Park school. A movement was going on among parents last night to establish a blockade Monday at 87th and Wood as a formal protest.

Hit by Truck; Dies.

Michael Gibelina, 72 years old, 1030 South Winchester avenue, died yesterday in County hospital shortly after he was struck by a truck driven by Arthur Schumann of 1056 Monroe street. The accident occurred at Taylor street and Damen avenue. Schumann was held by the Marquette police pending an inquest today.

East side police yesterday booked Edward Jeffers, 10640 Avenue J, on a charge of manslaughter following an accident Thursday in which his automobile killed Mrs. Mary Olson, 70, of 5753 Avenue M, at 89th street and Avenue L, and injured her sister, Miss Hanna Fredrickson.

William Huggins, 43 years old, 3139 North Luna avenue, a pattern maker, was killed last night and his wife Rosemary, 31, and two other persons were injured when their automobile ran into a WPA sewer excavation in Bryn Mawr avenue at Ozark avenue. With the Hugginses were Alex Arndt, the driver, of 3421 North Seeley avenue, and Marvin Browde of 4844 North Spaulding avenue. Their injuries were not severe.

Crash Fatal to Aged Man.

A. T. Baxter, 70 years old, 9734 Walden parkway, died early today in the Oak Forest infirmary of a skull fracture suffered last night in a collision at Cicero avenue and Route 54, west of Blue Island. His car collided during a snowfall with one carrying Miss Margaret Luttrell, 24, and Frank Manskey Jr., 58, both of Bloomington, Ill. Manskey suffered possible internal injuries and Miss Luttrell a leg fracture. They were also taken to the infirmary.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 239 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 187 were killed in Chicago, where 4,838 were injured in the same period.

FACES 5 CHARGES IN SAFETY COURT; FINES TOTAL $15

When Thomas Angelakos, of 1058 Huron street, appeared in Judge Jay A. Schiller's Safety court yesterday, the following charges against him were read: Possession of false automobile license plates; false city sticker; failure to possess a proper sticker; automobile larceny, and disorderly conduct. Judge Schiller fined Angelakos a total of $7 and $8 costs on the first three charges, and dismissed the rest. He ordered police to search for Angelakos' step-brother, James T. Johnson, 1115 West Erie street, when it was discovered that he had reported the same automobile stolen from him on May 26, 1937, and had collected $360 insurance on it. Angelakos told the police he had received the car from Johnson in settlement of a $60 debt.

MACHINE GUNNERS GET $466.

Two robbers armed with a machine gun took $466 yesterday from Walter Pauli, owner of a food shop at 3850 North avenue, after curbing his car at Springfield and Wabansia avenues. Pauli was driving to his shop from a bank when he was robbed.

2 BROTHERS WIN 1ST AND 5TH IN CITY BRAIN DERBY

One Jobless, the Other a Factory Clerk.

Two brothers—one unemployed, the other a factory clerk—were among the winners yesterday of an intelligence test given to all Chicago junior college students. Both attend the Austin Evening Junior college.

They are Benjamin Eddy, 30 years old, who scored 378 points of a possible 380 to win first in the test, and his brother, Harry, 22, who placed fifth. Both were educated in the rural schools of western Canada.

A Leader in High School.

Benjamin, a scholarly, slight young man with precise speech, lives at 1541 North Fairfield avenue. He came to Chicago a year ago after teaching grammar school for ten years in the west. Since then he has been employed intermittently on an assembly line in a lampshade factory and has spent his evenings learning accounting. He was the leading student in his small high school years ago, but, he adds, he's gained most of his knowledge during the depression.

Harry, who lives at 352 South Hamlin avenue and is a factory hand, explains his outstanding intellectual record tersely. "I listen," he says.

All five highest ranking contestants were students at Austin Evening school. The examinations, begun last February, were given in the three regular day schools, Herzl, Wright, and Wilson, as well as in evening college classes at Schurz and Englewood High schools.

Teacher Ranked Second.

Second place in the intellectual rating went to Stanley Rezabek, 35, 2338 South Millard avenue, a teacher of underprivileged children at Chalmers school. He was graduated with honors from the University of Chicago fourteen years ago.

Young women won the third and fourth places. Mrs. Genevieve Stach, 2827 South Hamlin avenue, a secretary, won third, and Miss Margaret Gulbrandsen, 1723 North Keystone avenue, a clerk, was fourth. Their scores were 350 and 346. Both were honor students at their high schools.

The average score of students in Austin, the test indicated, is twelve points higher than that of the day junior college students. Most of the night students earn their living by working during the day.

WPA SPENDERS FIGHT FOR TIME ON SENATE VOTE

Frame Delays to Await President's Help.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—New Deal extremists in the senate seeking to boost the pending 100 million dollar WPA relief appropriation to 150 million dollars filibustered today to delay a vote on their own amendment. Their object was to encourage pressure from back home until President Roosevelt's return to Washington on Monday.

If a final vote had been taken today the appropriation committee's recommendation of 100 millions undoubtedly would have passed. And it was apparent that the senate was ready to vote.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] sought to obtain an agreement to vote at 3 p. m. Monday, the earliest hour acceptable to the radical spenders, but Senator Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], the minority leader, insisted that the vote be not later than 2 o'clock Monday. Refusing to accept McNary's proposal, Barkley was forced to continue the senate in session and to call a Saturday session. The only way to prevent a vote was to continue the filibuster.

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], author of the amendment to add 50 million dollars, and other spenders wanted at least another hour to speak after President Roosevelt's return. It is their theory that he will whip wavering senators into line.

McNary's move was strictly political, calculated to put the New Dealers in the position of delaying action on a bill to provide funds for relief workers. He taunted them for filibustering instead of voting today. Pepper, furious because McNary had put him on the spot, shouted: "There'll be no vote tomorrow."

Shenator Sheridan [Ham and Eggs] Downey [D., Cal.] assisted the filibuster with a three hour maiden speech in which he offered his $30-every-Thursday pension scheme as the only solution for the nation's economic ills. Downey said the sole cause of the 1929 crash and the Roosevelt depression of 1937 was an excess of saving, and that adequate pensions for all persons over 60 would put an end to this dangerous practice.

Discourses on WPA.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] delighted the senate and the galleries with a discourse on the resourcefulness of the WPA in conceiving ways to waste money. He mentioned the project in which a WPA worker was sent to Europe to ascertain the possibility of traveling there on $2 a day while speaking only the English language.

"She is now engaged," Senator Reynolds said, "in instructing WPA workers how to see Europe on $2 a day."

Reynolds then read a letter from a WPA theater project worker, published in The Tablet, a Catholic organ, ridiculing the bizarre activities of the theater project, especially the production, "Sing for Your Supper."

Reynolds labeled this show "Bark for Your Food."

Says Government Is Ridiculed.

The letter read by Reynolds said the play sought, with "downright filth," to spread the leftist gospel and ridicule the government of the United States. It said the show had more than 100 persons in the cast, of which not more than 15 had ever appeared on a professional stage; that it was in rehersal for more than 19 months at the Adelphi theater, for which a rental of $3,000 a month was paid during rehersals.

The lighting director, one Abraham Feder, "has spent more than $40,000 for lighting equipment for the show and the result is that you can't see any one on the stage," Reynolds read.

The letter said that Miss Hallie Flannagan, head of the WPA theater project, receives $10,000 a year, "which is just about three times as much as she ever received from Vassar college." She has a traveling allowance, a car and a chauffeur, who receives $225 a month, said the letter. It added that the WPA show had cost the government $250,000.

SENATOR PROTESTS NEGRO SINGING AT LINCOLN MEMORIAL

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—Senator Ellender [D., La.], protested on the senate floor today against permitting Marian Anderson, Negro, to give an outdoor concert Sunday on the grounds of the Lincoln memorial.

The Louisiana senator contended that Secretary Ickes had set a bad precedent by authorizing use of the grounds. He also denounced as an abuse of power an order from Charles A. Peters, general manager of buildings under the interior department, for government building guards to serve as police at the concert.

Many of these guards, Ellender said, had arranged to leave the city for a Sunday holiday and faced the necessity of canceling their plans.

WPA Drops 45,500 as Aliens Under New Law

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—Col. F. C. Harrington, Works Progress administrator, reported today 45,500 persons had been dropped from the WPA rolls under the new law barring aliens from further employment on projects. The number dropped in Illinois was 9,838; in Indiana, 1,225; Michigan, 6,288; Minnesota, 1,389; Iowa, 2g4, and Wisconsin, 2,390.

MISSING 9 DAYS, ATTORNEY FACES CONTEMPT CASE

After a nine day unexplained absence from the Criminal Courts building Attorney Frank A. McDonnell was served with a summons yesterday to appear before Judge Robert Jerome Dunne in the Criminal court for a contempt hearing on April 15.

McDonnell was defense attorney for Stanton Cooke and Peter Biron in a handbook murder trial. Four jurors had been chosen when, a week ago Wednesday, McDonnell failed to appear, causing a mistrial. Judge Dunne ordered a squad of bailifs to bring him in. The bailifs failed to find McConnell, but yesterday Deputy Sherif Patrick Keenan discovered him in the lobby of the Criminal Courts building and served the summons.

ERE THE FIRST LEAF—

By CALEB

'AN oleaceous shrub, cultivated—two species of it—for its yellow, bell-shaped flowers, and originally brought to us from its native China by William Forsyth. Such, the naturalists agree, is the forsythia . . . whose most endearing characteristic is that it makes its appearance in our woods and parks long before the first leaves—the very earliest forerunner of Spring.

There's something peculiarly winsome in this way Mother Nature has of connecting up all her transitions. Save in momentary weather-shifts, she gives us no instant, dramatic changes; but the same sort of imperceptible, season-to-season gradations that physiologically accompany our own existence. Blue-skied, balmy-aired days that appear long before opening April. Teasing warmths that woo a premature green from the deceived soil. Hints that under earth's possessive frost something friendly and gracious is astir.

For in the needs of her most grown-up children, Nature is very, very wise. She knows the lure and power of anticipation; cleverly employs the promise of pleasant change at hand to keep spirits eager and minds industrious. Understanding the menace of unbroken monotony, she uses her advance heralds to announce coming release—like the sun-colored forsythia, glimpsed amid barren stretches of still naked boughs.

Business, too, has long capitalized this same strategy. Figurative forsythias are already a-bloom in every nook of the merchandising scene. With chill winds still bleak outside her door, the breakfasting housewife has, morning after morning, read and listened to retailers' reminders of Springtime apparel, gathered months before from fashion centers, and currently on display. Magazine pages similarly sparkle with Spring finery—and in the close to one hundred windows of Field's city and suburban stores Le printemps is emphasized with every resource of the decorator's art . . .

All of which prompts us to mention the intriguingly lifelike lambs you now see gamboling amid the accents of Spring in our main floor aisle. If the reminiscent smiles of customers are any criterion, even these counterfeits of bleating reality are enjoying some intimation of shining meadows, and of sunny hillsides just ahead.

FARMERS FEAR ANY INCREASES IN MILK PRICES

Assert Sales Slump Would Hit Surplus Market.

In the following article, the second of a series on milk prices, a reporter for The Tribune interviews downstate farmers on prices, which would be fixed by a state control board in a measure pending in the legislature.

BY HAL FOUST.

Bloomington, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—The well informed downstate farmer is concerned with Chicago's retail milk prices, but not in the manner that might be feared by city housewives. He does not favor an increase in his price, to be passed on to the consumer, as might happen under a state milk control board such as is proposed in legislation pending in Springfield.

"Any increase in the retail price of bottled milk in Chicago," said Joash Stutzman, president of the McLain county farm bureau, "would curtail consumption in the raw fluid market, which pays the dairy farmer a premium price. A larger portion of his produce would have to be sold to the condensories and processors which buy milk at a lower price.

Surplus Would Cut Prices.

"With a shrinkage in Chicago's consumption of raw milk, there would be a further surplus, and hence lower prices for farmers selling milk for manufacture. Evaporated milk and milk substitutes would gain an advantage in their competition with raw milk."

Stutzman, interviewed on his farm twelve miles west of here, said that under present conditions he was able to profit in selling cream to a Bloomington creamery, notwithstanding current low butter quotations, because of the efficiency of his blooded Jersey herd.

Joseph Schrock, a dairy farmer and feed manufacturer of Congerville, a village between here and Peoria, said that if owners stopped milking nonprofit cows it would eliminate the surplus of milk to the benefit of the state's dairy industry.

Explains His Viewpoint.

"With price fixing," he continued, "farmers might be encouraged to continue to work cows that eat more than they give. And I know from experience as a former milk distributor in Bloomington that housewives stop buying when the prices are too high."

Forrest W. Lemons, who milks fifteen cows on his 960 acre farm twenty miles east of Peoria, expressed a similar opinion.

"I'm getting 3.14 cents a quart for extra butter fat milk in Peoria," he said. "There's no profit in this. I'd lose more money if there were a backwash downstate of surplus from the Chicago milk shed due to lowered city consumption."

Calls Prices Too Stable.

Joseph Lies, who produces milk for Aurora, suggested that there is already, without the enactment of price control legislation, too much stability in the retail price of milk.

"If the retail price were allowed to fluctuate unrestrained in accordance with supply and demand," he said, "a lower price would boost consumption of raw milk when there was an abundance coming from the farms. City dwellers wouldn't have to skimp in their use of this healthful food. Farmers would have a bigger market when their herds were flush and the market would shrink when herd production was low.

"Under the present arrangement, with distributors and union labor in control, there has been a drop of almost 2 cents in prices paid farmers without any corresponding change in the price to consumers. If the housewives could get milk cheaper they'd buy more—and farmers would profit."

Other farmers may hold other opinions, inasmuch as the Illinois Agricultural association is sponsoring the proposed milk control legislation of a type which boosted retail prices in eastern cities. However, the farms visited were picked at random from the 231,300 farms in Illinois, 22,263 of them producing milk.

State Senator Simon E. Lantz [R., Congerville], one of fourteen legislators who introduced the price fixing bills at the request of the agricultural association, was interviewed on his live stock farm eighteen miles northwest of here.

"I don't know that a state control board could solve the milk problem," he said. "However, I know of no better method of bringing about public enlightenment on this subject than to take it before the assembly for thorough inquiry and discussion. It certainly does seem that there's something wrong in charging consumers 12 cents for a quart and paying farmers only 3 cents a quart."

KILLS SELF BY INHALING GAS.

Sewell Lang, 50 years old, a salesman, killed himself yesterday by inhaling gas in his flat at 17 West Superior street. Police were told he had been in ill health.

FOUR COUNTY PARLEY MOVES TO GET FAIRER PRICES FOR DAIRYMEN

Business men from four counties gathered last night at Hampshire, in Kane county, to discuss means of assisting farmers to obtain a fairer price for their milk. Representatives of the Milk Producers council, a new organization formed to represent all farm coöperatives in price negotiations, attended the meeting.

It was agreed that all present would send telegrams to the governor's office, urging that a meeting in which consumers, dealers, and farmers would be represented be called for Tuesday in Springfield. George Wilcox, a Hampshire druggist, presided at last night's discussion. Counties represented were Kane, De Kalb, McHenry, and Boone.

SINGER SETTLES HUSBAND'S SUIT OVER $9,500; FREED

Mrs. Louise Lehr, a former opera singer, was released from the county jail yesterday. She was jailed Monday when she was unable to post a $1,000 bond in connection with an accounting suit filed by her husband, Nicholas, of Oshkosh, Wis.

Lehr charged his wife kept $8,000 of $9,500 collected in his behalf for injuries he suffered in an automobile accident. Mrs. Lehr, who lives at 525 Arlington place, said she believed she and her daughters, Joanne and Margot, were entitled to some of the money for their support.

Judge Charles A. Williams freed Mrs. Lehr after her attorney, Harold T. Halfpenny, announced that an out of court settlement involving the remainder of the money had been effected. The Lehrs were married in 1917, divorced in 1930 and remarried in 1931. They separated a second time in 1933.

POLICE CAPTURE RUG THIEF, BUT HE WON'T TALK

Washings have been vanishing from clotheslines in the Jefferson Park police district. Laundry bundles have been disappearing from back porches. Leave a rug out to air and pouf! It's gone.

And so Policemen Herbert Haerle and Victor Baginski hurried yesterday when Capt. Herbert Burns sent them over to 4754 North Long avenue to investigate a complaint that things were mysteriously missing from the third floor back porch shared by Mrs. Robert Cadwallader and Mrs. Minnie Schmidt.

The policemen were writing in their notebooks on the porch when a dog pushed his way between them without even begging their pardon. He snatched a rug from the porch railing and ran downstairs. They chased him two blocks and caught him. Now they're questioning him about other crimes in the neighborhood. But he won't talk.

AGE IN COMMAND ONE OF GREATEST U.S. WAR WORRIES

Generals, Admirals Too Old for Battle.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—If war should come to the United States tomorrow, one of the nation's most serious problems would be to get generals and admirals mentally competent and physically able to lead soldiers and sailors into battle.

Army and navy strategists have prepared plans to cope with an attack in the Pacific, an attack in the Atlantic, or attacks in both oceans. They also have planned for defense should the navy be beaten. Nothing has been done, however, about the fact that the ranking officers are too old for active service.

The strategists confess that they will have difficulty in creating and equipping an army and in getting and educating young officers to lead the troops. These difficulties will be nothing, it is acknowledged, in comparison with the problem of getting rid of older incompetents and finding generals and admirals fit to command.

Each Hopes to Be General.

The higher the rank, the more incompetent the officer as far as actual battle is concerned. This is acknowledged in the navy and war departments, but not publicized because every officer hopes age will bring him a general's stars or an admiral's bars.

Of the army's thirty-nine major generals, twenty-five are more than 60 years old, an age at which they should not be called upon to face the physical strain of active command. Those in the late fifties do not have the required vigor for field service. The sixty-four brigadier generals average just below 60 years of age.

Of the navy's seventy-six rear admirals, forty-two are more than 60 years old. They also average just below 60 years. At that age, an admiral cannot compete with younger men in withstanding the strain of sea duty.

Fail to Learn War's Lesson.

Neither the army nor the navy has profited by the world war lesson on age in the higher ranks. At the outbreak of the war the ages of the thirty-two general officers of the army averaged about 60 years. In the navy twenty admirals averaged 61 years. Few of these general and flag officers went over seas or played important rôles back home.

Today the average age in the general ranks has not been reduced appreciably in comparison with that at the outbreak of the world war, even though the last eight brigadier generals to be named averaged but 55 years as compared with the general average of 60 years.

Although all recognize that generals and admirals are overage, no one has a solution for the problem. In both services the places at the top are few and can be gained only after a long climb up the pyramid of officers.

Would Hold Jobs Longer.

If younger men were selected for the higher jobs they would hold them longer with the result that the army would be clogged with overage colonels and captains. If officers were retired earlier—in their fifties—they would have difficulty in finding places in civil life.

It is felt in both services that nothing can be done in peacetime to remedy the situation. In war, it is believed, the situation may adjust itself.

Upon a declaration of war, overage officers would be tossed aside ruthlessly into relatively obscure desk jobs, while younger men would take the field command and the important desk posts. The army feels that these younger men should go through the acid test of war, rather than be selected in time of peace for rapid promotion in the event of war.

Within the first few weeks of war and at the first clash of troops, the good men will rise to the top immediately, the army and navy feel. These can be promoted rapidly with the knowledge that they will make good.

Might Prove to Be Inefficient.

If officers are selected in peace for promotion in war, however, they may turn out to be far greater duds than some officers already sporting generals' stars, and their weeding out will delay the building of an efficient army, officers say.

The army and navy recognize that a hard and fast weeding rule based on age may be injurious and deprive the army of able generals. During the world war Gen. Tasker Bliss carried a burden of years, yet his work on the interallied council was far better than that which might have been done by a young man. He foresaw the future clearly, in fact he was the first army man to see the future course of the Versailles treaty and to advise against American ratification.

An officer such as Gen. Charles P. Summerall, former chief of staf, who has been retired for ten years, still would be able to give valuable counsel should war come, officers are confident.

The war department is aware the officer situation in the National Guard is even worse than in the regular army. Most guard officers of general's rank owe their stars to political connections and hang on to their rank tenaciously. Politics also enters into lower officer ranks.

New Milk Record Set

DAIRY ON 4 LEGS SETS RECORD OF 57 QUARTS A DAY

English Shorthorn Is New Milk Champ.

Cherry, an 8 year old English Shorthorn cow, nas set a new world's record for milk production—41,644.5 pounds of milk in 365 days, or an average of fifty-seven quarts a day. The new record, completed yesterday, made Cherry the first cow on record to produce more than 40,000 pounds of milk in a year. One pound is .465 of a quart.

The new champion's highest daily yield was 143¾ pounds, her highest weekly yield 961¼ pounds.

Dairymen consider 8,000 pounds of milk a year [approximately ten quarts a day] a good average production figure for well bred dairy cows. The average cow in the United States gives about 4,000 pounds a year.

Word Cabled to Breeders.

Word of the new record was cabled from England to Roy A. Cook, secretary of the Milking Shorthorn club of Independence, Ia. Cook telephoned the news to Howard J. Gramlich, secretary of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association, whose headquarters is in Chicago.

Authorities say that the new milk record is remarkable, since Cherry is not strictly a dairy cow. She is what is known in this country as a milking Shorthorn, a dual purpose animal, used both for beef and the production of milk. In England they are called dairy Shorthorns. Most Shorthorns in this country are of the beef type.

The previous world's record, established in 1936, was made by Carnation Ormsby Butter King, a Holstein cow owned by Carnation farms of Seattle, Wash. She gave 38,606 pounds of milk in a 365 day test.

Milked by Hand.

Cherry is owned by Red House farm, Amesbury, Wiltshire, England. She was handled by Alec McKie, a Scotch herdsman, during the test. He milked her by hand. She was milked four times a day during the first part of the test and three times a day toward the end. Cherry is temperamental and must be kept away from other cows, McKie said. She is not unusually large, weighing only 1,500 pounds.

The new milk champion was fed six times a day during the test. Her daily menu consisted of two mangold beets, seven pounds of meadow hay, five pounds of bran, twenty-eight pounds of mixed grain and protein feed, and some flaked maize. She drank forty gallons of water a day.

AIR DEFENSE SEEN IN HUNTERS AND TRAP SHOOTERS

600,000 Crack Shots of U. S. in Practice.

BY BOB BECKER.

An estimated 85,000 skeet and straight trap shooters in the United States, in addition to about 500,000 skilled field shots, give the nation a large but unorganized civilian reserve which, in the event of war, would be invaluable for special defense units against low flying airplanes on a battlefield and also as instructors in preliminary anti-aircraft training.

Army officers recognize the potential value of this great reserve of shotgun users. They assert that, if the United States finds itself at war, it is possible the government will ask expert wing shots to volunteer.

Praised by Army Officer.

Maj. E. G. Lindroth, officer in charge of civilian component affairs of the 6th corps area, said yesterday that skeet and trap shooters and skilled wing shots could render a very important and specialized service.

"These men could be used as instructors and also would have the background and shooting experience necessary to make good anti-aircraft gunners," he said. "Unfortunately, there is no way for organizing these men now unless they join the regular army or the National Guard. In case of war, however, many of them naturally would be in the service."

Officers stationed at the infantry school in Fort Benning, Ga., already have experimented with skeet shooting and found it a help in training recruits in the rudiments of leading a target. Tests disclosed that men who learned how to shoot skeet before being given a rifle became more proficient in anti-aircraft gunnery than soldiers who received no previous training with shotguns.

U. S. Leads in Trap Shooters.

America is one of the most enthusiastic trap shooting countries in the world. The annual championship tournament for men who like to break clay pigeons is one of the big sporting events of the year. Large cities have not one but several clubs which bring the clay pigeon shooters together. In the immediate area surrounding Chicago there are at least 1,500 men and women who shoot either skeet or straight traps.

Skeet is the comparatively new form of trap shooting which utilizes two trap houses for throwing clay pigeons. The twenty-five targets projected by this pair of traps in a round of skeet, and the different stations which the gunner must take when firing at the targets, provide sixteen separate and distinct shots. Several of them are angling and overhead shots which are much like the chances that a hunter gets in the field on live game.

Fifteen Clubs in Chicagoland.

There are more than fifteen skeet clubs in Chicagoland, a number of golf clubs have skeet and trap shooting facilities, and there are also several gun clubs which have straight trap shooting layouts.

It is conservatively estimated that there are at least 65,000 skeet shooters and from 18,000 to 20,000 trap shooters in the United States. Although the hunters who like to use their shotguns on game birds far outnumber the trap and skeet shooters, the latter are the most persistent powder burners week after week. The shell manufacturers figure that about 13 per cent of all the shotgun shells fired every year are made for the men who like to break clay pigeons.

Grandmother, Fearing War Penalty, Betrays Deserter

Rochester, Ind., April 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Eli Woodcox, 72 years old, reported to Chief of Police Fred Carr today that Lester A. White, 20, her grandson and a deserter from the army, had sought refuge in her home. She said she feared war might be declared and feared he might suffer the wartime penalty, execution. Chief Carr is holding Lester for the army authorities.

STRANGLED BUSINESS.

The President takes his advice on financial matters from Marriner Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board. Mr. Eccles believes, in the face of six years of failure, that recovery can be achieved through excessive government spending. He admitted the other day before a senate committee that most of the people in the country disagree with him and with the President on this point. Nevertheless the New Deal continues to spend at the rate of 3 billion dollars a year in excess of its revenues and this in spite of the fact that the tax rates are now so high that business is stagnant.

In Washington there is obviously a will to believe that high taxes have no discouraging effect upon the nation's prosperity and productivity. The extent to which this fallacy is accepted was indicated recently when fifty senators signed a bill setting up tax schedules which would come into force with the declaration of war. These taxes are intended to take all personal income above a subsistence level and to take all corporate income in excess of a 6 per cent return.

The title of the bill as it was introduced by Senator Bone of Washington is a fancy one, containing references to the promotion of peace, the discouragement of war profiteering, and the desire to keep democracy alive; but a better title would be a bill to destroy democracy and assure the defeat of the United States in war. An army without supplies is certain to be routed and this tax proposal would guarantee a minimum of production on the farms and in the factories. The bill would make it imprudent for any business to expand its productive capacity to meet the war need. It would make it impossible to reward speed and efficiency in supplying the nation's needs in a time of the greatest peril. It would so disorganize the nation's economy that inevitably a military dictatorship would be imposed on the country from which it might never be freed.

That lunatic bill bears the signature of fifty senators, one more than a majority. While many of the signatories look upon the bill as a measure to prevent Mr. Roosevelt from rushing us into war in Europe, others, including the administration senators, would get us into war to put the law into effect. It is the latter who are guiding the fiscal policies of the nation today. In the circumstances it may be a miracle that the country is no worse off than it is.

These men have blindly accepted Mr. Roosevelt's spending and taxing program all these years and it is charitable to believe they did so because they didn't know any better. The abject failure of the pump priming campaign has not brought them to their senses. The demands of every responsible business organization in the country, whether speaking for big business or little business, have been pigeonholed as idle vaporings.

The President and his followers all this time have been wondering why business doesn't pick up. The reason is obvious to any one who has anything to do with business. The stagnation continues because present taxes are so high and the prospect of higher taxes is so clear that nobody with money to invest will risk it in the certainty that if the venture succeeds the government will hog the profits and if it fails the investor will suffer all the loss.

Today the federal government takes nearly a fifth of the profits of business before anybody whose money created the enterprise gets anything. Through the personal income taxes the tax collector takes his fat share of whatever is left. The more money a man has to invest in industry and trade the higher is his tax rate and therefore the greater the discouragement to him to put his idle cash to work. Accordingly, the banks are overloaded with deposits, investors are seeking tax exempt securities, and there are 10 million unemployed in the land.

The government which has created all this misery through its fiscal policies now refuses to take even a first step toward remedying the situation. It demands more expenditures rather than less, and refuses to do anything to lighten the burden. As long as this attitude continues there will be no substantial recovery in this country.

CHICAGO TO EUROPE BY AIR.

Chicago and the midwest are again treated like orphans in the arrangements for trans-Atlantic air service by the northern route from Newfoundland to Ireland.

Midwestern passengers, under present plans, must fly to New York and take the trans-Atlantic plane there. A great circle route eastward from Chicago and Detroit to a connection with trans-Atlantic planes at Shediac, N. B., or in Newfoundland, would save western and middle western passengers several hours and hundreds of miles of flying. No provision has been made for such a connection.

The route suggested would be largely over Canadian territory. American air lines have approached Canadian officials with requests for permission to start such service and have been refused.

The Canadian position is not without logic. American air lines now fly their planes to three Canadian cities—Vancouver, Winnipeg, and Montreal. No Canadian planes are permitted to schedule service to American airports. Canada has just started a transcontinental air service, run by the government, north of the border. The proposed Chicago-Detroit-Shediac route would tap the cream of this line's trafic at Toronto, Ottawa, and Montreal. The Canadians cannot be blamed for seeking to protect their own national interests in aviation.

What is needed is a little horse trading. In view of the entries already permitted American air lines in Canada, a Canadian line might be invited to extend its service to Detroit, or even as far as Chicago. If, as is possible, Canada finds it is necessary to devote all its energies to its present transcontinental line, arrangements might be made for an American line to fly the route temporarily, with an understanding that it be turned over to Canadian planes and management later.

It is significant that while negotiations for establishment of the route have been handled for Canada by the dominion minister of transport, Mr. C. D. Howe, the United States has been represented only by private persons—executives of its air lines.

The Chicago Association of Commerce, the city government, and officials and trade bodies of other midwestern cities should demand at Washington that our governmental authorities take some interest in the problem. The state department should conduct the negotiations. The Civil Aviation authority, which to date has been more interested in hamstringing the air transport industry than aiding it, has in this situation an opportunity for some constructive action.

HOW FREE A DEMOCRACY?

Mr. Chamberlain's several explanations of the Stanhope episode leave it apparent that the desire of the British government is to have a press controlled in the same spirit if not to the same degree as the Nazi, Fascist, and communist newspapers. Lord Stanhope, the first lord of the admiralty, made some remarks publicly which contained more sensationalism than sense. He said that anti-aircraft guns were being manned against emergencies which might arise any minute.

Stanhope's explanation was that the observation was intended merely to explain the absence of some of the naval officers from the dinner at which he spoke. Mr. Chamberlain thought that the inferences from the remarks would be alarming, and that the effect in other countries would be bad. Therefore he requested the publishers not to print the Stanhope speech, or, if they had printed it, to withdraw the editions. All but two journals obeyed the request.

There was apparently more than a request. There was an intimation that if the request was not complied with there might be an application of the drastic censorship laws which can be distorted to suppress almost any kind of information on the pretext that publication would be contrary to public security. Mr. Chamberlain says that he did not quite achieve his purpose, as indeed he did not. He emphasized the mischief, if there were any, in Stanhope's remarks, and he called new attention to the dictatorial instincts of the government of a country which, in present crises, poses as the leader of European democracy.

The British newspapers of late have resented the American interpretation of their status, but they are beginning to appreciate the fact that there can be no freedom of the press when a government may suppress any news the responsibility of which cannot be challenged, and may even demand that the public utterances of government officials be stricken from the record.

The dictator states undoubtedly enjoy an advantage in the control of news and opinion. They enjoy many other advantages in autocracy which can force every man to act, talk, and think as required. They present a formidable, aggressive front to the world because millions of submissive, obedient peoples can be set marching whenever the autocrat decrees that they must. That supposedly is the issue confronting the world. Supposedly, Great Britain and France are creating a front to protect themselves and other countries against the aggressions of these powerful slave states in which no man lives a free life. To this front the aid and coöperation of the United States is invited, and many of the American people feel that there is a common cause in which the United States finds itself involved in principle and probably in destiny.

The foundation of the free democracy is its freedom of opinion, which means that news and ideas may circulate without let or hindrance from governmental authorities. That modifications of this are necessary in wartime are obvious, but no democracy can assert as a principle of government the idea that Chamberlain puts forth and then say that it is endeavoring to maintain the liberties of a free people. Mr. Chamberlain could require of his government officials that they use some discretion in their public utterances, and he may discipline them if they do not obey or if they prove that they are untrustworthy. He cannot, however, assume to prohibit publication of public speeches and present himself as a champion of democracy. Democracy has certain penalties attached to it. It must survive in spite of them or it cannot survive.

The freedom of the individual is frequently an embarrassment to a government. It is what a free government must tolerate. When it ceases to do so it ceases to be a government of democracy. The argument of the dictatorships is that freedom and power are inconsistent. We may admit that freedom and autocratic power are. We are now endeavoring in this troubled world to prove that liberty has sufficient power to maintain itself, and that the defects of autocracy, whatever temporary advantages it gains, will be in the end fatal to it. We cannot win that fight by adopting the practices of the autocracies.

HEALTH PROTECTIVE RING.

[Daily Pantagraph.]

When the Illinois legislature passed the Saltiel hygienic marriage law in 1937, whereby couples were required to pass certain tests for syphilis and other diseases, there was an exodus of marriageable couples to nearby states which did not require such tests.

In the two intervening years the lines against such easy escape from the Illinois law have gradually been tightened. Adjoining states have passed similar laws, and others are in the process of enactment of them.

Missouri now has a health test bill pending in the senate, and Iowa passed a similar bill one day this week.

Previously Indiana had enacted the law, and Wisconsin followed the example of Illinois the very year of the Illinois enactment. Kentucky passed such a law last year.

When Missouri and Iowa complete their passage of health bills, Illinois will be entirely ringed by states which afford no refuge for Illinois couples seeking an easy escape from the health law.

The tendency to enact health laws for marrying couples is now almost nation-wide. Probably in a few years it will be universal.

ODD FACTS ABOUT EASTER.

Our name for the chief religious festival of the Christian world comes from a goddess of the pagan Anglo-Saxons. The Germans follow suit with Ostern. Nearly all other European countries use a name derived from the ancient Hebrew verb form meaning "he passed over," such as these examples: Pascua, pasqua, pâques, paaske, paasch, pasg.

* * *

Agitation for a fixed Easter date began in England in 1900. In 1921 a bill for this reform was introduced in parliament. In 1923 the matter was referred to the league of nations by an international congress of chambers of commerce. In 1928 an act was passed by parliament fixing Easter as the first Sunday after the second Saturday in April, this to become law upon international acceptance.

* * *

The "mean" or average date for Easter during the last 100 years has been April 8.3. Tomorrow, therefore, may be called a "mean" Easter even if the weather is perfect.

* * *

"In 1923," says the Encyclopædia Britannica, "the full moon of the heavens fell on the Sunday given by the tables for the celebration of Easter; and the Resurrection, going by the real moon, was celebrated before the Crucifixion."

* * *

The above paragraph may be simple as A B C to astronomers, but the editor of this column has grown dizzy trying to figure out the difference between "the full moon of the heavens" and "the real moon," and must go home now to dye his Easter eggs.

LARK'S SONG AT EASTER.

The lark soars up from the prairie
And his notes fall like silver rain;
In the golden dawn waits Mary,
Stilling her heart's dull pain.

O, the lark sings clear, the lark sings loud,
Cleaving a way for faith,
But Mary thinks of a tomb and a shroud;
"They have slain my Lord," she saith.

"Mary!" A loved voice speaks her name
And the psalm of the lark is sweet,
While the woman turns her Lord to claim
And falls at His pierced feet.

O, the lark sings high in the heaven,
Then sinks again to his nest;
For his faith and his song is he shriven
And the love in his humble breast.

Folk Magic on Easter Morning.

She found me weeping in front of the mirror, my little old German grandmother. The new Easter bonnet was perfect, but one look at my nose and the picture was spoiled. For the March winds had brought forth hundreds of freckles and ruined the lovely complexion that had been achieved by months of constant application of lemon juice at bedtime. "Don't cry, my child," she comforted. "What matters a few freckles? True beauty comes from within one.

"When I was a little girl in the old country," she began, and told me of the charm they had believed in: that if any maiden wished to become beautiful she arose before sunup on Easter morning, went to a stream of flowing water and bathed her face. She was not supposed to look to the left nor to the right nor behind her and could speak no word to any living being, or the spell would be broken.

Thus Easter morning found me stealing out into a quiet cold Wisconsin dawn. On through the little woods I hurried where on Good Friday we had gathered the first fragrant sprays of arbutus. And then I heard the chatter of Christy brook and came upon it as it clattered and dashed over the stones. Kneeling, I bathed my face in the clear cold water.

O, it was a lovely morning and I wanted to sing, I wanted to dance and shout, "I'm going to be beautiful, I'm going to be beautiful." As I neared home I broke into a run, impatient to reach a mirror and see the vision that undoubtedly would present itself. And then just as I came within sight of home the neighbor boy, whom I secretly adored, dashed out of the house on his way to early mass and called, "Happy Easter, Genie." Aglow with my new found beauty and the joy of living I forgot all of grandmother's admonitions and, turning, I answered, "Happy Easter, Don" . . . and so the charm was broken.

In Defense of Parsnips and Parsley.

Parsnips and parsley have suffered for too many years from the sneers of dinner table wits and the contempt of people with fussy appetites and culinary complexes. We have been a stanch defender of both, and therefore we pass on with joy the good tidings from the American Chemical society: Parsley contains two or three times as much vitamin C as citrus fruits, and parsnips have as much as orange juice. We attribute our success in life largely to the stubbornness with which we continued to eat parsnips in spite of bitter opposition.

GUIDING THE CHILD ARIGHT.

I WONDER if the time will ever come when parents will realize that guiding their offspring through the formative years of life means everything in the development of character, the ability to think clearly, with a feeling of personal responsibility. Some bizarre form of behavior all too often is regarded merely as regrettable. Nothing is done about it; no effort is made to change or alter the tendency. One may say, "Johnny will get over that," or "Freddy will outgrow it," or perhaps, "Joan will realize some day the folly of acting that way." All too often none of the hoped for reforms come about and we fail to recognize the deeply fixed traits which are to blame.

As a rule the fault lies within the home. The father, too busy perhaps to devote much attention to the lad, grows away from him—not because he wants to, but because the youngster fixes upon the mother a singleness of adoration which excludes every one else. Her word is law; her ideals and principles are perfect. If progress at school is unsatisfactory some one else is accountable—but never Junior. Many a well meaning dad has appeared before the school principal in violent protest against discrimination suffered by his boy. Although he knew little of the circumstances, he had worked himself into a state of righteous indignation because of the tales related by mother and son.

While pater familias may not sense the true import of such incidents, a child so managed is bound to mature with a serious handicap. The only place he feels dominant is in the home where he is the front and center of all things. With his schoolmates, however—unless his physical prowess brings out bullying proclivities—he is likely to be shy and present a withdrawal attitude. There is just one help for such a lad—namely, enough contacts with companions who live in a normal environment, or a teacher who senses his problem. If some understanding person can gain his confidence and help him to think for himself—all may be well. Fortunately there are a few such instructors and I well recall an eighth grade schoolma'am whose influence for good was incalculable.

We must not discourage self-assertiveness, and no more vicious dictum was ever uttered than that which runs, "Children should be seen and not heard." Self-expression should be invited or, at least, permitted a sufficiently broad sway, with careful attention to every opinion that is uttered. But this does not mean that a youngster shall so rule the household that no other member has the right even to think. In later life—if he does not get his way—he is likely to become a confirmed neurotic as a means of obtaining sympathy. There is an even middle ground between the repressed, subdued chap and the one who bosses everybody.

It is not difficult to visualize the growth of such characteristics. A perfectly sound 10 year old may contract some serious ailment. For the first time in his life he realizes that he is of prime importance. Every attention is showered upon him and only when convalescence is fully established will he understand that he must now revert to his former status—one among several.

This moment marks a turning point in his career. If he begins to describe vague, indefinable aches and pains, if he displays a sense of helplessness, we may know that more often than not he is again planning to take the limelight. If he is well physically, his complaints must not be given the slightest consideration. On the other hand, if they are yielded to with more fuss, more doctors and nurses, a weakling may be created.

There may be some fathers and mothers who see their progeny but occasionally. Children of such a family will find friends somewhere and they may be the wrong sort. If we can avoid oversolicitous as well as neglectful management we will arrive at a proper plan of rearing wherein the youngster feels a deep sense of parental affection which will be reflected in respect, admiration, and obedience. Behavior, then, will be that which is expected—not cringing subservience but that which is accorded fearlessly—with the head up and eyes straight to the front.

NO DANGER.

W. writes: Is it safe to swim in a pool which is used by victims of infantile paralysis? It is a public pool and is treated with chlorine.

REPLY.

Regardless of whether or not it is treated with chlorine, there is no danger whatever from infantile paralysis, inasmuch as the victims have passed the acute stage of the malady. As far as we know, the ailment can be spread during the period of fever, but not long thereafter. Chlorination will check other types of infection.

PROSTATE GLAND.

L. K. writes: What causes an enlarged prostate gland?

REPLY.

This is one of the besetments of men in the latter decades. It is a senile phenomenon and is associated with the male change of life. Occasionally the enlargement becomes so great that the outflow of urine is interfered with and a portion of the gland may need to be removed surgically. Seventy per cent of all men past the age of 60 are bothered to some extent.

EXAMINATION NEEDED.

Mrs. W. writes: I have a weak back. I develop pain when I do my housework. Do you think I should wear a brace?

REPLY.

Pain is one of nature's warnings that all is not well. Backache may be produced by many conditions. Whether or not some form of support is necessary in your case can be determined only after a thorough study, including X-rays. In many instances a sacroiliac brace will be helpful, but not if the trouble lies in the pelvic organs.

HAIR LOSS.

D. I. writes: I lose about 300 hairs a day. What is the normal hairfall?

REPLY.

The human scalp is adorned with approximately 1,000 hairs per square inch. Its growth capacity is sufficient to replace this entire total every five years. Unfortunately, falling hair usually indicates some scalp or systemic malady. Three hundred daily for a time may not be too many if they are being restored promptly. Without replenishment it will be "going, going, gone." The loss of short, young hairs is more significant.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—Japan has begun stripping manhole covers and tearing up iron park fences, postal boxes, and even telephone posts to feed its hungry industries—principally its munitions and shipping industries.

This drastic step was taken by the government in an effort to check the outflow of the country's rapidly dwindling gold holdings.

Twenty thousand iron postal boxes and an unestimated number of manholes and iron telephone poles will be the first to be sacrificed. They are to be replaced by concrete and porcelain products, of which Japan has a plentiful supply. It is expected, however, that at least two years will be required before a sufficient number of substitutes can be manufactured to take the place of the iron products which will be sent to the scrap heap.

They Really Mean It.

Next to go after the postal boxes and telephone posts will be the iron fences in the public parks. Unlike in the United States, Japanese municipal officials are not satisfied merely with putting up signs asking the public to keep off the grass.

They have made it a practice to erect high iron fences around the parks and have strung iron chains around lawns and other sections where trespassing was not desired.

These fences have been an eyesore and it is not without some satisfaction that the public looks forward to having them removed. There are enough fences and chains in Hibiya park, Tokio, it is said, to build an ocean-going steamship.

Make Radio Appeal.

The government is broadcasting an appeal for contributions of iron and steel ash trays and charcoal braziers with which most Japanese heat their homes. It has promised to replace these with porcelain ware.

As fast as the scrap is smelted it is gobbled up by the industries. One of the hungriest is the shipyards. Japan today has 4,500,000 tons of commercial ships of over 1,000 tons afloat. The navy minister during questioning in the diet [parliament] said the government intends to double this fleet during the very near future. Last year Japan outstripped England in ship building.

Whether, in view of her serious shortage of iron, Japan can go through with her present program is a matter of much conjecture. Optimistic government officials and industrialists boast that in five years Japan will be getting so much iron out of Manchukuo and China that she will not need to import a ton of scrap from western countries.

Call It Wishful Thinking.

Neutral observers claim this is wishful thinking of the same category as the predictions of foes that Japan could not carry on the war in China for six months.

Besides iron Japan is in need of rubber. It is reported that in the Ford and General Motors assembly plants here cars frequently cannot be put out on the streets because of lack of tires. In some cases buyers in a hurry bring their own tires. Worn-out tires are no longer thrown into the junk pile. They are recoated much in the manner that a worn-out shoe is resoled.

The government also has cut down the rubber allotment for the manufacture of sporting goods to a small fraction of the normal demand. The biggest sufferers are tennis players. The output of tennis balls has been restricted to 34,800 a month.

Tax on Profits.

To increase revenues the government will tax profits and will raise the levies on a long list of commodities. Among goods to be taxed anew are sugar, on which the levy will be about 50 cents per 100 pounds; stamps, on which it will be about a cent for those worth more than $1 and 10 cents for those worth more than $3.

The profit dividend rates will be fixed at 10 per cent for dividends between 7 and 10 per cent and a straight 15 per cent for all dividends of more than 10 per cent.

Among the commodities on which taxes will be increased are watches, stationery, hats, shoes, suitcases and trunks, toys, sporting goods, electric and gas appliances, furniture, textiles, cameras, film, fruits, phonograph records, passenger automobiles, and electric fans.

Amusement taxes will be levied upon restaurants, hotels, and all assembly places charging admission. The rate will be 10 per cent of the amusement or drinking and eating expenses. Geisha girls will be charged 20 per cent of their fees. All charges below $1.75, however, will be exempted.

EIGHT HOUR LAW.

Chicago, April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What is the reading of the Illinois women's labor law? How many hours per day; per week? Especially as applied to restaurants? H. P.

The new eight hour law, based on the old ten hour law, reads as follows [new wording capitalized]:

"No female shall be employed in any mechanical or mercantile establishment or factory or laundry or hotel or restaurant or BARBER SHOP OR BEAUTY PARLOR or telegraph or telephone establishment or office thereof or any place of amusement or by any person, firm or corporation engaged in any express or transportation or public utility business or by any common carrier or in any public OR PRIVATE institution OR OFFICE THEREOF, incorporated or unincorporated in this state more than EIGHT hours during any one day."

The Department of Labor, 205 W. Wacker drive, is provisionally interpreting "private institution" as an asylum, charity, college etc., owned or operated by private individuals as distinguished from one operated by the state. The act excepts, with certain qualifications, nurses, phone, and telegraph operators with sleeping facilities, emergency operation of public utilities, canning establishments in season, nonmercantile long day staggered with a short day, and mercantile nine hour day or fifty-four hour week for not over four weeks per year.

THE BENNY SMUGGLING CASE.

Chicago, April 4.—Jack Benny, after pleading guilty of smuggling, was let off with a fine of less than one week's salary. Here's a man making $12,000 a week who stoops to smuggling to save $731. Because he is a prominent man and something of a public idol the just sentence of a year and a day in jail is suspended and he is fined $10,000.

Translate the case into terms of a man making, say, $30 a week. Probably he never would have the money to go to Europe in the first place, but suppose he won such a chance in a contest. Suppose that while there he bought luxuries on which there was a duty due of approximately $2; would he be stupid enough to try to cheat the government out of a justly earned $2? If he were that stupid it would be said that he deserved a short jail term or at least a fine of over $25 and he would probably get it. F. H.

SMOKE FROM THE I. C.

Chicago, April 5.—My morning TRIBUNE confirms rumor of the reelection of Mayor Kelly and also tells me of the many worth while plans he has. There is one feature, though, that apparently has escaped him. I have in mind the smoke and soot poured into the loop by the trains operating on the Illinois Central tracks on the lake front. The greatest howl goes up to the heavens when a manufacturer, the owner of an apartment building, etc., permits smoke to belch from the chimneys of his plant or building, but nary a word on the smoke pouring from the stacks of engines on the lake front. Wasn't it in 1932 a decision was given in one of the higher courts making it obligatory for the electrifying of rolling stock on the lake front? Why isn't it enforced?

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR EUROPE.

Chicago, April 4.—I see that many Polish organizations are asking for donations from the Polish people and some are donating a day's pay for the help in defense of Poland.

I am American born on July 4. my parents were both born in Poland, then under German rule. I am opposed to any nationality donating any money for any European country. I feel that we make our living in the good old United States and should be American. If any soliciting is done let's do it for the poor families in the United States.

I say if the Poles can help Poland then others have the right to the same privilege for their fatherland. T. K.

NO THIRD TERM NOW.

Chicago, April 5.—Tuesday night was a bad night for our President. With the Chicago election returns vanished his last cherished hope for a third term. Roosevelt not only wanted that third term but would have insisted upon it if he thought that he could win.

The people have spoken. The trend is toward sane government. The great humanitarian will now gracefully retire to an advisory position helping to name the unfortunate Democrat who will be slaughtered in the fall of 1940.

THE DIVORCE COURTS.

Chicago, March 29.—In THE TRIBUNE last week I read the divorce courts were way behind with their divorce cases. It seems to me if the courts would stop giving the women such grand breaks it would clean up lots of the cases in the future. Every day there is a picture in the paper of some woman who has, you might say, cleaned up on some man.

Why is it there is never a picture of a report of a man getting the break.

I don't think the courts know their women very well.

THE MILWAUKEE BAKERY STRIKE.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 3—In your paper of March 31 I noticed an article by Fred Graff in which he states that in the controversy at the Carpenter Baking company secondary boycotting was resorted to. I would like to advise you that this is an absolute falsehood. At no time during this controversy was there any secondary boycott; at no time was there mass picketing, and at no time were the customers or the employés of the Carpenter Baking company interfered with. In addition to this, a state senator and an assemblyman, both of the Republican party, had a signed and sealed statement from me, as secretary-treasurer of the Auto Truck Drivers' Joint council, No. 50, that if Mr. Carpenter cared to reopen his plant, there would be no mass picketing, no interference with customers or employés, and no picketing of stores handling Carpenter products. The only picketing that was done was in front of the plant by a group of bakery sales drivers from other bakeries and by the truck drivers' officials. This can be proved by the records of the Milwaukee police department. In fact, every one in Wisconsin knows, and your correspondent should know, that the only reason the Carpenter Baking company was closed was in order to get special legislation passed in Madison.

If you are a man you'll print this correction; if you are a gentleman you will add an apology; if you are an "unreconstructed" Anglophile you will do neither, as Englishmen and their stooges are born with the high privilege granted by their French-Norman masters, of the right to insult everybody else on earth, and also of not being obliged to keep faith [unless forced to]. AGENTS HUNTING SLAIN OUTLAW'S GUN-GIRL WIDOW

Want Her for Kidnapings and Robberies.

St. Louis, Mo., April 7.—[Special.]—Federal agents and local police were conducting a hunt here tonight for the young gun girl widow of Benny Dickson, midwestern desperado slain by G-men here last night.

Authorities said the girl, Estelle Dickson, a slim blonde of 17, is wanted just as badly as her husband was. She is alleged to have taken an active part with him in a long list of crimes headed by three kidnapings and two bank robberies.

A lock of blonde hair, supposedly Estelle's, was found in Dickson's pocket last night after he had been shot down by federal agents as he emerged from a small hamburger stand. He was reaching toward his belt, where he carried two heavy revolvers and a hunting knife, when the officers' bullets cut him down.

Trail Lost in Chicago.

The outlaw couple's trail had been lost in Chicago four months ago after a crime foray through nearby states. They kidnaped three persons, fought off Michigan police, stole two cars, and then dumped their three prisoners at Griffith, Ind., in a dash around the southern shore of Lake Michigan.

Both of the young criminals possessed a strange mixture of characteristics. Dickson wrote poetry and, it is said, did not smoke or drink. He was an amateur boxer, having appeared as a welterweight last summer in Chicago.

Estelle was described as of the distinctively feminine type, though her expertness with firearms surpassed that of her bandit husband.

Dickson's father, James Dickson, is a chemistry instructor in the Topeka High school. He and another son, Darwin, said they would keep the news of Benny's death from his mother, who is in poor health.

"We didn't expect to see Benny alive again," Darwin said. "We knew he was hunted throughout the country and we expected he would be slain."

Praised by Mother-in-Law.

Estelle's mother, Mrs. Lester Redenbaugh, in Topeka, Kas., said Dickson presented a fine appearance.

"He didn't drink and he didn't smoke," she said. "Why, he didn't even use a profane word."

Mrs. Redenbaugh said she had not heard from her daughter since last Thanksgiving day when she and Dickson fled from Topeka police after being trapped in a tourist camp near the Kansas capital.

Residents of Lake Benton, a southwestern Minnesota community of 900, knew Dickson and his wife well. Dickson, who was 27, had been spending his summers there since he was a boy. Last year Estelle Redenbaugh, his girl friend, visited frequently at the small cottage where Dickson spent the summer with his mother.

INSURANCE PLOT WITNESS TELLS DEATH WARNING

Agent Says He Spurned $1,500 Bribe.

A witness against two brothers in an insurance fraud case testified yesterday in the United States District court that one of the brothers offered him a $1,500 bribe to forget his suspicions and then threatened him with death when he refused to accept.

The witness was A. J. Friedman, 4867 North Rockwell street, an agent for the Security Mutual Life Insurance company. The company is contesting payment of $20,000 on two policies in the name of Frank Obartuch on the ground that his sons, Michael, an attorney, and Henry, an undertaker, had them issued by fraud.

Agent Reveals Suspicions.

Friedman sold the policies. He testified that after the death of the father on Oct. 24, 1934, he had made a deposition indicating his suspicions of fraud. This came to Michael's attention.

"In November, 1938," Friedman said, "I met Michael by appointment in the La Salle Hotel." He told me he wanted me to be a good witness when this case came to trial.

"I told him I would tell the truth. Then he told me that he would pay me $1,500 to be a good witness for him. I refused.

"Some time after that Michael stepped up to me in the lobby of a building at 188 West Randolph street. He said: 'Friedman, does your company sell accident or health insurance?' I answered that it did. Then Michael said: 'Friedman, I'm advising you to take out lots of accident and health insurance, because you'll be dead before you can come to court to testify in that case.'"

Son Cited for Contempt.

Friedman said this threat was reported to Federal Judge John P. Barnes, who cited Michael Obartuch for contempt. The action was then transferred to Judge Philip L. Sullivan, who is hearing the fraud case without a jury. The contempt case is pending before Judge Sullivan.

Friedman said that Michael and Henry Obartuch and Mrs. Julia Obartuck, wife of Frank and beneficiary of both policies, were present when the first application for $10,000 worth of insurance was made in 1931. At that time, Friedman said, they heard Henry say that the age of the father was 50, when in fact it was 61. The elder Obartuck was not present.

The company contends that a younger man was substituted for Obartuch when the examination was given. Earlier in the trial Bourland charged that the sons had duped their father out of his property and forced him to spend the last days of his life in a squalid room without even a bed to sleep on.

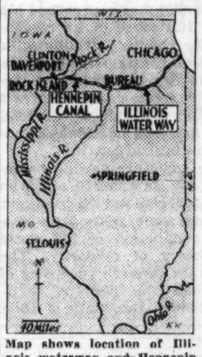
BEGIN CAMPAIGN FOR REOPENING HENNEPIN CANAL

Davenport, Ia., April 7.—[Special.]—Steps for reopening to traffic the Hennepin canal, waterway link between Chicago and the upper Mississippi, were taken today at a meeting of the Upper Mississippi Valley association here.



Map shows location of Illinois waterway and Hennepin canal.

The association agreed on two objectives for restoring the canal, which runs from the Illinois river at Bureau to the Rock river at a point near the Mississippi and east of Rock Island. The first step will be the presentation of a petition for a rehearing before the house rivers and harbors committee. The house committee, acting on the recommendation of army engineers at Rock Island, had refused further appropriations for the waterway. The second objective will be the reconstruction of the canal when funds become available.

Halleck W. Seaman of Clinton, who heads the association, described the report submitted by the army engineers on the canal as a grave mistake.

Blame Mistaken Signal for Summit Train Crash

Misunderstood signals were blamed yesterday by a coroner's jury for the head-on crash of two Baltimore and Ohio trains March 31 which caused the death of Engineer Frank L. Barbillion of Garrett, Ind. The accident occurred in Summit. After hearing testimony from John Vukovich, yards towerman, that he had ordered one train to remain on the siding, the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death. The inquest was directed by Deputy Coroner Zeno Kopecky.

POLICEMEN FIND SUSPECT HAS LOT TO TALK ABOUT

Clarence Behounek.

Clarence Behounek, 21 years old, promised last March to make restitution when he was arraigned in Felony court on a confidence game charge. The case was continued to April 17.

Thursday night Policemen Fred Mundt and James Raleigh of the Shakespeare avenue station stopped him at Harding and Belmont avenues because the car he was driving had no license plates. They called the salesroom where he bought the car and found he had given a bogus check for $10 as down payment. Soon Behounek admitted that he had been placed on probation three years ago for burglary, had narrowly escaped prosecution in Berwyn last October on a similar charge, and that recently he had stolen a WPA check from his father and cashed it. He also mentioned passing nine other bad checks, and thefts from about 100 mailboxes.

Police said he would be turned over to federal authorities Monday.

4 DAMAGE SUIT JURORS ANSWER CONTEMPT COUNT

Four members of a Superior court jury that awarded damages of $35,000 against the Yellow Cab company in a personal injury suit appeared yesterday before Judge E. I. Frankhauser to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court.

The jurors are George Kerstein, 2739 South Keeler avenue; John Kostak, 5833 Navarre avenue; Henry Ciechanowski, 5130 Belden avenue, and Peter Bocian, 2652 North Mango avenue. Last Nov. 3 the jury on which they served returned the verdict for Mrs. Ruth G. Thrasher of Woodstock, McHenry county, for injuries suffered when she was struck by a cab.

Benjamin Samuels, attorney and vice president of the cab company, charged the four jurors answered falsely when they denied during examination that they or members of their families ever had been involved in litigation in a personal injury accident.

Samuels said no attempt would be made to reopen Mrs. Thrasher's suit. He said his company had paid her a settlement of $22,500. Judge Frankhauser continued the hearing until next Friday.

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER.

Central police sought the identity of a man about 45 years old whose body was taken from the river yesterday near the Monroe street bridge.

FREE ENTERPRISE U. S. SALVATION, SAYS PETTENGILL

The future of the United States depends upon free enterprise without government interference, Samuel B. Pettengill, former Democratic congressman from Indiana, said yesterday. He spoke at a luncheon of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman.

"You cannot save free government unless you save free enterprise," he said. "When government takes control of economic destiny, the bill of rights and free elections cannot and do not survive."

Pettengill urged the American middle class to protect itself from being liquidated through the actions of the present administration.

4 ROBBERS ADMIT FATAL BEATING; IMPLICATE FIFTH

Four young colored men confessed yesterday to Capt. John Cartan of the Cottage Grove police that they were the robbers who beat Thomas Marleau, 11950 Normal avenue, when they took $1.50 from him on March 7. Marleau, who was 33 years old, died Monday as a result of the beating.

Capt. Cartan said a fifth person implicated in the crime is being sought. Those held and the addresses they gave police are Ronnie Jones, 18, of 3036 Indiana avenue; James Lee, 18, no address; Earl Hargrove, 18, of 3004 Prairie avenue, and Fred Brown, 16, of 3638 South Wabash avenue. Each, Capt. Cartan said, tried to blame the others for the beating of Marleau.

1,200 FROLICKING CHILDREN LAUNCH EGG HUNT SEASON

Parks to Be Easter Hosts to 20,000 Today.

Chicago's Easter egg hunting season had a rousing start yesterday. So many boys and girls went hunting eggs that there weren't enough to go around.

Twelve hundred children gathered in Chase park, at Leland and Ashland avenues, and searched through the grass and shrubbery. But only 1,000 colored eggs had been provided.

"We miscalculated," said Park Director John Dolce, who supervised the hunt. "The boys and girls who decorated the eggs Thursday thought 1,000 were plenty. We just had a bigger attendance than we counted on. But we hurriedly got several hundred chocolate eggs, and so we had enough for everybody."

20,000 to Hunt Eggs Today.

Today there will be hunts in at least a dozen other parks, and it is expected that 20,000 youngsters will participate. About 8,000 real eggs and 10,000 candy eggs will be hidden for them.

Ridge park, at 96th street and Longwood drive, will celebrate Children's day at 2 p. m. today with a hunt, marionette show, and other entertainment. But none of these attractions is the one that has Director Ralph Morgan anticipating a record breaking crowd.

James Tracey, one of the park hands, was working over the baseball field yesterday when, near home plate, his shovel scooped up a nest of four bunnies. According to Engineer Gerald Ryan, who claims to be an authority on such matters, they're only two days old. Hundreds of children already have visited the pets in their nursery adjacent to the boiler room.

Other Hunts Scheduled.

Other parks that will hold egg hunts at 2 p. m. today are Armour Square, Shields avenue and 33d streets; Sauganash, 5901 North Kostner avenue; Avondale, 3515 School street; Mayfair, 4550 Sunnyside avenue; Shabbona, 6935 Addison street, and Marquette, 67th street and Kedzie avenue.

In Stanton park, at Vine street and Evergreen avenue, the search will begin at 10 a. m.; in Christ Jensen, 3700 Wilson avenue, at 1 p. m., and in Cornell Square, at 3. Portage park, at 4100 North Long avenue, will open its gates to the egg hunters at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, and at 4 p. m. Monday there will be an egg hunt in Edison park, 6755 Northwest highway.

Divorce Held Up

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Evelyn Ward, whose decree was held up. Her husband, Frederick E. Ward, told the court he had not been notified of hearing.

Gregory Ward, 14 months old, whose parents judge is trying to reconcile.

Judge Rudolph Desort indicated last Wednesday he would grant a divorce to Mrs. Evelyn Ward of Newark, N. J., from Frederick E. Ward of 5038 Adams street on a charge of cruelty.

Yesterday Ward appeared in court with his attorney, Harry X. Cole, to ask that the judge withhold signing the divorce decree and grant a new hearing on the case. Ward charged that although he had been told when his wife filed suit for divorce last December he was not notified of the hearing on Wednesday.

Ward said his wife had left last July 26 for a visit with her mother in Newark, taking their infant son, Gregory, with her, and that subsequently he had received a letter from his wife telling of her love for him. He said her suit for divorce came as a surprise. Judge Desort suggested the couple attempt a reconciliation and set Tuesday for a hearing on Ward's request.

LEAPER POINTED OUT AS BANDIT BY A WOMAN VICTIM

John Sands, 31 years old, an ex-convict, who leaped through the second story window of his apartment at 4126 Lake Park avenue when three detectives walked in Thursday, was identified yesterday as a robber. Miss Alice Beyer, 2331 Commonwealth avenue, said he was the man who held her up on 55th street near Kenwood avenue Thursday and took her automobile, a fur coat, and $65. The car was recovered.

"I'll never forget that glass eye!" Miss Beyer said when Sands was brought before her.

Detectives Russell Richards, Gerald Pierce, and Frank Bartosh of the stolen auto section captured Sands after he leaped from the window. They had intended to question him about the theft of his aunt's car two weeks ago. His record, dating to 1923, includes eight years in the penitentiary for the attempted murder of an Elgin policeman. He was released six months ago. Police said other robbery victims would view Sands.

VETERAN AIR LINE FLYER TO TAKE FACTORY BERTH

Dean Smith, veteran air line flyer, yesterday obtained leave of absence from American Airlines to become flight engineer with the Curtiss Airplane company at St. Louis, Mo. Smith will work with the new Curtiss twin-engined 33 passenger stratoliner now being completed there. When it is finished Smith will demonstrate it in flight.

His leave begins today in Newark, N. J., his home base. Smith, a former army flyer, began flying mail in 1919. He flew with the army and postoffice until 1927. In 1928 and 1929 he was in Little America with the Byrd antartic expedition, and was given the congressional medal.

In 1933 he won the distinguished flying cross by finding a wrecked airliner wrecked in the New York mountains. He was given the Harmon trophy, awarded annually to a distinguished pilot, in 1936.

WOMAN, TRAPPED INSIDE ELEVATOR BY BLAZE, FREED

Mrs. Katherine Ryan, 55 years old, manager of an apartment building at 3933 Clarendon avenue, spent an unpleasant few minutes late yesterday afternoon. She was trapped in an elevator between the third and fourth floors when a fire in the basement burned through the elevator's power line. As the smoke swirled up around her, Mrs Ryan screamed lustily. Her cries were heard by Daniel Bourne, 23, an employé, who forced the shaft door open and released her. Mrs. Ryan said she was going to the top floor of the seven story building to warn tenants, all of whom soon fled to the street. Damage was estimated at several hundred dollars by Acting Marshal Alvin Brandt of the 3d division. He blamed the blaze on sparks from an incinerator.

2 HELD TO JURY IN CAR THEFTS.

Edward Czeck, 2648 21st street, and Frank Domiski, 2008 21st place, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $5,000 each by Judge Jay A. Schiller in Automobile court yesterday on charges of automobile theft.

STATUTE PASSED AT UNION BEHEST IS A BOOMERANG

Closed Shop Contract Hit by California Court.

San Francisco, Cal., April 7.—[Special.]—A California law designed to benefit labor unions proved a boomerang against them today. In a decision which is expected to have far reaching effects on labor relations in this strike harassed state, the California District Court of Appeals ruled that closed shop contracts between unions and employers are contrary to public policy.

The court based its ruling on a statute enacted by the state legislature at the behest of labor unions in 1933. This statute declared it contrary to public policy for employés to sign a contract with employers promising to join or to remain members of a particular labor organization. Such a contract, when the labor organization is a company union, is known in labor circles as a "yellow dog" contract.

Union Attorneys Overruled.

Union attorneys, in their arguments before the Court of Appeals, said the California statute was intended to prevent company union contracts only. However, the court held that there was nothing in the language of the law to limit its application to company unions.

The court's ruling was handed down in three similar cases. Each case involved picketing to enforce closed shop demands. The court declared in effect that peaceful picketing for illegal purposes—such as to enforce closed shop demands—was unlawful.

The opinion was written by Justice John T. Nourse and concurred in by Justices George R. Sturtevant and Homer Spance.

Explains Idea of Rights.

"We concede no power to any individual or group," the opinion stated, "to determine by rule or decree what the constitutional rights of others shall be. We fully accede to the arguments of the respondents [the union] of their constitutional rights of free speech and free assembly, but we do not concede that in the exercise of these rights they may deny or destroy rights of any other individual which he enjoys under the same constitutional grants."

In ruling on the picketing issue the court illustrated the point that peaceful picketing is not lawful for illegal purposes by citing the possibility of a business man's picketing a competitor whom he had accused of unlawful labor practices.

Injunctions Upheld.

In one of the cases on which it ruled today the court held that nonunion auto salesmen were entitled to an injunction against the picketing of the company for which they worked by union salesmen. In the second case the court upheld an injunction prohibiting a warehouse men's union from picketing a wholesale grocery to obtain a closed shop contract. In the third case the court affirmed a restraining order forbidding the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers' union to picket a market for the purpose of inducing the market's butchers to join a union.

The three unions involved, all members of the A. F. of L., said they would appeal the ruling to the state Supreme court.

POPE TAKES PART IN GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE AT ROME

Bells Ring Joy Today, Holy Saturday.

ROME, April 7.—(AP)—Solemn church ceremonies commemorating Christ's death on the cross climaxed Rome's Good Friday observances tonight.

In St. Peter's, Cardinal Federico Tedeschini, archpriest of the basilica, conducted the "Miserere" and "Tenebræ" mourning services. At their conclusion, priests banged their prayer books on the kneeling benches, symbolizing the confusion of nature at the Savior's passing.

Pope at Private Chapel.

Pope Pius XII, accompanied by a few high ranking prelates, attended services in his private chapel.

In all churches dedicated to the Virgin Mary, including Santa Maria del Popolo, titular church of Cardinal George Mundelein of Chicago "Maria Desolta" services were held. These consisted of sermons dedicated to the grief of the Virgin Mother as she stood at the foot of the cross.

Roman streets, like those of other Italian cities, were quiet, all places of public entertainment being closed.

Many an Italian community observed Good Friday by presenting a traditional passion play in which was enacted the passion and death of Christ.

Bells Ring Again Today.

Tomorrow, Holy Saturday, church bells which have been silent since yesterday morning will ring once more, heralding the joyous news of the resurrection.

Then the mourning draperies will be stripped from holy images in the churches, candles will be relighted, and the "Gloria in Excelsis" will be sung to signify the close of the mourning period.

EXPLOSION KILLS WORKER.

East St. Louis, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—Volatile gas exploded by a spark in an electric switch box today caused the death of one man and serious injury of another in a Standard Oil company storage plant here. John Reynolds, 50 years old, was killed and R. L. Butts, 58, lost an arm and received head injuries when Reynolds threw a switch on a barrel washing machine.

NEARLY 500,000 VISIT MADRID'S CHURCHES IN DAY

MADRID, April 7.—(AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Roman Catholics worshiped in Madrid's churches today.

The throngs made the traditional visits to the Stations of the Cross in commemoration of Christ's way. Their number surpassed the estimated 400,000 worshipers of yesterday.

Father Casimiro Morcillo, vicar general of the Madrid-Alcala bishopric, said the faithful were giving all they could afford to restore approximately 300 ruined churches in Madrid province.

Ex-Film Actress Missing Since March 30, Is Found

Los Angeles, Cal., April 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary McIvor Desmond, 38 years old, former screen actress who had been missing from her home since March 30[was found tonight and taken to a Hollywood hospital. Mrs. Desmond appeared to be suffering from overexertion and was wandering in a daze. She told doctors she had spent much of her time walking the streets. Her husband, William Desmond, 61, star of silent films, took her home after she was given medical treatment.

BOOKS

Fantastic Folk People Pages of a Deft Tale

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Midas Touch," by Margaret Kennedy. [Random House, $2.50.] Published Monday.

The author of "The Constant Nymph" has again chosen fantastic characters to people her deft pages, but in "The Midas Touch" they are more essentially fantastic than essentially endearing and irresistible as the members of "Sanger's Circus" were.

They include a mysterious young man, born in China to Welsh missionary parents, whose paternity is never doubtful to the reader; a fantastically rich man who terrifies every one he comes into contact with and manages to touch every character in the book malevolently; his silly, sensuous wife and his weak son, and a friend of the wife from the midlands whose emotional upheaval is as real as the wife's is unreal.

Others are a highly amusing, raffish fortune teller whose one true foresight of the future wreaks havoc; her son, uncomfortably in Oxford and in love with a gentleman classmate's sister, and the fortune teller's daughter whose wearing, poorly paid job sharpens her tongue for family conversation.

The author twists all their fates into a pattern as intricate as a jigsaw puzzle. The component parts of "The Midas Touch" are mostly amusing, sometimes downright funny, sometimes poignant. The book is written with distinction and charm. There is subtlety, keenness of observation, and satire—Evan Jones' first impressions of London are subtler and funnier than "With Malice Toward Some." But somehow, despite the goodness of its parts, the completed book makes you think of an unskilfully baked custard. It wheys.

Cowboy Life, Dressed Up

"Jubal Troop," by Paul I. Wellman. [Carrick & Evans, $2.75.] Published a week ago Friday.

"Jubal Troop" is wild western fiction in a dinner jacket. In it the thrills of cowboy life are dressed up enough to appear at any literary banquet. It is ostensibly the life story of a cowpuncher who becomes a major figure in the oil industry, but it is really a fictionized picture of life on the range and in the prospector's lone digging.

Mr. Wellman once was a cowpuncher himself [before he became an editorial writer on the Kansas City Star] and there is poignant nostalgia in his romantic tale.

Jubal Troop is a gangling lad of 18 as the book opens, alone, except for a claybank pony under him, and broke. Before the story closes he is again alone and broke, although in between oil wells have bathed him in gold, he has been handled harshly by fate, he has handled his fellow men crushingly, and he has known love and lost it.

But Jubal Troop as a person is the least interesting part of this saga. In fact, Jubal Troop as a person never really comes alive. But his background, the whole panorama of cowpunching, the monotony of the long rides, the tense thrill of the roundups do come alive, as do the strange solitary months of prospecting, the days when a man with a pick and a pan could dig up a piece of earth, wash it in a brook, and have gold for his trouble.

"Jubal Troop" is as different from the mine run of westerns as a relief map is from a two dimensional road map.

Convincing Reality Here

"Flower of Smoke," by Felicia Gizycka. [Scribners, $2.50.] Published Monday.

The heroine has just returned to Austria, the land of her birth, as "Flower of Smoke" opens. Twenty years before as a child she had watched her handsome father go off eagerly to the war, a Von Goenigen, a "power" whom God couldn't possibly, but did, let be killed. Then she had found her little hand held belligerently and tightly by the sister of her dead American mother and had been whisked away from the beloved land of her childhood to a strange country.

What Virginia von Goenigen made of her life is the theme of "Flower of Smoke"—how deeply she gave of her love to a husband whose great fault was that he didn't love her and whose greater was that he didn't take the trouble to know her. The groping, innocent, blundering cruelty of two young unmated creatures bound in marriage is here done with sureness and conviction. Indeed, the whole book has a certain convincing reality.

Perhaps the dialog has a good deal to do with its reality. Its people talk the way that kind of people talk, not like stock characters. They do many of the things that characters in other books have done—take lovers, or don't take them; "dress" and go to New York night clubs, or "don't dress" and go to little table d'hôtes around the corner; live in drafty penthouses, or get away from it all by going to Paris.

The things they do may be like fragile Easter eggs whose insides have been carefully blown out and whose surfaces have been gayly painted to simulate faces, but they themselves are solidly real, not important as people nor particularly endearing or fascinating, but valid.

Embassy Reminiscences

"Miss Bax of the Embassy," by Emily Bax. [Houghton-Mifflin, $3.] Published Tuesday.

Emily Bax was the first [and perhaps the only] English woman ever to be employed as a secretary in the American embassy in London. Toward the end of her reminiscences on the embassy [from 1902 to 1914] she says in telling of her return last year to revive her memories: "It didn't seem real any more. Too much has happened since, to me and to the world."

That, almost more than its pleasant and amusing anecdotes, its simple, direct pictures of many public figures, is what gives this book its special interest. For it is indeed a panorama of something that doesn't exist any more. Some of its fractional parts do, of course. There are still many of the social furbelows which have to be carefully starched and meticulously ironed into shape by the embassy.

There is still, and perhaps always will be, the demanding American visitor who talks indiscreetly and makes in a day enough enmity to keep the whole staf busy for weeks poulticing bruised British feelings. They used to call such visitors "hot potatoes" in Miss Bax's day, and William Jennings Bryan was one of the hottest of them.

There must still be a pretty to-do for the American embassy when a king is crowned, and determined women are still clamoring to be presented at court or wanting to be admitted to the royal enclosure at Ascot. But whatever the permanence of some of its parts, the whole picture today can have little resemblance to the picture in Miss Bax's day, which is a conversation piece of a leisurely, happy, diplomatic family group, with the ambassador as a benign papa.

Modern Ghost Story, Minus Spooks, Tells a Gentle and Tender Tragedy

"Tryst," by Elswyth Thane. [Harcourt Brace, $2.50.]

Reserve a place for "Tryst" among the best of the modern ghost stories—but not a place on the horror shelf. For Elswyth Thane, who is the wife of William Beebe, has fashioned a gentle, tender little tragedy without the aid of stock ghost props, contriving her supernatural effects entirely in the genteel tradition.

Elswyth Thane.

The story tells of the infatuation of an 18 year old girl for the absent occupant of a room on the top floor of an English country home which her father has rented for a few months. Hilary Shenstone, the boy who had lived in the room, had been rushed to India as a British secret agent, and had left so hurriedly that his room was in the same comfortable state it had been when he lived in it—pipes, books, butterfly collection, clothes just as he had left them.

Sabrina finds it the most charming room in the old manor. Hilary had felt the same way about it, and after he is killed in the Indian hills his shade returns and takes up residence again. Sabrina knows he is there, but it is not a ghastly knowledge. She cannot see, but she feels his presence. This situation could easily be cheapened and made absurd by a less competent writer than Miss Thane, and the fact that it remains credible is a tribute to her skill and fine imagination. P. W.

Life Story of Einstein

"Albert Einstein, Maker of Universes," by H. Gordon Garbedian. [Funk & Wagnalls, $3.75.]

The life story of a man of Albert Einstein's stature must, of necessity, be fascinating and stimulating. H. Gordon Garbedian has approached his task with a full sense of its responsibilities. The chapters dealing with the theories of Einstein have a simplicity and clarity that point the layman to their great significance and indicate to him the values they hold as key to a new and harmonized conception of natural order.

There is a smoothly flowing narrative of the shy Jewish student who at the age of 26 confounded the great intellects and some years later captured the imagination of the world with his theory of relativity. The story continues through the years of triumph when the heavens themselves proclaimed the truth of theories propounded years before and a humble man received the homage of the world.

On through the era of oppression the tale goes, depicting the change of an abstract scientist to a man of action driving himself into the arduous field of world affairs in behalf of an oppressed people. In none of these fields does the biographer forget the small, tender touches that emphasize the shy, gentle humanity of his subject. L. W.

A Fascinating Adventure

"Traitor's Way," by Bruce Hamilton. [Bobbs Merrill, $2.]

Noel Mason seems to have had better luck—or perhaps, a more indulgent author—in escaping Dartmoor prison, England, than did poor Selden. It will be remembered that Selden's author was one Arthur Conan Doyle, who permitted the hound of the Baskervilles to scare him over a cliff to his death. Mr. Mason is taken to the bosom of the home secretary and gets a pardon, plus £5,000.

If you are a Fascist this book will make you very angry. If you are a communist it will make you angrier still. If you don't give a whoop for either of these superstitions you will find a fascinating mystery adventure story that can keep you up until time to have breakfast. C. L.

A Delightful Portrayal

"Star at Noon," by Louise Redfield Peattie. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.]

Few novels have been written about fat women. Mrs. Peattie takes up her pen in their defense and makes of buxom Emma a person as appealing as she is bulky. For Emma has subtlety and great understanding and is, besides, gentle, kindly, and an excellent housekeeper.

She is the second wife of Leo Walden, a biologist, and it is her fate to love him with an affection he does not return, for at heart he is still the slave of his first wife, the lovely Bliss. But Bliss had divorced him many years ago, and he had seen neither her nor their daughter since.

Complications arise when Leo asks this daughter, Andrea, to visit and when she falls in love with Emma's son, Hal. In the end the Walden home is kept intact because of Emma, and Bliss once more retires into the shadows of Leo's memories of her. The author describes the emotions of each of her characters in such minute detail that at times the reader has the taut feeling that comes from too long a turn at a microscope.

The most enjoyable parts of the book are the many vivid descriptions of the California home of the Waldens in the Santa Ynez mountains. "Star at Noon" will be remembered for this and for Emma. E. W.

A Present Day Parallel

"On the Frontier," a melodrama, by W. H. Auden and Christopher Isherwood. [Random, $1.75.]

If Hitler had never lived this would be merely a Graustarkian melodrama with some unpleasant social implications and some amusing satires on government and the ways of international finance and politics. But because one of the characters, the Leader, is almost a caricature of Hitler, it is tempting to identify his nation, Westland, and its rival, Ostnia, and their war with some current events and forces in Europe.

Its prose and verse are from the pens of two of England's cleverest young poets.

MYSTERY!!

Novel in Verse Uses a Difficult Technique Ably

BY RUSSELL MAC FALL.

"Each to the Other," a novel in verse, by Christopher La Farge. [Coward-McCann, $2.75.] Joint April Book of the Month club choice.

The writer of a novel in verse invites comparison both with novels in prose and with narrative poetry. But, because he has undertaken a task more difficult than either, he cannot properly be judged solely as poet or as a spinner of tales.

Christopher La Farge.

Christopher La Farge is competent as both, and the uncommon form he has chosen for his work sometimes obscures his real talent. For as poet he is tempted to soar, and as novelist he wishes to make an intricate story clear and plausible. Often his wings are clipped by the demands of story telling, and occasionally his story becomes lost in the clouds of verse.

But he has succeeded in creating characters endowed with remarkable vitality and, at his best, rises to heights of poetic insight and dramatic intensity.

Thomas Cottrell, the protagonist, emerges from youth prejudiced against marriage by his parents' unhappy example. But experience teaches him that—

O, life is grand.
It's all mixed up together, the good and bad.
You sort it out, it's a game: you lose, you win—
But never by cowardice.

And in this spirit he met Judith, and after the war's turmoils they were married. Marriage brought problems, but problems only cemented the union until, about Judith's death, he could say—

Tragedy?
No, I have loved and married and been loved,
And these are mine forever, past all death.

Chicago's Children Are Ready for Easter Celebration

Easter, like Christmas, has a religious significance, but it also means a new hat and frock, and colored eggs to such a very young lady as Nancy Fox. She will wear this cunning bonnet when she goes to church tomorrow to hear her neighbor, Ralph Gearson, sing in the choir at St. Peter's Episcopal church. These pictures were taken by Ralph's stepfather, C. M. Frank.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"West of Chicago there is no law! West of Dodge City there is no God!"

So, sadly, chanted the GOOD ELEMENT — what there was of it and there was precious little—of the new little Dodge City—Kansas—at that time, some sixty-seven years ago, the farthest west terminal of the Santa Fe railroad. . . .

Because, as was the case with most towns honored by the railroad, business and vice started to boom as soon as the last stretch of track was laid. . . . Desperadoes preyed on honest men; gamblings, killings, cattle rustling were the order of the day and no law enforcing sherif was permitted to stay in office.

"Dodge City" is a melodrama based on the early days of the Kansas town. . . . The hero, Wade Hatton, enters the scheme of things as a daring soldier of fortune. At the moment he heads a cavalcade of covered wagons and cattle. The folks in the wagons plan to settle in Dodge City. The cattle are to entrain there for eastern markets. . . . In one of the lumbering vehicles ride a lovely southern girl, Abbie, and her wild young brother—whose gun play forces Hatton to wing him in self-defense and brings about his death through a stampede of the cattle caused by the shots he has been firing. . . .

In Dodge City Hatton meets with adventure aplenty, is finally forgiven by Abbie for his encounter with her brother, against his wishes finds himself the sherif of the community, and, being the sort of a chap he is, puts a big wallop into his job and gets just as big a one out of it. . . . He is about to transfer his activities from the now spotless town of Dodge City to the whisked little new-born burg of Virginia City, Nev., as the picture closes. [With him, of course, will go Abbie.]

Mr. Flynn brings his customary uumph to the rôle of Hatton. No two ways about it, he's a fascinating feller! & & &Olivia De Havilland is a charming Abbie. . . . Bruce Cabot as chief villain and Ann Sheridan as his dance hall sweetie are excellent. They should have built up Miss Sheridan's rôle. There's an actress and a charmer! Alan Hale as Hatton's henchman is amusing. The scene where, unwittingly he crashes a ladies' purity league meeting is really funny. . . . Good cast all the way through.

The picture is all in technicolor. It's an entertaining "western" — though I have witnessed others I thought more convincing and liked better.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Take the Stand, Humphrey Bogart

Hollywood, Cal., April 7.

Q.—As I recall it, Humphrey, your dad was a New York doctor and your mother was noted as a painter of child portraits?

Humphrey Bogart.

A.—That's right, Ed. Dad was Dr. Belmont Bogart and my mother's nom de canvas was Maude Humphreys. And it was because my father was the family physician of the William A. Bradys that I got my first job. You see, we lived near each other at Riverside drive and 104th street, and young Bill, God rest his soul, and I played around together.

Q.—Through William A. Brady you got a job as an actor?

A.—No, he made me a company manager of one of his shows. It wasn't until after the war, when I got out of the navy, that he gave me a chance to act. I'll never forget the show, "Swifty."

Q.—You'll never forget the thrill of opening night?

A.—Hell, no, I don't mean that. I meant that I'd never forget what the critics said about me. That was an all-American panning. One of them said: "Mr. Bogart could not be termed mediocre. That would be an understatement." It's funny how you remember the nasty things.

Q.—You were pretty bad?

A.—That also is an understatement. I remember the look of desperation that was on John Cromwell's face—he directed the show—when he saw me in action. I had noticed in rehersal that actors didn't always look directly at each other when they read their lines, so I went to Cromwell and asked him if I could do that, look away when I talked. He stared at me and said: "And I have to direct you."

Q.—When I saw you on the Broadway stage you never played menacing parts.

A.—No, I always made my entrance carrying a tennis racquet or a baseball bat or a golf club. I was the athletic type, with my hair slicked back and wrapped in a blazer. The only line I didn't say was "Give me the ball, coach, I'll take it through." Yes, sir, I was Joe College or Joe Country Club all the time.

Q.—Then how did you switch from that type of thing to gangster rôles?

A.—It was Arthur Hopkins who was responsible. I should send him 10 per cent of my salary every week because he switched me from Joe College to Butch. He was the one who gave me the gangster rôle in "Petrified Forest" and everything that's happened has happened as a direct result of that three-dimensional gangster. Mr. Hopkins fought everybody in his office to land the job for me. He said I could do it. They said it was silly to expect a guy who carried tennis racquets to carry a machine gun and make it believable.

Q.—It was after that play that Warner's signed you for your first movie rôle?

A.—No, I'd worked out here for Fox years earlier. Winnie Sheehan signed me, but nothing happened, and when my option came up they just didn't renew it.

Q.—Did Fox bring you out for a particular rôle or just one of those general contracts?

A.—They brought me out for the lead in "The Man Who Came Back." I'd read the play and the part was actor-proof, so I figured that it was a pushover. I was so enthusiastic over it that wherever I went I'd talk about it. One night five of us were having dinner, Kenneth McKenna and some others, and, as they were all talking shop, I told them that Fox had brought me out to play that rôle.

Q.—You wanted to impress them?

A.—Sure, but instead they all fell right on the floor laughing. The same part had been promised to each one of them. That's when I started suspecting that I was in the land of the run-around.

Q.—Which one of the five got the part?

A.—They gave it to another actor.

Q.—What reaction do you get as the result of playing gangster rôles?

A.—It's a curious thing, but people really believe whatever they see on the screen if it is repeated enough. If I go into a night club, within fifteen minutes there will have been six or seven guys at the table to say hello and to assure me that if anything happens they're ready to go to bat for me. The mobsters accept a screen mobster as one of their own. The fact that I come from New York helps.

Q.—How old are you now?

A.—Thirty-nine.

Q.—What do you plan to do after you get finished acting?

A.—Well, I want to stay in pictures. I'd like to be a director. I keep my eyes open on a set and hang around that camera to find out what it's all about. I watch those directors. By the time the public gets tired of me I figure I ought to know my way around on a movie set, and I'd like to work. After all, I've had stage background and movie background.

Q.—Is there a big difference between the stage technique and movie technique?

A.—The chief distinction is that a movie director, because of the greater sums of money involved in a picture budgeted at $750,000, must be more of an executive. On the stage, where a play costs about $35,000, a director has greater latitude, if you get what I mean.

Q.—Then, as a former Broadway performer, you've become completely sold on the movies?

A.—I certainly have. There is nothing I resent so much as the digs that are taken at the movies.

Fashion Gives a Welcome to White Gloves

BY RHEA SEEGER.

After a long absence snowy white gloves have returned. Speckless beauties in all styles and lengths are needed to finish all the newest ensembles these days. . . . You'll buy them by the dozen in fabrics to assure a sufficient supply to see you through a busy week.

For dress parade you'll slide your fingers into the luxurious smoothness of fine thin kidskin, wearing them to fit smoothly, not as loosely as you would doeskins.

Dinner clothes need the casual but severely plain slip-ons if your dinner ensemble is the slinky variety. If you wear ruffled clothes you choose short decorative kidskins, with tricky little gathered cuffs or ornamentation somewhere on the backs or around the wrists. All white are smartest.

Long elbow lengths are ready for heavy satins and ball gowns of the more formal models in taffeta, printed crêpes, and bengalines. Short kidskins, especially designed to wear with taffeta and bengaline evening jackets, allow for the long fitted sleeves and the extended cuff of the jacket.

Smart and swanky are the short snow white pigskin gloves made for street and tailored suit contrasts. These are stitched for trim [in white]. Some have flat round buttons; others have snaps. Some have piped edges to the deep cut-out vent in the back, and the cuffs are as perky as a candy box frill. Some of the newest white doeskins for street or suit wear are made with the seam edges of each finger pinked in sharp points like a sugar cookie.

You'll Probably Need Wrap in Easter Parade

BY JUDITH CASS.

WEAR light wraps but do not carry umbrellas, is local weather forecaster Donnel's advice to those who plan to parade tomorrow. Our advice differs somewhat from Mr. Donnel's after reading more of his prediction and discovering that he thinks the temperature will be about 35 degrees in the morning, gradually rising to the middle forties during the day.

Wear a heavy wrap or carry a topcoat and furs if you don your spring coat or suit tomorrow morning, especially if you plan to be a part of the Easter procession on North Michigan avenue and Lake Shore drive, is the suggestion of a veteran reporter of Easter parades. For the wind from the lake usually is chilly.

About 100 of the near north side paraders will head for the little low building in East Delaware place that houses The Casino, one of the city's most excluive clubs. It had its first Easter luncheon last year and it was so successful that there is to be another this year. Cocktails will be served at 1:00 with luncheon half an hour later. There will be music by a Hungarian orchestra. There will be no formal receiving line, but Mrs. Frank Hibbard, the capable president, will be there to act as hostess.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Mrs. John L. Cochran, the house committee chairman, who made the arrangements for the party, are spending Easter on the island where Easter lilies grow in fields instead of in pots, as they do here. Mrs. Cochran and her daughter, Eleanor, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Winterbotham and their son, John, at their Bermuda home. Nancy Cochran is arriving tomorrow morning after a trip to California to spend Easter with her father.

Hold Easter Bonnet Breakfast Tomorrow.

Between five and six hundred will go to the Drake hotel tomorrow for a 1:00 o'clock Easter bonnet parade breakfast the women's division of the Salvation Army is sponsoring. So many reservations for entire families have been made for the breakfast that the committee has added a special children's contest.

Prizes ranging from a $35 hat to a corsage of orchids will go to the wearers of the six prettiest bonnets. Dennis King, the actor, heads a committee of architects and artists who will act as judges.

Among those who have taken tables for the benefit are Mrs. Frank Lagorio, who is entertaining for her daughter, Miss Carlotta Lagorio, and her fiancé, John Landreth; Mrs. Frank G. Logan, and Dr. and Mrs. Edward William White, whose party is for their daughter, Barbara, who is at home from Farmington and who will be a debutante next season. Mrs. Logan heads a committee of women who will select the best dressed man present.

Lake Forest Guild to Hold Sale Today.

A popular place on the north shore for Easter shoppers today will be a sale the Parish guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest will be conducting in a salesroom in Western avenue in the suburb. All sorts of Easter novelties and plants will be for sale. In addition there will be a puppet show for children.

Front Views and Profiles

Choreographer and Cook.

Among the Easter cooks of the town is George Balanchine, one of the greatest of living choreographers and handsome husband of Vera Zorina, who is here from New York to spend Easter with her. An apron tied about his waist, he cooked Russian Easter dishes from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 3 o'clock the following morning in their kitchenette at the Ambassador hotel, making pascha out of butter and cream cheese and sugar, and vanilla and raisins, and koulitch, the tall, sugared cake the making of which is a real culinary trick.

* * *

Balanchine loves to cook. Like most men who are good cooks, he takes infinite pains. Balanchine would not think of pouring vanilla extract from a bottle into his pascha. He bought and crushed vanilla beans himself to flavor it.

"I make the best pascha in the world," he said firmly.

* * *

Balanchine is not the only Russian we have known who likes to cook. George Voevodsky makes bortsch soup with the loving touch he gives to a Chopin prelude. He uses only the freshest, youngest vegetables and adds seasoning with a connoisseur's touch. Prince Vasili, younger son of the late Grand Duke Alexander, cooked for Chicago friends during visits here. On one occasion when both were week-end guests at the little house in Geneva Frieda Foltz had taken for the summer they both got up at dawn to collaborate on a dish and took the entire day to it. It was worthy of their solicitude, too, it was decided by the other guests when it was served at dinner.

Overheard

(from Glencoe commuter who, rushing for an early morning train, fell on the cinder path at the station and skinned her knees badly):

"Usually I catch this train by the skin of my teeth, but today I missed it by the skin of my knees."

* * *

(Bus rider to companion, after reading headline, "Europe Alarm; England Stiffening"):

"Probably rigor mortis."

* * *

Children following woman down the street and pointing to her hat, singing:

I've found my yellow basket.

Easter Composition.

The younger generation is still conservative, judging from the theme written by a pupil of the Audubon school for the English teacher, Miss Aileen Connery, on What I'd Like for Easter:

I would like for Easter to have some new clothes a hat, dress and shoe and some other clothes. . . . I like to go to church with my clothes on and see the other people with theirs on too. That is what I want for Easter.

Add Telegram Tales.

When Madeleine Johnston, Chicago mystery story writer, was in the throes of a difficult chapter in her latest book, Death Casts a Lure, her husband, Kelly Johnston, went to New York. She worked out the chapter while he was away and wanted to wire him the good news. Calling the telegraph office she dictated:

STRANGLED NURSE LAST NIGHT. CLEARS UP EVERYTHING. GETTING ALONG FINE NOW. AIN'T MURDER GRAND.

She had to explain in detail to telegraph office attendants before the message was permitted to go over the wires.

You don't suppose we'll have a white Easter, do you?

Clay Bartlett Paintings Have a Light Touch

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The exhibition of recent paintings and water colors by Clay Bartlett, which opened yesterday at the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, is a charming show. Mr. Bartlett gives us chiefly two subjects in landscape, Vermont and Italy.

He paints with a light touch in a delicately modern manner. His work is fresh and gay and often picturesque. He stresses this last quality in "From the Piazzetta—Venice" and "Christmas Morning." The gondolas and stakes in the Venetian scene have all the harmony and exotic beauty a Japanese craftsman might have found in them, teasing adjuncts to a perfect pattern.

Mr. Bartlett's Vermont is a much pleasanter country than his new Italy as glimpsed through various ports of vantage in Rome. The new Italy has an Esperanto architecture; you scarcely recognize what you thought you knew so well in its coat of insistent greens and reds and in the smooth, impersonal, flowing lines of its new buildings. For delight one turns back to America and gloats over the primitive "Newburyport Roofs," the red bearded ogre of a "Lobster Fisherman" and the exquisite detail in "Vermont Brook."

Dale Nichols, who has been particularly honored in New York and Chicago this winter, is found in a one-man show of tempera and water color paintings at the O'Brien galleries, just a step north. The pictures were made on a trip last summer and suggest Rockwell Kent to an uncanny degree. They are extravagantly perfect in coloring and design.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Last call for you Easter shoppers! Gifts you can pick up at this last minute, but won't have that last minute look of the carelessly chosen, are the following:

1. The perfume pincushion. We've mentioned it before, but it is such a little knockout we can't resist reminding you of it again. It's a cute ruffled pillow and its "pins" are big ones, the heads of blown glass, containing perfume. The pillow is a most attractive little thing, but the perfume pins are simply wonderful as a lapel decoration or even a hat ornament. The blown glass head has a colored stopper; it doesn't take a jiffy to get at your perfume. Four different perfumes in the pins, incidentally.

2. The cunning white Easter bunny, much beribboned, who hugs a little bottle of gardenia perfume. This is one of the best gardenias to be found in the country, too. Lasting, beautiful, and very true. The bunny is an inexpensive Easter remembrance.

3. The "green and yellow basket," containing two flacons of quite famous perfumes. One is a gay, sophisticated blend that has been a best seller for years. The other is a good gardenia.

4. Why not a bottle of carnation cologne? Carnation is a great favorite in spring, because it has bounce and spice as well as a sweet quality. There are lots of versions of carnation, but one of the best, to our way of thinking, is a blue carnation made by a French firm. It's highly concentrated in the cologne and an excellent daytime perfume.

5. The big Easter egg, in shocking pink, which houses a bottle of one of the perfume sensations of the year. This is rather a light scent, very blithe and interesting, that fashionable women have gone completely crazy over. In this presentation it is one of the smartest Easter gifts to be seen in town.

"A" stands for April and asparagus. April is this vegetable's best month, so eat asparagus while you may. April is a good month for fresh pineapple, too, although the fruit will be plentiful through May and June. Still, one might be thinking about strawberry and pineapple jams, to be made when April comes a little closer to May.

Freshly gathered parsley, broccoli, kale, and cauliflower contain two or three times as much vitamin C as citrus fruits, research has shown. Fresh kohlrabi, New Zealand spinach, parsnips, and cantaloupe contain as much anti-scorbutic value as does orange juice, these same studies proved. There's not a great deal of loss of vitamin in two weeks of refrigerated storage, but at room temperature the loss is great.

People today eat more lightly seasoned soups, stews, and other foods than they did ten years ago, says Restaurant Management Magazine. . . . "Stacking" pancakes is described as a great cooking evil in an article in American Cookery. The author declares that a stack of pancakes becomes steamy and starts to sog about a minute after stacking. Still I'd venture to say that one-at-a-time pancakes at breakfast wouldn't have the appeal of the "stack o' wheats" to Mr. Average American. There's something thrilling about separating three golden cakes to poke bits of butter between them, and about drowning the whole pile in a flood of sirip. It's a rite which no man should be denied.

There are about 85 or 90 calories in the average bottle of pop. They come from the 11 per cent sugar content. The same amount [1 cup] of milk contains about 170 calories, and beer, if you must know, has 250 calories to the pint.

EGGY IDEAS FOR EASTER: Frost tiny cookies and decorate the top of each with three little jelly beans in different colors. Children will like these. . . . If you're ambitious you can make attractive jellied Easter eggs for dessert by "blowing" eggs and filling them with gelatin in various colors. Use a small perfume funnel or one constructed from paper, and be sure the other end of the egg has been sealed with paraffin before you start youring. Chill the eggs in an egg carton, then roll to crack the shells and peel carefully.

Easier to prepare are smaller "eggs" cut with a ball cutter from various flavors and colors of gelatin allowed to jell in a sheet.

REMEDY FOR MUFFIN TROUBLE: Most troubles with muffins are the result of underbeating or overbeating the batter. If the batter isn't mixed quite enough to blend the ingredients the muffins won't rise evenly and the texture may be coarse. But overbeating causes worse troubles—tunnels and a lack of tenderness. About 25 strokes with the spoon give best results in most cases. The batter should be lumpy rather than smooth.

The Blind Side

By Patricia Wentworth

[Copyright; 1939; By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father turned Craddock House into flats and installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepares to take a trip, despite an order from Ross to vacate her flat because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Grey. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. Lucy gives her cousin, Lee Fenton, permission to use her flat while she is away. Lee, who is in love with Peter, has just escaped an unpleasant experience with a married man. Rush, the porter, mutters belligerently to Lee against Ross. Mrs. Green, the charwoman, says she is ill and asks Lee for a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a night club where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night in his flat. Later he is again awakened and sees Mavis again coming from Ross' flat. She says she went to retrieve her purse. Lee awakens from a nightmare to find herself covered with blood. Her bloody footsteps lead from Ross' door. Lee knows she walks in her sleep. In terror she washes away the bloodstains and goes to tell Peter. Ross' valet arrives and finds Ross has been shot and killed. He summons the police. An old maid tenant tells how she saw Mavis coming from Ross' flat twice. It is learned that Lucy did not go on her trip and that she arrived at the home of a friend at 3 in the morning. Rush turns over to the police a cigaret case he found belonging to Bobby Foster. Lucy admits coming to Craddock House after 2 a. m. and seeing a figure hurrying out of the door and going up to find Ross murdered. She fled after finding Mavis' compact. Lucy tells that Ross was married years before to an actress, that he was never divorced and had lately stopped paying her. Bobby Foster disappears and he is charged with the murder. Mavis also disappears. Ross' ex-wife is found in Birmingham and she has an alibi for the time of the murder. Bobby Foster calls Peter and begs for a loan.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

BOBBY GIVES HIMSELF UP.

Peter turned into a dull and deserted street and stopped the car.

"Now, Bobby—what's this all about anyhow? You'd better make a clean breast of it."

"Peter, I swear—I mean, I wouldn't kill any one—you know I wouldn't. I loathed Ross quite a lot because of Mavis, and I won't say I wouldn't have liked to get my hands on him. But, Peter, I swear I wouldn't shoot a man just because I loathed him."

"All right, you've said it. I've got that. Now calm down and tell me what happened after I pushed you off home on the Tuesday night."

Bobby clutched his head.

"I don't remember an awful lot about it. Did you push me off home?"

"I did, my lad. You had been looking on the wine when it was red to a very marked extent, and I gather from the proceedings at the inquest that you carried on the good work after you got home."

"I don't remember much about that either," said Bobby.

"Well, suppose we get on to something that you do remember."

Bobby took out a very grimy handkerchief and mopped his brow.

"Well, the first thing that's really clear is coming up on to the landing outside Ross's flat."

"How did you get into the house?"

"I don't know—the door must have been open. And the door of his flat was open—I could see a light—so I just walked right in. The sitting room door was open too, and the light was on, and when I got inside, there he was, lying dead in the middle of the floor, and I got such a shock that if the door hadn't been there to take hold of, I'd have gone down too."

"What did you do?"

"I didn't do anything—I just stood there looking at him. And the funny thing is that I was as sober as a judge. I remembered what I'd said about shooting him, and I thought, 'If any one finds me here I'm done.'"

Peter took him by the arm.

"Bobby—where was the revolver? Was it in his hand?"

"Yes, it was—it was in his hand."

"Then why didn't you think it was suicide?"

Bobby stared.

"I don't know—I didn't. I thought they'd put it on me, and I legged it. The stairs were all dark, but there was a light in the hall, and the hall door was open."

"Do you know what time it was?"

"Yes, I do. That's one of the things I remember. There was a clock on the mantelpiece. It was five and twenty minutes to three."

A tingling excitement ran through Peter's veins.

"Man—are you sure about that? Don't say you are if you're not."

Bobby stared reproachfully.

"But I am sure—really. Didn't I tell you I was as sober as a judge? Seeing him lying there like that—well, it was the most awful facer. It brought me up with a jerk."

"Then," said Peter, "it wasn't you that Lucinda saw run down the steps at a quarter past two."

"Did she see some one?"

"I don't think there's the slightest doubt but that she saw Ross' murderer. Unfortunately she can't identify him. She only saw a shadow. When you bolted it seemed perfectly clear to the official mind that you had shot Ross and that Lucinda had seen you getting away.

"The only thing that nobody had been able to explain is how you got in—and that's a card you'll have to play for all it's worth, my lad. You couldn't get in without a key unless the front door was open, but the front door was left open by the murderer at two-fifteen or thereabouts, and you found it open when you rolled up at half past two. By the way, what have you done with Mavis?"

Bobby's mouth fell open.

"Isn't she at home?"

"She is not. She walked out of the house on Friday morning and hasn't been seen since."

"But this is awful! Where can she be?"

"Perfectly safe, I am sure—you can trust Mavis for that. Now look here, Bobby, I've got that tenner you asked for in my pocket. If you shot Ross, take it and make the best getaway you can. But if you didn't—if you didn't—take my advice and come along with me to Scotland Yard."

"But they'll arrest me."

"Bound to. But they'll do that anyhow. They'll get you in the end, so you might as well save yourself the wear and tear and come willing."

Bobby came.

Inspector Lamb sat immovably in his office chair. Mr. Peter Renshaw had been talking for some time. There might be something in what he said, but then again there might not. Time would show. It was a good job getting Foster under lock and key. There was always a lot of chatter about the police if they let any one slip through their fingers. Mr. Renshaw had done a good job there, persuading him to come in. All in his own interests too, if he was innocent.

Mr. Renshaw reached his peroration.

"It's the timetable you've got to concentrate on, Inspector—you must see that—the timetable, and that outside door. Rush shuts it at eleven. I come in at twelve, find it shut, and leave it as I find it. Ross and Miss Grey come in at 1 o'clock. I don't see how any one is going to argue that they left the door open. Ross opened it with his latchkey—and he withdrew the key, because it was found on him. To my mind it's quite impossible to suppose that he did that, and didn't shut the door.

"Now the murderer went out of that door at a quarter past two and left it open. Miss Craddock, arriving a moment later, finds it open, finds Ross dead, and runs out of the house leaving all the doors open behind her. About ten minutes or so later Bobby Foster rolls up. He finds the doors open. He finds Ross dead, and the shock sobers him. He says he noticed the clock on the mantelpiece particularly, and that the time was between half past two and five and twenty to three. Being sober, he realizes his position and legs it, leaving all doors open.

"Meanwhile Miss Fenton walks in her sleep. She already is standing over Ross with the revolver in her hand when Miss Grey comes in to get the bag she left there earlier in the evening. This was somewhere between ten and five minutes to three. Miss Fenton drops the revolver and wanders back to her own flat. Miss Grey kneels down by Ross to see if he is really dead and gets her dress stained, then looks for her bag, finds it, and comes away, switching off the sitting room light and shutting the door of the flat. That's when Miss Bingham saw her the second time.

"All this is what Miss Grey told her aunt, and it is what decided Miss Craddock to volunteer her statement, because of course if Miss Craddock saw Ross dead at two-fifteen, Miss Grey's presence in the flat at three o'clock no longer exposes her to suspicion."

Here Are Tips on How Girls Can Win Boys

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright; 1939; By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"How to Get Acquainted with and Get On with Boys" is today's theme for the benefit of "The Young Girls" whose week this is.

It would seem that the high school girls have many opportunities for meeting boys. In a class group boys can be talked to. A girl can become a part of school activities, of which there are many branches. Through churches and clubs there are openings. Another girl may be persuaded to introduce a boy you want to meet, a blind date may be arranged. This is an acceptable way to meet boys if the girl or boy arranging the blind date is trustworthy.

Be friendly with boys. Advance them the same brand of friendly interest you do toward a girl. Don't be afraid to turn on your smiles at boys. They warm and encourage and set the young men at ease. See if you cannot find a common interest. You can come right out and ask a boy what he is interested in and then try to ask him intelligent questions in connection therewith.

Don't get cold feet, be tongue-tied, or back away shyly. The boy is craving to be talked to, understood, encouraged. Don't be the wisecracking girl whose wit may be mistaken for sharpness. Anything that makes the boy feel uncomfortable will be held against you. He won't think that you are running after him when you keep your friendly advances on the plane just recommended. It's when you begin talking to him as if he belonged to you and other girls are warned to keep aloof that he suspects you are running after him, especially if you pursue him with telephone calls. This latter pastime is not only bad taste, as some one has put it, but bad technique.

We would like to caution you young girls against that foolish desire at your age to have a "steady." The first boy that comes along is the one invariably chosen if a "steady" is uppermost in your mind.

Presently you may find yourself so linked with this boy that others may be afraid to date you, and there you are linked with some one for whom you've lost taste. Besides, you miss a lot of fun as well as interesting associations with other boys.

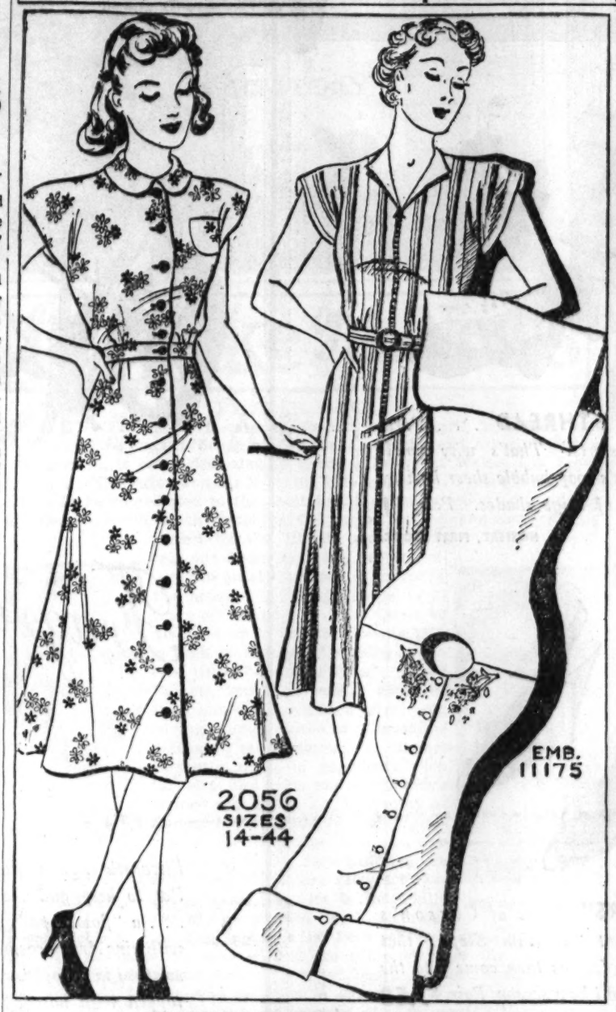
House Dress Is Simple One



WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOUSE FROCK.

Most of us prefer our house frocks to be as simple as possible, both to wear and to launder. In line with this principle, we're offering the pattern today. The back is cut in one piece, and the front in two, which are joined by means of the buttoned closing. The neckline is high and round, and may have a matching or contrasting collar. A tiny pocket may be used for trimming on the bodice. There are no sleeves to be set in, since the brief sleeves are cut in one with the shoulders.

You may prefer a V neckline, in which case give it a rever collar line as shown in the illustration at the right. Striped materials and prints are the most effective mediums for this simple house frock, which is, of course, best made up in cottons and linen.

If you like to embroider, you can give this frock's neckline a lovely touch with pattern No. E-11175, available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2056 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material for the buttoned down the front version.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Mrs. Stanley Morrill is the guild president.

Today from 10 until 5 o'clock there will be a sale of Easter flowers at the St. Luke's Hospital shop, which is having its formal opening today. After today the shop will be open from 9 until 9 each day. The shop will continue to carry plants and orders for flowers will be taken. Mrs. John W. Gary is president of the woman's board, which is sponsoring the shop.

John S. Mechem Will Wed Eastern Girl.

From Montclair, N. J., comes news of a party Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. White will give this week-end to announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Chapin, to John Slason Mechem, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mechem of Lake Forest. Young Mr. Mechem, who is a student in the law school of the University of Michigan, and his fiancée, who is a student at Connecticut college, are spending today and tomorrow in Montclair with the Whites.

Miss White has Lake Forest connections, too. Her mother is a daughter of the late Edward S. Chapin of Lake Forest. Mr. White, who formerly lived in Boston, came to Chicago after he was graduated from Harvard university in 1906. He lived here for four or five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Whital Stern will be at home in Highland Park from 4 until 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to celebrate the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to Robert Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Warner of Buffalo, N. Y. The engagement is being announced today.

Miss Stern is a graduate of the Roycemore school and now is attending Rockford college. Mr. Warner attended the Nichols school and is a graduate of Harvard university. He will complete his medical studies at the University of Chicago in June.

Healy-Kelly Nuptials to Take Place Today.

The marriage of Miss Patricia Kelly to Laurin J. Healy is to be a quiet family affair at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kelly, in Indian Hill road, Winnetka. A small reception will follow.

The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church, Winnetka, will read the service. Miss Marjorie Kelly will be her sister's only attendant. Allan Healy will be his brother's best man.

Bartletts in City for Art Exhibition.

Mrs. Clay Bartlett's visit in Chicago will be brief for she does not want to be away long from her infant son, Clay Sutherland Holley Bartlett, who was born about two months ago. Mrs. Bartlett and her husband came to Chicago to attend the opening of an exhibit of his paintings. The Bartletts live in Manchester, Vt. Tonight Mrs. Arthur Bissell is entertaining at dinner for the Bartletts and on Monday night the Henry Fields will give a dinner party for the visitors.

The young artist used to live here and so did his parents, so many old friends went to the tea yesterday that opened his show. Among them were Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Alice H. Patterson, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Candlewick Used for This Smart Knitted Jacket

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Candlewick cotton is used for more things than bedspreads, and among the uses is sports wear. This short jacket in a stockinette stitch is an easy knitting job. The knitting needles are the large wooden variety which allow the material to work up quickly. White and colored candlewick is available in hundred yard hanks, and half a dozen hanks will creat a small sized jacket.

For instructions in knitting the candlewick jacket, No. X-235, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The Housewife

Don't spoil the appearance of your beautifully manicured fingers by wearing dirty rings. And jewelry, like everything else, does get grimy, you know. Gems lose their sparkle and their beauty unless they are cleaned frequently, and settings, too, collect fine particles of dust and powder.

So, invest in a brand new and most effective jewelry cleaner and see how much more lovely your rings, pins, and clips can be. The one we have in mind comes in liquid form and in the box containing the bottle is a soft velour cloth for polishing and a tiny brush. Simply dip the object to be cleaned in the liquid, rinse in clear warm water, dry and polish. Use the brush to keep platinum and gold settings dirt free.

Lent Ends at Noon; Thousands Attend Good Friday Rites

Lent ends at noon today when the eve of Easter begins. At hundreds of churches yesterday, Good Friday devotions called overflowing congregations. Cardinal Mundelein presided at Holy Name cathedral in the morning at the mass of the presanctified and at the lighting of the New Fire and the Paschal, or Easter candle.

The mass of the presanctified is used by Catholic and many Episcopal churches because the bread and wine used in the mass cannot properly be consecrated on Good Friday and the sacred food consecrated at a mass on another day is used. Last night Cardinal Mundelein presided at the service of the shadow of the cross—or Tenebrae.

Chicago Temple where the Chicago Church federation conducted three hour devotions at noon was visited by more than 5,000 worshipers and several loop theaters attracted devout throngs. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago preached the Good Friday meditation at the Harris theater. The Selwyn theater drew hundreds of Missouri synod Lutheran worshipers, and at the Erlanger Lutherans from all other synods united for Good Friday services.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright; 1939; By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Recently you published a letter in your column from a grateful correspondent who told how he had saved the day by making a play that you had written about the week before. This must have been a gratifying experience for a teacher. Here is another side of the picture, which illustrates, if anything, Alexander Pope's couplet:

'A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring.'

"All of which is prompted by an adventure in duplicate. North was a woman who had evidently been sipping lightly from said spring. I sat East.

"West, dealer.

SOUTH
♠ 9 4
♥ J 9 8 6 5
♦ 9 5
♣ A K 5 2

"The bidding was:

"West: One spade.

"North: Pass. [Here is my chance to use one of those 'trap passes' I've been reading about.]

"East: Pass. [I'm afraid anything I say will be used against me.]

"South: Pass. [Guess we're lucky our opponents didn't get to game. We ought to get a top on this one.]

"But South was wrong. We went down four and got a clear top on the board, since every other North-South pair got to game and made it, which, with the game bonus, far submerged our opponents' 400.

"If you should publish this letter, please use only my initials, otherwise North, who has given up trapping, may take up shooting.

"W. R., Buffalo."

North's trapping ambition in this hand was a shade optimistic. As I have frequently pointed out, there are times when a player holds too much to justify the hope that the opponents will go on and hang themselves. North's spade holding alone made it inconceivable that East would be able to raise spades and, as for any other "hold open action" on East's part, North's strength in hearts and diamonds made this almost equally doubtful.

The fact is that for trapping to be successful the trapper must not carry too big a gun. In this case North would have been much better advised to have entered the bidding immediately with a double. Technically, of course, this double would be for a take-out and there would be no chance that South would be able to leave it in. But at least North would have taken the first step toward reaching a game of his own. After such a double South would have the values for a jump to three hearts and, although this might possibly encourage North to the point of trying for a slam, he should avoid that danger by bidding three spades. Then, with South's next bid four clubs, North would see the great "duplication of values" and would be satisfied with a mere four hearts, which, of course, would be a laydown.

But although I disapprove of North's trapping action with this particular power house, I must point out that it should not have been fatal. South should not have dreamed of letting the vulnerable opponents play one spade. Far from feeling that he could save a game by passing South should have considered that one spade might easily be made, whereas he himself could make two or three hearts or clubs. Moreover, from South's point of view there was a chance that North actually had been "trapping" when he passed, and South certainly should have given his partner a little protection by reopening the bidding. South could not quite stretch his values to the point of doubling [which would have been manna on the desert to North], but he certainly could afford to reopen the bidding with two hearts. In the final analysis, therefore, it was not North's overemphasis on trapping as much as South's timidity that led to the horrible North-South result.

Want Obedient Child? Make Orders Clear

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright; 1939; By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

You're pretty much at the beginning, are you?

That is, your baby's no longer a baby, but he's pretty small, 2 or so, and is showing signs of having ideas and a will of his own? And he's taken the bit in his teeth a few times lately? And you're beginning to think pretty seriously about obedience?

"Make your puppy understand what you want him to do. Make it clear. Then use the same word every time you tell him to do that thing." We're doing it with our pup. He'll "go to the kitchen for his dinner" when he's told. He'll "get the ball." He'll "go up to bed." "No," when he makes a bee line for the most recently upholstered chair, always checks him. "Out," he knows, means a walk and a frolic. Now we're teaching him "car." But so far he's flatly refused to get in any one's lap. A Scottie being a big dog in a small dog's body, I suppose he's disgusted at the very suggestion of acting like a lap dog!

Clearness, consistency. You need both to gain obedience with your small child. He must know what you want. He must also know that, from time to time, you're not going to treat him differently when he does the same thing.

You must be both fair and reasonable if you expect obedience, not just small child obedience but fundamental obedience, the kind that lasts all through life.

Another aid to this end you're striving for is to require as few definite things from your child as possible. The child who is constantly showered with commands and directions has to disregard some of them in self-protection. Otherwise he couldn't live his own life, and that's not a joke. A child has to live his life largely in accord with the deep inner urges of nature, or real conflict is set up and you are in hot water.

Other ways to gain obedience will be talked about early next week.

BROWNS TIE CUBS; PIRATES WHIP SOX, 16-14

ST. LOUIS EARNS 2-2 DEADLOCK WITH RUN IN 7TH

Call Game in 8th for Train Connection.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Corpus Christi, Tex., April 7.—Gene Lillard this afternoon pitched his second game of the Cubs' current road trip, and, while not as spectacular as he was in beating the White Sox, 2 to 0, in Yuma, Ariz., last Friday, he was good enough to tie the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 2.

Buck Newsom.

The Cubs made two runs in the eighth on Jim Gleeson's double with the bases loaded, but the game ended with none out and Cubs on third and second to enable the teams to catch a train.

Newsom Hard to Hit.

The Browns' starting pitcher was the able and eccentric Buck Newsom, who held the Cubs to one single in six innings. The single by Bill Herman in the first inning was mixed up with a walk and a pair of errors, which netted the Cubs their two runs. While Newsom mowed down Cubs in the remainder of his assignment the Browns struggled and managed to get a run in the sixth. They tied it in the seventh.

In the eighth the Cubs made two runs off Bill Cox on singles by Lillard and Hack, a walk to Herman, and Gleeson's double, but the inning was erased by the decision to end the game by 5 o'clock. This was the first of six scheduled games between the Cubs and Browns.

Hartnett Stays on Bench.

The ballyhooed spring debut of Manager Gabby Hartnett failed to materialize. Gabby had thought he might take a brief turn behind the plate this afternoon, but a brisk wind and overcast sky canceled the plan.

The teams will play tomorrow and Sunday in San Antonio, Brownie training base; in Dallas Monday, in Wichita, Kas., Tuesday, and in Kansas City, Mo., Wednesday.

The Cubs emerged from a rather sloppy first inning with a 2 to 0 advantage. Hack walked and went to third on Herman's single to right. When Bell's throw hit Hack, Stan proceeded home and Herman went to second. Gleeson flied to Almada and when Gryska relayed the ball past Clift Herman got home. In the Brownie first Almada and Grace walked on nine pitches, McQuinn popped to Herman and Clift walked, loading the bases. Lillard pitched three wide ones to Bell, then Beau hit into a double play, Lillard to Garbark to Cavarretta.

Hits but No Runs.

The lads got warmed up for some baseball in the second inning. The Cubs went out in order in their half, but Berardino and Gryska got the St. Louis second under way with singles. Then Glenn struck out, Newsome fouled to Hack and Almada lifted to Marty.

The Cubs went out in order in the third and fourth. The Browns were hitless in the third, but in the fourth loaded the bases for the second time. Berardino led off with a double and Glenn walked after Gryska had been thrown out by Lillard. Newsom popped to Herman and Almada walked, filling the bases, but Lillard

Galan Sent Home

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., April 7.—Augie Galan, Cub outfielder, whose work last year was interrupted by an injury to his left knee, will be sent to Chicago tomorrow as a result of a recurrence of his leg trouble.

While the team was in Corpus Christi today Galan, who has missed the last three exhibition games, remained in San Antonio for examination. When the team returned tonight plans were made to have him join Dick Bartell in Chicago. It is feared an operation will be necessary.

X-Rays Reveal Nothing New in Bartell Case

Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician, yesterday examined X-ray films of Shortstop Dick Bartell's injured ankle and announced that they confirmed his original diagnosis and prescribed continued rest in bed. He declined to hazard an opinion on the possibility that the $24,000 a year player will be able to play when the Cubs open the season a week from Tuesday.

Dr. Davis' statement follows:

"After reviewing the X-ray films taken of the ankle Thursday I cannot add much to the report I made following my first examination. Bartell's ankle is not swollen as much as it was and there is no pain. Bartell himself claims it is loose and feels better than at any time since he hurt it. I still want him to remain in the hospital and continue treatments. Nothing was found in the latest X-rays to change my original diagnosis of Bartell's trouble as a traumatic injury caused from some blow or twist."

Bartell has been in Masonic hospital since returning to Chicago Tuesday. He was forced to leave the team in the midst of the spring training campaign when his ankle refused to respond to treatments on the road.

MANHATTANS GO EAST TODAY TO RESUME SERIES

The Manhattan Brewers will leave this afternoon for Pittsburgh, where tomorrow they play the Morgan Soccer club in the second game of the two game series for the western division championship of the National Cup tournament.

The Morgan eleven, comprising a group of American born youngsters who were graduated from the junior ranks two years ago, scored a 3 to 2 triumph over the Manhattans last Sunday. Total goals will decide the winner.

The Manhattans will leave without their star center half back, Ed Begley, who resides in St. Louis. He was recently appointed to the St. Louis police force.

MONTY STRATTON HOPEFUL AS BIG DAY APPROACHES

He'll Try to Pitch, but Is Dubious.

Omaha, Neb., April 7.—[Special.]—"If it can be done, I'll do it."

That typifies Monty Stratton's attitude on the eve of his great adventure, an attempt to continue in baseball despite an artificial leg.

Monty drove the 680 miles here from his home in Greenville, Tex., in one day. He, his wife, and Monty Jr., 16 months old, are visiting Mrs. Stratton's mother.

He'll reach Chicago to confer with White Sox officials the morning of April 14, when the team arrives from training camp. He'll go to the ball park first thing.

The Sox will engage the Cubs April 17 in a benefit game for Monty. Monty thinks he'll probably coach, but if they want him to pitch the first ball, he thinks he can do it.

May Pitch—But Doubts It.

He's been getting along much better than he expected but doubts that he'll pitch in an official game this year. He threw his cane away after two weeks and has played catch half a dozen times. He hasn't tried to cut loose, however. That attempt will come when it's warmer and his arm, which he thinks is stronger than ever, has been toughened up a little.

Monty will work out his problem with the other pitchers this year while he stays on the pay roll as coach. He's certain he will be able to field bunts, but he won't run bases.

Above all, he'll definitly stay in baseball, even if he does get $20,000 to $25,000 from the benefit game, as has been predicted.

He'll Spend the Money Wisely.

Monty hasn't decided definitly what he'll do with the money, but he won't be foolish with it. He's virtually decided to build a new home on his farm in Texas, and the rest he'll probably put away for "a living when we get too old for baseball."

The young pitcher's comeback attitude seems to be based on confidence, not hope. And, says Mrs. Stratton of his practice pitching:

"He looked as good as ever. Except that he wasn't so graceful."

PLAN DANCE ALSO.

The social calendar of Monty Stratton is beginning to bulge with invitations. The latest event to be added to Monty's book is a dance sponsored by the White Sox Boosters' club in the Morrison hotel on April 16. Harry Fields is in charge. Members of the committee include Vice President Harry Grabiner of the Sox.

PAUL WANER IS READY TO SIGN THAT CONTRACT

Sarasota, Fla., April 7.—(AP)—Paul Waner, a stubborn holdout from the Pittsburgh Pirates during the spring training season, said at his winter home here tonight he was preparing to leave tomorrow for New Orleans, where he expects to come to terms with the Pirates' front office.

The Pirates are scheduled for exhibition contests in New Orleans Saturday and Sunday and Waner expects a conference along about game time Sunday afternoon.

Waner indicated he would accept the terms offered by President Bill Benswanger some time ago. Waner's first contract called for a 45 per cent salary cut, which he returned, but a later contract raised the offering by 20 per cent.

Waner has been working out regularly here for several weeks. He said today his wife already had taken an apartment in Pittsburgh for the season, and "I expect to be in right field for the Pirates on the opening day unless they have a better player.

Easter Parade.

When you're counting your Easter blessings
Here's the grandest under the sun,
That our Easter parade, thank God,
Is not a military one;
That we live in a grand old country
Where the Easter parade is fun,
Devised to display a new bonnet
Instead of a new death gun.

Be thankful our Easter is filled with thoughts
Of joy and of glad re-birth;
That we're bent on ways to replenish
Instead of destroy the earth.
So, eyes to the skies, every one of you;
Dauntless and free of fears,
And be thankful our April showers are rain
Instead of a nation's tears!

FOOTBALL MOVIE MEETS CRITICS AND IS APPROVED

It's Good Entertainment and Educational.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The National Football league's official motion picture, "Champions of the Gridiron," was previewed by a group of critical observers in the screening room of the Chicago theater yesterday. After 50 minutes of study, the critics unanimously agreed the professionals had come up with the first constructive and practical means of bringing to football fans a better appreciation of the sport which is second only to baseball as America's national pastime.

Opening with shots of playground, high school, and college games, the picture, a talkie, moves through a progression of scenes climaxed by shots of last year's Tribune All-Star game between the Washington Redskins and graduated college players, then treats at length with the techniques of each position, various means of scoring, and specialties, including a demonstration of rules violations and review of penalties.

Seek to Educate Fans.

Five months and $50,000 were spent filming the various teams and stars of the National league and the outstanding games on last year's schedule. From the more than 300,000 feet of film, the league sought to put together a full length feature calculated to stimulate interest in the game by increasing the average fan's knowledge of inside football through demonstrations by football's outstanding practioneers.

The preview audience, composed of Chicago sports writers and radio announcers, as hard-bitten a group of second guessers as ever assembled in a dark room, agreed it had succeeded admirably.

Directed by Earl [Dutch] Clark, one of the outstanding players of all time, whose Detroit Lion team presented the technical demonstrations of fundamentals, the picture gives fans an opportunity to study in slow motion such basic offensive manuvers as reverse plays, spinners, single wing back formations, the unbalanced line and the three cardinal dodges of football—the side-step, cross-over, and pivot.

Star Players Participate.

Among the stars participating are Sammy Baugh, Jack Manders, Ed Danowski, Cecil Isbell, Arnie Herber, Dave Smukler, Whizzer White, Gaynell Tinsley, Bill Hewitt, and Pat Coffee. Action pictures of a dozen championship games, narrated by Harry Wisner, sports announcer for WJR in Detroit, conclude the picture which has been produced in 35 mm. and 16 mm. reels for full sized and portable projection units.

The finest shot among the game scenes is that of Pat Coffee's seventy-two yard touchdown run in the Cardinals' victory over Cleveland on Wrigley field. Other outstanding bits of photography are Hewitt's work going down under a punt in the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh contest, Vernon Huffman's run through the Bears when he found his receivers covered on a pass play in the Thanksgiving day game at Detroit, and Jack Manders' plunge for touchdown against the Green Bay Packers at Wrigley field.

The picture is available to all schools, clubs, or civic organizations, without cost. Application for its use can be made to the Chicago Bears, 37 South Wabash avenue, and the Chicago Cardinals, 511 Plymouth court, or to any other team in the National league. Each league team has been provided with a set of films for free distribution.

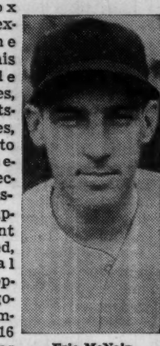
WHITEHEAD AND KNOTT POUNDED FOR SIX HOMERS

Chicago Gets Five Circuit Drives.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Abilene, Tex., April 7.—John Whitehead, supposedly the No. 1 man of the White Sox pitching staf, experienced some unhappiness this afternoon while he and his mates, along with Pittsburgh's Pirates, were trying to provide amusement for a collection of 2,500 customers. The supply of amusement was unlimited, the National leaguers walloping the Chicagoans by the bloomer girl score of 16 to 14. And it was all because Whitehead blew up.



Eric McNair.

During the hilarity most of the athletes involved engaged in a lot of unprecedented sprinting. There were eleven nonstop journeys around the dusty base lines because of home run taps over a chummy outfield fence. Five of these were Chicago products. Of the Pirate half dozen only two caused real grief for the Sox. These were by Arky Vaughan and Ray Mueller in the seventh, when the Pirates clinched the silly decision by exploding an eight run rally in Whitehead's face.

Who Is This Tobin?

The Sox did a flock of fancy hitting against Jim Tobin, one of the Pirates' regular performers, but suddenly choked up when an unknown named Bill Clemenson popped up for the last three innings. They frisked him for only four hits, one being Al Bejma's homer in the ninth. During Tobin's six inning term there were fifteen hits, in which the home run parade was handled by Joe Kuhel, Ken Silvestri, Gerry Walker and Eric McNair. Eric's four bagger was the most productive, coming with two on base in the fifth and the same little fellow figured in three other scoring episodes with two singles and a double. He also erred once, an excusable offense on a skinned field as hard as a billiard table.

Jack Knott's efforts to display big league skill before a gathering of his fellow citizens from Brownwood, Tex., wasn't exactly successful, although he was yards in front when he quit in the fifth. Four of the Pirates' homers were poured over the wall and half their runs scored while the Texan was in action. His chief tormentor was Arky Vaughan, who, before crashing Whitehead for his homer with the bases full in the seventh, clipped Knott for a double, a single and a home run.

Jack's Mates Let Him Down.

After Tobin had stopped three Sox batters without delay in the first inning the Pirates profited in their half by Walker's fielding eccentricities. Lloyd Waner led off with a single to center and Manush smashed a hit through short. Appling threw out Rizzo. Vaughan lifted a high fly to short left and the ball dropped behind Walker for a double, Waner scoring.

Knott had Rizzo out of the way in the third when he discovered the Sox

FRANKLIN'S GOOD AND MAD ABOUT MUSTO'S CLAIMS

Lem'll Do the Knocking Out, He Says.

Lem Franklin, 1937 international Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, was furious as he punched it out with three sparmates yesterday in Trafton's gymnasium in preparation for a ten round bout with Tony Musto in the Coliseum next Thursday.

"I'll show him," big Lem muttered each time he lashed out with his powerful right, the hand which is responsible for his nine professional victories, seven by knockouts.

The Cleveland slugger's remarks referred to Musto, who on Thursday predicted that he'd knock out Franklin.

"If any one's going to be knocked out it'll be Musto and not me," Franklin said. "No bum is going to floor me for the count."

George Dion, Kankakee, middleweight, stopped Frank Evans of Birmingham, Ala., in the first round to score his ninth straight victory last night in the Madison Athletic club's amateur ring show. Bob Earl, Morgan Park featherweight, won in five rounds from Sammy Consolo of the 124th Field Artillery armory. Other results:

Harold Rodie stopped Leon Harris [2], Frank O'Brien stopped Ray Maher [2], Walter Balasa knocked out Fred Parkman [1], Carroll Hodges beat Joe Robinson [3], Earl Merritt beat Vito Rizzo [3], and Don Richman beat Jack Fish [3].

John J. Hettche, head of the Michigan athletic board of control, has notified Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois commission of Michigan's decision to recognize the suspensions handed out to Jimmy Adamick and Jack Trammell for their alleged fake fight in Chicago a year ago last June 8. Frank MacDonell, Hettche's predecessor, refused to concur in the suspensions when he held the office. . . . Bud Taylor, former bantamweight champion, has arrived to dicker for a business establishment in the loop. . . . Ray Carlen, manager of Lou Nova, left yesterday to join his heavyweight protege in Hot Springs, Ark. From Hot Springs the business partners will head for New York, where Nova boxes Max Baer on June 1. . . . Johnny Pleasant, Joe Du Pont and Willie Moon will board a train in Northwestern station at 10:25 o'clock tonight for San Francisco to represent this district in the National A. A. U. tournament April 12.—F. M.

GLAD TO HAVE YOU: MISSOURI TO NOTRE DAME

Columbia, Mo., April 7.—(AP)—Don Faurot, chairman of the University of Missouri coaching staf, wired Elmer Layden, director of athletics at Notre Dame today that the Tigers would be glad to meet the Irish here April 15 in a dual track meet "if they would like to come."

Earlier today Layden said Notre Dame would like to be released from its contract to engage in the meet, originally scheduled as a triangular affair with Wisconsin.

The Badgers withdrew when Missouri barred Ed Smith, Negro, from competition, saying it was against a long standing policy of the school to permit Negroes to compete against Missouri athletes.

"The University of Missouri has no desire to hold Notre Dame to a contract which it does not wish to fulfill," Faurot said in his telegram to Layden. "The decision is entirely in your hands. We would be glad to have you if you would like to come."

IOWA ATHLETIC SALARIES SHOWN BY STATE LAW

Des Moines, Ia., April 7.—[Special.]—The new Iowa law requiring publication of salaries paid to all state employés today brought to light facts concerning the earnings of athletic coaches and players at the state institutions.

The salary paid former University of Iowa Football Coach Irl Tubbs in 1938 was revealed as $6,500, while Athletic Director E. G. Schroeder received $4,437.50. Taxpayers will have to wait another year, however, before they will know the amount the new Hawkeye football coach, Eddie Anderson, is receiving.

George Bresnahan, university track coach, received $5,800, while George Veenker, director of athletics at Iowa State college, was paid $7,112.68. The Iowa State football coach, Jim Yeager, was paid $3,512.50, while L. L. Mendenhall, athletic director at Iowa State Teachers' college received $4,000, and the football coach, Clyde L. Starbeck, $3,000.

Janitor service at the state university provided opportunity for several Hawkeye football players to earn cash during 1938. The amounts received ranged from $45.50 to $321.60. The players included Frank Balazs, Carl Blandin, Carl Conrad, Frank Coppola, Shipley Farroh, Homer Harris, Charles Irvine, Jim Kelley, Glenn Olson, Ken Pettit, Roger Pettit, Herman Snider, and Carl Vergimini.

BENEFACTOR MAY BE UNABLE TO RUN IN DERBY

Lexington, Ky., April 7.—[Special.]—Benefactor, Edward R. Bradley's Kentucky Derby candidate, has suffered filling in the flexor tendon of his left foreleg and may be unable to resume training in time to run in the big race May 6. Trainer William Hurley reported the colt's injury today.

A final decision as to whether Benefactor will continue preparation for the Derby will be made next Tuesday when Bradley returns from Florida.

The flexor tendon is located behind and below the knee.

Five Start in $5,000 Bowie Feature Today

Bowie, Md., April 7.—(AP)—Five horses remained tonight in the field for tomorrow's running of the $5,000 added Southern Maryland handicap, which is expected to attract a crowd of 15,000 to the Bowie track.

Five of the original ten nominees were withdrawn. A. C. Compton's Sun Egret and Gustova Ring's Lady Maryland were canceled out and entered in the Goodspeed handicap, $1,000 added.

The choices in the Southern Maryland field will be Ral Parr's Hypocrite and W. L. Brann's Challephen, winner of the Southern Maryland last year. Other entrants are A. J. Able's Honey Cloud, Unheralded, and High Velocity.

Oros Rides the Winner.

Joseph E. Boyle, manager of the track here, said poor weather conditions so far have left the meet in the red, but that a $300,000 wagering total tomorrow would enable it to show a profit.

Polly Hastings, R. A. Coward's 5 year old black mare, captured the mile and 70 yards Godlington Manor purse by five lengths today as favorites skidded all over the place.

Ridden by Johnny Oros, the nation's leading jocky with ninety-six victories, Polly Hastings broke in front but was eased back into fourth place until called upon for speed in the last quarter mile. She responded gallantly to leave H. G. Bedwell's Teddy Patic and E. R. Pike's Kenty far back in a dead heat for second.

The wreakage of favorites was complete, not one winning in seven races. Knoxville, in the feature, was out of the money, as was Phalasan in the six furlong fifth, won by Herbert Kerr's Dizzy Dame.

$10,000 RACE AT TROPICAL.

Coral Gables, Fla., April 7.—(AP)—Teddy Weed of the Tomara stable was a 3 to 1 choice tonight in the $10,000 added Tropical handicap which climaxes the racing season at Tropical Park tomorrow.

The meeting—and the Florida racing season—will close Monday with a special program, the receipts going to the state's exhibit at the New York world's fair.

Darby Dan farm's Francesco, winner of the Miami Beach handicap at Hialeah Park, was a close second choice in the expected wide-open race of a mile and a sixteenth, with J. B. Partridge's Our Ketcham third.

Rounding out the field of thirteen are Bert Friend's Co-Sport, Joseph Pepp's No Sir, Lewin stable's Buttermilk, William Maloney's Her Reigh, Mrs. Kirby Ramsey's Palamede, Superior farm's Bob's Boy, Maemere farm's Maeriel, Ector stable's Your Buddy, Mose Goldblatt's Dneiper, and the Wesley Sears farm's Xavier.

CHAMACO ROUTS JACKSON; NEEDS ONLY 23 INNINGS

New York, April 7.—(AP)—Joe Chamaco of Mexico City, who already had clinched the national three cushion billiard championship, tonight equalled the world record for the best game by defeating Clarence Jackson of Detroit, 50 to 19, in 23 innings in their tournament series. The last 23 inning game in championship competition was played in 1930 and won by Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo.

Chamaco, who won the afternoon game from Jackson, 50 to 21, in 35 innings and had a high run of 16, started his amazing scoring string with a run of six in the fifth inning. He scored in the last nine consecutive innings, getting a high run of eight in the eighteenth and another run of seven in the fifteenth.

Cowboy O'Rourke Will Drive in Midget Races

Cowboy O'Rourke, who has been without a car for the last few weeks, will renew his bid for championship auto race recognition in the 124th Field Artillery armory tomorrow night. O'Rourke will drive the car in which Harry MacQuinn won five consecutive feature victories and which Tony Willman piloted two weeks ago.

TIGERS OUTSLUG DODGERS, 14 TO 6; GREENBERG STARS

Big League Sample Fails to Thrill Sumter, S. C.

Sumter, S. C., April 7.—[Special.]—More than 2,500 fans were told today that the game between the Detroit Tigers and Brooklyn Dodgers which they were about to see was the first contest between major league teams in Sumter. But, what followed was scarcely big league ball at its best. The Tigers won, 14 to 6, on 16 hits against the Dodgers' 13. Each team committed three errors.

Hank Greenberg.

Hank Greenberg, Tiger slugger who had made but one single in four previous games with the Dodgers, gave the crowd a thrill by blasting a 420 foot home run over the center field fence with two on base, in addition to collecting two singles. And Charley Gehringer made four hits, including two doubles, driving in two runs and scoring three.

Reiser Helps Out.

Pete Reiser, Manager Leo Durocher's understudy at shortstop, was the Dodger who helped give the crowd a show. He hit one of Archie McCain's pitches to the top of the right field wall, nearly 400 feet distant, in the ninth, but the hit was limited to a double.

The Tigers made half their runs off Ira Hutchinson in the first five innings and added the remainder in the final three innings off Forrest Cressnell. George Coffman, the Tigers' starting hurler, yielded only seven hits in seven innings. McKain, who succeeded him, escaped in the eighth, but was battered for five hits, including doubles by Reiser and George, which with two errors by Frank Croucher, gave the Dodgers four runs in the ninth. Score:

Brooklyn [N.]	010	001	004—	6	13	3
Detroit [A.]	013	033	40*—14	16	3

Batteries — Hutchinson, Pressnell and Phelps, George; Coffman, McKain and Tebbetts.

CARDS BEAT FARM NINES.

Gastonia, N. C., April 7.—(AP)—Pounding out 21 hits, including homers by Joe Medwick and Enos Slaughter, the St. Louis Cardinals won a 17 to 9 victory today over the combined forces of Asheville of the Piedmont league and Gastonia of the Carolina league, both Cardinal farm clubs.

Lon Warneke was not effective and withdrew after seven innings, Bill McGee finishing for the Cardinals. Score:

St. Louis [N.]	160	116	110—	17	21	1
Gastonia [T. H. L.]	000	600	030—	9	11	2

Batteries—Warneke, McGee and Owen; Gardner, Baumgardner and Dobbs.

PHILS BLANK LOOKOUTS.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 7.—(AP)—Behind the three hit pitching of Claude Passeau and Jim Poindexter the Phillies today shut out the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern association, 5 to 0. Passeau worked the first five innings, yielding only two doubles. Poindexter took over in the sixth and gave up only a single in four innings. Poindexter also drove in two runs by singling with the bases full in the seventh. Score:

Philadelphia [N.]	100	000	301—	5	8	1
Chattanooga [SA.]	000	000	000—	0	3	1

Batteries—Passeau, Poindexter and Millies; Lucas, Lenahan, Bolen and Galvin.

MEMPHIS BEATS A'S.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—(AP)—Batting around in the eighth inning to score four runs, the Memphis Chicks of the Southern association came from behind today to beat the Athletics, 6 to 3. Bud Thomas, who pitched the entire game for the Athletics, was effective until the eighth when the Chicks bunched five hits, aided by a wild pitch and a wild throw to first, to win. Score:

Philadelphia [A.]	010	001	100—	3	10	2
Memphis [S. A.]	000	020	04*—	8	11	0

Batteries—Thomas and Hayes; Besse, Doyle and Epps.

GIANTS' SQUAD SPLITS.

Baton Rouge, La., April 7.—(AP)—The New York Giants split into two squads tonight for their first exhibition games since Sunday. The first team will face the Pittsburgh Pirates here tomorrow, but will play without Zeke Bonura, George Myatt and several leading pitchers who traveled with a second section for a game in Memphis, Tenn.

Harry Gumbert and Cy Blanton are slated for opposing pitching assignments in the only game the Giants will play against a National league club before the season opens.

BEES, 8; SENATORS, 4.

Orlando, Fla., April 7.—(AP)—The Boston Nationals set upon Washington's new pitcher from Venezuela, Alexander Carasquel, today for five runs to break a tie and win a thirteen inning exhibition game, 8 to 4. Jim Turner, starting for the Bees, held Washington scoreless for six innings. Score:

YANKS DROP TULSA.

Tulsa, Okla., April 7.—(AP)—The New York Yankees, idle for two days because of cold and snow, turned out in a 45 degree temperature today and beat the Tulsa Oilers, 5 to 2, for their seventh consecutive exhibition triumph. Joe Gallagher and Buddy Rosar, rookie candidates, hit home runs and Oral Hildebrand, also a newcomer but a veteran American leaguer, pitched one hit ball for five innings. Score:

PLAY TO BEGIN IN STATE Y. M. C. A. BADMINTON MEET

Forty-nine matches will be played today in the state Y. M. C. A. badminton tourney in the Irving Park Y, 4251 Irving Park road, according to Steve Barak, director of the tournament. Only the preliminary rounds will be played. Semi-finals and finals are scheduled for next Saturday.

Starting at 3 o'clock this afternoon three courses will be used for play in the men's and women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles, with largest entry list in the men's singles division where twenty-five matches will be required to decide the champion. Frank Sisulak, city champion, is seeded with E. M. Rettig and Seymour Peskind as favorites in the men's class.

Mary Lou Ford, national women's champion, is expected to win in her class. She will get some competition from Arlene Parker of Evanston. Ten associations are represented in the entry list.

Pirates Beat Sox, 16-14, It Is Estimated

as well as the Pirates were conspiring against him. Vaughan singled to right and went to third on Suhr's two bagger into the crowd at the far end of the left field foul line. Young hoisted a tall fly in front of the plate and Kuhel and Silvestri permitted it to drop for a single, filling the bases. McNair then took an infield fly on which Handley was out automatically but neglected to hold the ball, Vaughan scoring from third on the error. Mueller then singled to left and Suhr scored.

Scores on Error.

The Pirates handed a bargain run back in the fourth. Kuhel singled to center and loped to third on McNair's single to left. Silvestri filed to left and Rizzo dropped the ball, Kuhel scoring on the error. This put the Sox two runs ahead but happenings in the Pirates' half of the inning developed a 5 to 5 tie. The happenings were homers over the center field barrier by Waner and Vaughan.

The Sox got the maximum benefit from four hits in the fifth. Walker led off by boosting one of Tobin's pitches over the left field fence. Appling doubled against the same barrier. Kreevich died on strikes, but Kuhel scratched a single past Young, Appling strolling to third. McNair then hit his sixth homer of the spring trip, a blow good for three more runs and a 9 to 5 Sox lead. Then the National leaguers hung up three in their half on Young's homer, Mueller's single, and a homer by Tobin.

Error Starts a Rally.

Vaughan made a two base error on Owen's bounder to start the sixth and the Sox used this as a chance to pad their total with four runs. Steinbacher was thrown out and a double by Walker scored Owen. Appling's two bagger sent Walker home. Kreevich also doubled and Appling scored. After Kuhel had walked McNair singled and Kreevich scored, but Kuhel was nailed trying to reach third on the hit.

Whitehead did pretty well in the sixth, but not so good in the seventh, as indicated by the fact that eight Pirates scored before an out was recorded. It happened this way: Young and Handley singled and rode home on Mueller's homer. Clemenson and Waner singled and the former was forced to score when Manush and Rizzo walked. Vaughan cleaned up the full house by belting his second homer over the centerfield boards. Whitehead then disposed of the next three batters.

Frasier Quits Hospital.

Manager James Dykes of the Sox received word this morning that Vic Frasier, who suffered a slight skull fracture when hit on the back of the head by a thrown ball in Los Angeles March 22, had been released from the Huntington Memorial hospital, Pasadena, Cal., and would start for Chicago next Monday. His rapid recovery indicates that he may be able to reappear on the mound in three weeks.

The Sox left by special train tonight for New Orleans, where they meet the Cleveland Indians tomorrow. John Rigney and Clint Brown will pitch.

NOTRE DAME TO MEET ILLINI IN OPENER TODAY

Champaign, Ill., April 7.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's baseball team will play its first game of the season against Illinois here tomorrow afternoon. The Irish have chosen Pitcher Norvall Hunthausen of St. Louis, Mo., to oppose the Illini.

If Hunthausen fails to stop Illinois' hitters Coach Jake Kline probably will send Mike Mandjiak, Kalamazoo, Mich., southpaw, to the mound. Mandjiak last year pitched a no hit game against Chicago, yielding only one walk and striking out seventeen.

Wheaton Nine to Open Season Against Chicago

Wheaton college baseball team opens its home season this afternoon in a game with the University of Chicago on the college field. Two previous games scheduled with Northwestern university and De Kalb Teachers were postponed because of bad weather.

William H. Caldwell, 74 year old mayor of Wheaton, will pitch the first ball to J. Oliver Buswell Jr., president of the college.

With a full schedule of eighteen games, the Wheaton squad is in need of more pitchers. Capt. Chuck Ellis is the only veteran available, but several of his replacements are showing improvement.

Yankees Have Woes, Too; Now It's Gomez's Arm

Tulsa, Okla., April 7.—[Special.]—Lefty Gomez's sore arm today became a source of deep concern to the New York Yankees. Facing their final week of training, the world champions were confronted with the fact that muscular irritations had settled deep in Gomez's left shoulder and it was doubtful if he would be in shape for the first week of the American league race.

Vernon Gomez.

The trouble came upon him after he had returned from a flying visit to his ailing wife in New York. Four days in chill Manhattan may have brought on a cold in his arm. In any event he is having pains and is two or three weeks behind in his preparation for a season in which he hopes to win twenty games.

That all was not well with Gomez was suspected last Sunday when the Houston Texas leaguers shoved him around in four innings for six hits and two runs. He was wild and did not appear willing to pitch. Now it develops that this effort aggravated the injury.

Gomez's three inning hitless and runless debut against the Reds was impressive, but in seventeen innings since then he has struck out only six men, yielded twenty-two hits, issued nine bases on balls, and been scored on six times.

Reds Forget Fiasco; Beat Red Sox, 7-2

Lexington, N. C., April 7.—[Special.]—The Cincinnati Reds today chalked up another victory over their barnstorming mates, the Boston Red Sox. The Reds forgot their freak game with the American leaguers in Florence, S. C., yesterday, settled down to real baseball, and triumphed, 7 to 2.

The National leaguers picked up two runs in the second inning, added two in the third, one more in the fourth, and clinched the victory with another pair of runs in the eighth. The Red Sox scored their only runs off Lloyd Moore in the second.

Moore left at the end of the sixth inning. He was replaced by Ray Davis, who also pitched effectively. The American leaguers obtained only four hits.

Woodrow Rich, rookie pitcher from Little Rock, Ark., started on the mound for the Red Sox, but was removed in the fourth. Manager Joe Cronin sent Elden Auker, veteran right hander, into the game and he remained until the finish. Score:

Cincinnati	022	100	02*—7	12	2

Batteries—Auker and De Sautels; Moore, Davis and Wilson, Hershberger.

HARDER TO PITCH OPENER.

New Orleans, La., April 7.—(AP)—Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians named the veteran Mel Harder today as hurler in the Tribe's opening game at St. Louis April 18. Bob Feller's first performance will come three days later when the Indians open in Cleveland against the Detroit Tigers, Vitt said.

METZ AND BULLA TIE FOR LEAD IN ASHEVILLE GOLF

Asheville, N. C., April 7.—(AP)—Dick Metz and John Bulla of Chicago cracked par by two strokes today to tie for the first round lead in the $5,000 Land of the Sky open tournament that winds up the winter golf campaign.

Metz and Bulla played the Asheville Country club course in 70 shots to take a stroke lead over four professionals as the field turned to a second 18-hole round to be played on the Beaver Lake layout.

Two favorites, National Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, who has won his last two starts, and Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., practically shot themselves out of the running for the top prize of $1,200 with first round scores of 76 and 77, respectively. Leading scores:

Cleveland to Face Artillery Team Tonight

The Cleveland Riding club polo team will be led by Hank Evinger in its battle with the 122d Field Artillery team in the 124th Regiment armory tonight. Evinger made a hit with Chicago fans in his appearances last season. H. W. Schaumann and Earl Stone will complete the Cleveland lineup for the game, which features a double-header.

In the opening match of the evening the Fort Sheridan Juniors will face the Ranchers at 8:30 o'clock.

Lieuts. Cliff Harrison, Frank Fritz, and Carl Johnson will ride for the 122d Artillery against Cleveland. Lieuts. Harrison and Johnson have played on every 122d team in the last seven years. Lieut. Fritz, an alternate last season, has earned a regular starting berth this year.

Ramblers Hit by Injuries.

Tonight's first game represents a shift in pairings which originally called for the Ramblers to meet the Fort Sheridan seniors. Weakened by injuries, the Ramblers found themselves unable to get together a starting lineup from their roster of players.

A victory for Fort Sheridan, defending champion in the Metropolitan Polo league's 4 to 6 goal division, would assure the army team of its second title in two years. Fort Sheridan will use the same team that captured the cup in 1938, with Capt. Cary B. Hutchinson, high point man of the league, Maj. Paul H. Morris, and Capt. Harry S. Jernigan lining up in the order named.

RESUME TITLE PLAY

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—National championship indoor polo play will continue with three more East-West matches in Squadron A armory tomorrow night. Victory in any one of these games for the winners of last Wednesday night might end that division of play and crown a 1939 title holder.

Blue Hill farm of Philadelphia, eastern and defending national Sherman cup champion, will seek its second straight victory over Chicago's 124th Field artillery Sherman cup team. Pegasus rides against the 124th artillery juniors in another effort to make it two straight.

The program will close with the senior championship game. Here, another 124th trio, has the opportunity of being the only western representative to win the laurels in this branch of the tournament since its start.

EIGHT CHAIRMEN RE-APPOINTED TO U. S. G. A. BOARD

New York, April 7.—(AP)—Eight chairmen were continued in office for another term today as Archie M. Reid, president of the United States Golf association, announced the makeup of subcommittees for 1939.

The newcomers are Mrs. L. W. Robey of Philadelphia, who replaces Mrs. H. D. Raymond of Evanston, Ill., as head of the women's committee; Charles V. Rainwater of Pensacola, Fla., who replaces R. Arthur Wood of Chicago, retired, as head of the public links committee; W. F. Nicholson of Denver, succeeding Perry E. Hall of Bridgeport, Pa., as sectional affairs chairman, and Jess W. Sweetser of New York, successor to Paul Leslie of Louisiana state as intercollegiate affairs chairman.

Those remaining in office are:

Rules of golf, Morton G. Bogue, New York; championship, Harold W. Pierce, Boston; amateur status and conduct, Edward L. Cheyney, Cleveland; membership, Frank M. Hardt, Philadelphia; implements and ball, George W. Blossom Jr., Chicago; international relations, J. Frederic Byers, Pittsburgh; green section, Frank M. Hardt, Philadelphia; museum, George W. Blossom Jr., Chicago.

4 'Y' VOLLEYBALL TEAMS COMPETE FOR STATE TITLE

Four teams will compete in the state Y. M. C. A. volleyball tournament in the Evanston Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this afternoon and tonight. In addition to the host team, North Avenue-Larrabee, Division Street, and Lawson, all of Chicago, will compete. North Avenue-Larrabee will open competition with the lineup which won the national championship in 1937.

escaped unharmed as Grace flied to Gleeson.

Lillard Finally Scored On.

After Cavarretta and Garbark had supplied infield outs in the fifth, Lillard interrupted the 13 putout Cub parade by drawing a pass. Then Hack fanned. McQuinn opened the Brown fifth with a single to right, but Clift popped to Hack and Bell hit into a double play.

In the sixth Newsom ended his day's work by making Herman line to Berardino, then whiffing Gleeson and Leiber. The Browns ended Lillard's string of shutout innings after two were out in the sixth. Berardino fanned, but Gryska singled and reached second when Lillard overthrew first trying to catch him napping. Sullivan batted for Glenn and was thrown out by Lillard. Mazzera batted for Newsom and walked. Lillard got two strikes past Almada, then Mel singled over second, Gryska scoring. Grace popped to Messner.

Browns Tie Score.

Bill Cox, former White Sox, took over the Brownie pitching in the seventh. Marty flied to Grace, but Cavarretta singled to left for the second Cub hit of the afternoon and took second on a wild pitch. Garbark fanned and Mesner tapped to Gryska.

McQuinn opened the Brown seventh with a double to left and Clift flied to Gleeson. Bell singled to left, scoring McQuinn with the tying run. Berardino hit into the third Cub double play.

Then the blighted windup.

ALDERMEN GET BUSY, ALSO INTO FIRST WRANGLE

Rules Body Parceling Out Chairmanships.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

French Lick Springs, Ind., April 7. —[Special.]—The committee on committees of Chicago's new city council arriving here this morning lost no time in getting down to work. Also the members lost no time in getting into their first wrangle. The dispute arose over appointments to the powerful finance committee.

Not since the Democratic party took over the city hall in 1931 has this committee, chosen after every election to organize the council's working committees for the next four years, had a bigger job.

In 1931 the city's legislative machinery received an almost complete overhauling. This year the aldermen must fill six chairmanships, seven vice chairmanships and a number of other coveted posts on important committees, due largely to elimination of members in the recent election. They expect to complete work within the next four days so the report of all committee assignments can be submitted to the council at the inauguration meeting Wednesday evening.

Ald. Arvey Arrives Early.

The members of the rules committee who were chosen at a council caucus earlier this week are: Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman; Arthur C. Lindell [9th], James J. McDermott [14th], Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d], and James R. Quinn [50th].

Ald. Arvey, who arrived here a day ahead of time, called his colleagues into their first session after lunch.

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] was renamed president pro tem. of the council and automatically became a member of all the council committees. Then the committee chairmen who survived the election were renamed to their old posts pending final agreements on the vacant chairmanships.

Nominations then were made for the chairmanships with eight or ten names being submitted for each post. The committee agreed that, all other things being equal, the posts will be filled according to seniority of the respective candidates.

Finance Post in Demand.

Finance committee posts are a usual cause of disputes in the organizing committee. Each member of the committee on committees represents ten wards and he feels duty bound to protect the interests of his section of the city.

This year there are eight vacancies in the finance committee's membership of 25. In the sectional scramble for these eight vacancies eighteen nominations were presented today.

Ald. Arvey proposed to settle the question by leaving that group at its present reduced membership of seventeen. He pointed out that in some respects twenty-five members make an unwieldy committee with a few aldermen doing most of the work.

Other aldermen complained, however, that some sections of the city would have inadequate representation unless it is reorganized. For example, the south side lost three of its four members in the aldermanic elections.

The committee was deadlocked on Arvey's proposal tonight. A decision probably will be reached tomorrow.

3 POLICE SQUADS SWOOP DOWN ON A LITTLE PARTY

Three squads of policemen responded yesterday afternoon when Carl Corradina reported he heard burglars inside his home at 1711 Erie street. They surrounded the house. They drew their pistols.

"Careful, men," said the police leader, Peter Ward. "They may be desperate."

Then Ward and Policeman Frank Catanese led the way into the front and rear doors. They found the burglars in the kitchen. All were replete with jam and cheese and eggs and milk taken from the Corradina pantry, and highly painted with Mrs. Corradina's rouge. The names: Virginia Wallace, 8 years old, and her brother, John, 4, and Marie Fumo, 7, all of 1740 Ohio street. John was fast asleep on the floor.

"We just came in to play," said Virginia to the pistol toting policemen, "and we had a real nice time."

FASHION'S WHIMS BOOM CHICAGO'S EASTER TRADE

The whims of fashion have been credited by State street merchants with the increase in Easter business this year. Sales have jumped 10 per cent over last year, David Mayer Jr., president of the State street council, said yesterday. Merchants have enlarged their alterations and delivery departments, and all services have been geared up to a peak usually reached only during the Christmas season.

"Stores have been crowded all week," Mayer said, "and we think that much of the improved business results from drastic changes in styles. The new fashions are so different people won't feel right this Easter in last spring's clothes."

JAPAN SHAKES UP CABINET; KOISO OVERSEAS CHIEF

TOKIO, April 7.—(AP)—Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, regarded as one of Japan's leading generals, entered the cabinet today as overseas minister. He is a strong rightist, and until recently was commander of a Corean garrison. Koiso relieved Yoshiaki Hatta, who continued as commerce minister. Harumichi Tanabe, chief secretary of the cabinet, took the communications ministry, relieving Suehiko Shiono of one of two portfolios. Shiono continued as minister of justice.

DANIEL GLASSER, ASSISTANT U. S. ATTORNEY, QUITS

Daniel D. Glasser, assistant United States district attorney for the past four years, yesterday announced his resignation, effective May 1. Six other assistants are expected to resign soon, in conformity with the announcement by District Attorney William J. Campbell that there will be numerous changes in his office. The district attorney announced his plans for the changes shortly after he was appointed in February.

Daniel D. Glasser.

Glasser said he will enter the private practice of law in offices at 135 South La Salle street. Campbell praised his work highly. "Mr. Glasser has the best record of convictions of any one in this office and his conviction record in alcohol cases is the best in the entire country," he said. "Since I have been in office, Mr. Glasser has prosecuted ninety-nine cases and lost only one. He hasn't lost a jury case in three and a half years."

MUSTACHE RACE IS ON AT U. OF C.; 2 WEEKS TO GROW

Hoping for a sweeping set of handlebars, eighty University of Chicago seniors were off in a spray of shaving lather yesterday in the annual Blackfriars mustache race.

Elmer [Brad] Bradford was the official starter. He shaved the upper lip of each student so that they'd all start even. Miss Jean MacKenzie and Miss Doris Gentzler were official observers. The winner will be announced April 21 and awarded a silver cup for the most luxurious mustache.

The Blackfriars, student actors, said they were surprised as anything to discover that the contest will end the day their annual show opens.

YANKEE SKIPPER SAILS JUNK FROM SHANGHAI ON 70 DAY TRIP TO U. S.

SHANGHAI, April 7.—(AP)—A 32-ton Chinese junk, the Taiping, owned by Frank Mortimer, a Philadelphia and Shanghai business man, sailed today for San Francisco.

The 52-foot craft is expected to reach the Golden Gate exposition at San Francisco within 70 days. Later it will go to New York and perhaps to Europe.

The boat has a crew of seven, including a one-time Yangtze river skipper, Capt. John Anderson of New York City, and Mrs. Anderson.

The Taiping carried an auxiliary engine, provisions for five months, and 600 gallons of water.

CHARLTON BECK'S WIFE PLUNGES TO DEATH AT HOME

Mrs. Lenice Beck, 59 years old, wife of Charlton T. Beck, secretary of the Alumni council of the University of Chicago, plunged to her death yesterday from a window in her home on the thirteenth floor of 5805 Dorchester avenue.

Beck told police his wife had been suffering from a nervous breakdown and arthritis and was to have been taken to Billings hospital today. She was a patient there for several weeks recently.

Mrs. Beck's sister, Mrs. Lorraine Joy of Stockton, Cal., and a nurse were attending her, but both left her room for a few minutes yesterday morning. When they returned, Mrs. Beck had dissappeared. Her body was found in a driveway in the rear of the building. An inquest will be held today.

Leaps Into Chicago River; Clambers Into Rescue Boat

Mitchell Todd, 39 years old, an unemployed bartender, was rescued from the river yesterday after he had leaped from the Wabash avenue bridge. He clambered willingly into a boat rowed out to him by the bridgetenders and was taken to County hospital by the Chicago Avenue police.

G. O. P. BEGINS PICKING JUDGES FOR JUNE 5 RACE

The Republican judicial committee of eleven began its slate making yesterday with the objective of getting a full Republican ticket in the field for the election of Superior and Circuit court judges on June 5. The first task was to sound out the eight sitting Republican Circuit court judges whose terms expire. They were asked on which ticket they would choose to run if coalition is offered by the Democrats. Several judges who were questioned said they had made no decisions and were awaiting developments. The Democratic slate making committee has not been appointed. It is expected to be ready for activity next week.

MAYOR PREDICTS EARLY START ON SO. SIDE HOUSING

Mayor Kelly told a legislative committee yesterday he believed the South Side Gardens, a 1,660 unit federal housing project, would be under construction early in July.

The mayor appeared as a witness before the house committee headed by Representative Charles J. Jenkins [R., Chicago], which is investigating delay in constructing the project. South Side Gardens will be located in the territory bounded by 37th street and Pershing road, from South Park way to Cottage Grove avenue. It will cost $10,000,000.

Kelly told the committee that far from opposing the project—an accusation made in the election campaign—he was principally responsible for it, since he saved the act authorizing it from defeat in the 1937 legislative session.

Condemnation of the land was completed on March 23 and plans for the project will be finished in June, architects and housing officials at the hearing said.

MOVIE PEOPLE LEAD NATION IN LARGE SALARIES

Louis B. Mayer Paid $1,296,503 in 1937.

Movie actors, actresses, and producers maintained their position as the country's top-ranking salaried employés during 1937, it was disclosed yesterday in Washington, D. C., as the salary lists were opened for public inspection.

Again, as a group, they outranked corporation executives and bankers, as they did in the recent years in which this information has been compiled by the treasury department and made public by the ways and means committee of the house of representatives.

Louis B. Mayer paid $1,296,503 by two companies in 1937.

The committee sent to the capitol a 1,132 page report listing nearly 50,000 persons who were paid $15,000 or more by corporations during 1937. Congress has revised the law requiring the report, and next year's list will be limited to salaries of $75,000 and up.

Lists Salaries of $50,000 and More.

The list presented elsewhere in this section was compiled during the limited time that the records were available to the public. The tabulation is confined to salaries of $50,000 or more in most cases. Certain well known movie persons in lower income brackets, however, are included. The list for Illinois and nearby states is as complete as the limited time for compilation permitted. Some omissions occurred.

Aside from the movie industry, salaries paid by steel, automobile, tobacco, and business machine corporations were high on the list. The compilation listed only salaries. The names of some prominent business men who receive their principal income in the form of dividends were not shown.

Henry Ford Not Listed.

Henry Ford, one of the wealthiest men in the country, was not listed. Edsel Ford, his son, received $146,056 as president of the Ford Motor company.

Louis B. Mayer, film producer, was the country's highest paid executive in 1937, according to the compilation. He received $1,161,753 as production executive of Loew's, Inc., and an additional $134,750 as vice president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer corporation.

Second place on the list was held by J. Robert Rubin with $651,123 as president of Loew's. William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, ranked third with a salary of $500,000 from Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc. Another official of Loew's, N. M. Schenck, president, held fourth position with a salary of $489,602.

Sixty-three Get $200,000 Up.

Sixty-three salaries of $200,000 or more were listed, and the movie industry paid forty of these. Greta Garbo of the films was paid $472,499. Maj. Edward Bowes received $427,817 for his radio activities. Thomas J. Watson was the highest paid industrialist with a salary of $419,398 from the International Business Machines corporation, of which he is president.

Other large amounts were paid to George W. Hill, who received $380,976 as president of the American Tobacco company; Eugene G. Grace, $394,586 as president of the Bethlehem Steel company; George W. Mason, $233,957 as president of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation; Myron C. Taylor, $167,662 as chairman of the United States Steel corporation, and Walter C. Chrysler, $189,136 as chairman of the Chrysler corporation.

One Banker Gets $175,000

Bankers, as a group, did not reach the salary range of movie stars and industrial executives. Winthrop W. Aldrich received $175,000 as chairman of the Chase National Bank of New York, ranking as the highest paid banker. Walter J. Cummings got $100,000 as chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. Other banks salaries reported were in the main comparatively low.

The listed salaries do not represent the net return to the individuals, as they are subject to federal income taxes and in many cases state income taxes. [Elsewhere in this issue are shown the tax percentages applying in the higher income brackets.]

Markets Open in U. S. Today; Closed Abroad

American security markets will be open today, but European exchanges will continue to be closed. The New York Stock exchange, the New York Curb exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade, the Chicago Stock exchange and the Chicago Mercantile exchange will be open. The New York and New Orleans cotton markets will be closed. The London Stock exchange and Paris Bourse will be closed today, tomorrow and Easter Monday.

SALARIES OF $50,000 AND MORE PAID IN 1937

Following is a partial list of large salaries paid by corporations in 1937 made public yesterday in Washington, D. C., by the house ways and means committee. For the most part the list is limited to salaries of $50,000 or more, but in the case of certain motion picture companies smaller amounts are shown, with individuals receiving salaries from one or more companies. The list is classified by states with corporations appearing in alphabetical order in each section. Salaries of motion picture companies are grouped separately.

TAXES ON INCOME TAKE MIGHTY BITE OUT OF SALARIES

Levies on 1937 Pay Run Up to About 70 Pct.

Persons whose 1937 salaries were reported by the treasury department to congress paid federal income taxes ranging from 6.16 per cent of net income to close to 70 per cent, according to income tax tables.

The 1937 salary report to congress starts with persons whose salaries were $15,000 annually. The highest salary reported was $1,161,753 paid to Louis B. Mayer, production director of Loew's, Inc., a moving picture company. He also received $134,750 from another company.

A married individual receiving $15,000 a year, allowing for personal exemption and earned income and not including other charges or credits, would pay an income tax of $924, or 6.16 per cent of net income.

17.7 Per Cent on $50,000.

The married individual getting $50,000 a year would pay a tax of $8,869, or 17.7 per cent of net income. The amount of income tax goes up progressively as the amount of salary increases.

When the salary reaches $1,000,000 the tax collector's bite for a married man is $679,044, or 67.9 per cent of the total salary, leaving about $320,000. Mayer, if he took no losses and had no other income, would probably retain just under $350,000 of his $1,161,753 salary, the government profiting by more than $800,000.

The list named sixty-three persons who received $200,000 or more. Those receiving salaries of $200,000 had to pay close to 48 per cent of it to the government, and those getting more than $250,000 had to pay more than half of it to the collector.

Taxes on Various Salaries.

The following table gives tax rates applicable for individuals getting $50,000 or more with a married person's exemption of $2,500:

Net income.	Total federal tax.	Per cent net inc. paid in federal tax.
$ 50,000	$ 8,869	17.7
74,000	18,309	24.7
100,000	32,469	32.5
250,000	128,294	51.3
300,000	162,244	54.1
500,000	304,144	60.8
750,000	489,094	65.2
1,000,000	679,044	67.9

The foregoing calculations do not take into account income taxes collected by states. New York levies an income tax ranging from 2 per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income [after exemptions] to 7 per cent of all taxable income in excess of $9,000. Wisconsin collects 1 per cent on the first $1,000, the rate increasing to 7 per cent on all above $12,000.

U. S. MEDIATOR INTERVENES IN COAL DEADLOCK

New York, April 7.—(AP)—A federal mediator, James F. Dewey of the labor department, intervened today in deadlocked negotiations between miners and bituminous coal operators whose failure to agree on a new labor contract has kept 338,000 men idle since Monday.

He asked, and was granted, permission to enter the conference of a subcommittee of representatives of the United Mines Workers [C. I. O.] and Appalachian area operators. He explained he had acted after consultation with persons in Washington whom he declined to identify.

The prospect of any immediate agreement seemed remote. John L. Lewis, head of the miners and of the C. I. O. and chief union negotiator, was not on hand for the discussions. He went to Washington yesterday. At 5 p. m. the conferees adjourned, without comment, until 10 a. m. [eastern time] tomorrow.

OIL COMPANIES FAVOR CONTROL OF PRODUCTION

Salem, Ill., April 7.—(AP)—Officials of oil companies holding leases on 2,000,000 acres of southern Illinois petroleum properties generally approved production control in testimony given today before a joint legislative committee.

Proration laws were advocated "in the best interests of the state and the industry," by William Watkins of Mattoon, Carter Oil company division superintendent. Several major company representatives suggested laws allowing only one well to each 10 acres in sand production areas and one well to each 20 acres in limestone production areas.

Tomorrow, independent operators and their representatives, who usually oppose proration in any form, will tell the legislative committee what they think is needed in the way of oil field law.

DAY by DAY on the FARM — BOB BECKER

Signs of Spring.

THE first wild flowers of spring, pushing their way through dead oak leaves along the bank of a small stream, were found early in the week on the Tribune's Du Page county farm. They were hepaticas, not in full flower, but opened enough to win all laurels as leaders of the spring wild flower parade.

In northern Illinois only the plebeian and odoriferous skunk cabbage can compete with the hepatica as the first wild flower of spring. This plant with the large leaves does not grow on the Du Page county farm, so each year the appearance of the dainty hepaticas inaugurates the spring flower season. The ones found early in the week were in a wood lot near the center of the farm. About 15 or 20 flowers were found on a slope at the edge of a creek. Some were pure white, others were in pastel shades of pink and lavender.

Trees Are in Bloom.

April's temperatures may vary greatly, especially during the early part of the month. There may be frosty nights. But the hepatica, always eager to blossom, is well equipped to withstand cold weather.

There were other signs of spring in the woods this week. The russet blossoms of the slippery elm trees were out; silver maple and white maple trees are in bloom; the catkins of trembling aspen and hazel have made their 1939 appearance, and wild onion shoots are three inches above the ground. If we have fairly warm weather for the next few days we should see the first spring beauties next week, for a number of these flowers are in the bud stage. In a few weeks one whole area of the east woods will be carpeted with thousands of spring beauties which flower there each season. The honey bees, representatives of swarms that live in trees on the farm, were busy this week.

Turkey's Nesting Troubles.

The advance of spring also is evident around the barnyard where the lambs are playing. Just one turkey hen has had trouble due to her pronounced case of spring fever. This hen, all excited about the spring weather, has been using a nest made by the flockmaster in the sheep barn. The nest happens to be in a feed rack, and the sheep don't respect the hen's nesting plans at all. They started pulling the clean straw out from under the nest. When the hen's foundation dropped out the nest became lopsided and the eggs rolled out. The flockmaster noticed this situation and rescued her eggs. Then he rebuilt the nest, so she is laying eggs as usual in a nest with a new foundation.

Wild Geese Elusive.

It is possible to get close to the nesting barnyard fowls, but track of the wild geese that are on nests can only be kept by means of high power binoculars. Now that these big birds are incubating eggs everybody is careful not to disturb them. When we were on the farm this week we stood well back from the edge of the pond, then swept the far edge of the pond with our binoculars to see if we could find several of the goose nests.

Even though we were well back from the nesting zone the old honkers saw us and broke out into a loud chorus to warn all of them of our approach. By looking closely we could see several of the big birds sitting on their nests, which were quite close to the water.

REPEAL OF LAWS THAT SET TRADE BARRIERS URGED

Parley Offers Way to End State Strife.

Repeal of state laws that have set up domestic trade walls and fomented interstate trade warfare was proposed yesterday by the National Conference on Interstate Trade Barriers. The conference in its closing session of a three day meeting at the Stevens hotel urged the abandonment of retaliatory legislation, the adoption of uniform state laws affecting interstate commerce, and the making of reciprocal agreements between states to end barriers to the free flow of goods.

Another recommendation by the conference was that the Council of State Governments be used as the conciliatory agency for settling disputes between states engaged in or approaching trade warfare. The use of interstate compacts as a means to break down the artificial fences was suggested by the conference.

Each State Represented.

The Council of State Governments is composed of fifteen representatives from each state, including members of legislatures and appointees by state governors.

Yesterday's proposals were made by the conference in a series of resolutions adopted after reports by special committees on taxation, liquor control, agriculture, and commerce and industry. Representatives from 44 states were members of the various committees.

The taxation committee proposed:

That out-of-state truckers be taxed at no higher rate for the use of public highways than truckers operating within the state.

That taxation to prevent out-of-state competition in agricultural products be discouraged.

That of state laws which provide lower taxes or give subsidies for liquors made from home state products be repealed.

Kind of Laws Opposed.

Repeal of state laws giving preference to state products for public projects was proposed by the committee on commerce and industry. Specifically, it opposed laws that:

1. Give preference to state materials in all contracts for state public works.

2. Give preference for state products for use in state institutions.

3. Favor state labor on all state contract work.

4. Give preference to local printers on state printing.

"We are opposed to the giving of preferential treatment by legislative enactment," the committee said, "to local materials, products, and printing, on the general premise that this type of preference has resulted in building up local monopolies, higher costs, unfriendly feelings, and that its adoption in the past definitly promoted retaliatory legislation. We favor competition as a means of obtaining the best returns for the outlays made by the states in their purchases—providing, of course, that quality and specifications are equal."

The agriculture committee which studied oleomargarine taxes enacted by dairy states proposed "that, since margarine taxes and license fees are in many cases of such unwaranted use of the taxing and licensing power, wise public policy dictates their reconsideration."

Investors' Guide

STETSON, HAT MAKER.

Investors' Guide: What is the matter with John B. Stetson company, which makes Stetson hats? It skipped its preferred dividend more than a year ago and is still skipping them. Is the hat business so poor? Has the company branched out with any new lines? Is it losing money? — Mrs. T. H. K.

Answer: Stetson, after showing moderate profits from 1934 through 1937, slipped into the red last year with a net loss of $414,000. Sales fell off 15 per cent to $7,681,000.

Men's felt hats were Stetson's only product until 1929, when it decided to make also straw hats, caps, silk, and opera hats. Sport and travel hats for women were added in 1930.

After losses totaling more than $1,750,000 from 1931 through 1933, a new division was set up to make lower priced lines to compete with the many hat makers that were getting the "depression buyer's" business. Net income amounted to $342,000 in 1934, climbed to $485,000 in 1936, but slipped to $94,500 in 1937.

When business turned worse early in 1938, the preferred dividend was passed. Both the preferred and common stocks are speculative.

ALLOWING FOR EASTER.

Investors' Guide: I should think it would be very confusing for business analysts and business forecasters to have Easter come at different times during the year. Especially, because it may be in one of two different months, and especially, too, because shoppers do a lot of buying just before Easter, which may be in March or in April. How would you compare retail business for April of this year, which includes Easter, with business for April, 1937. In 1937, Easter was in March?—B. T.

Answer: Easter's jumping back and forth between March and April does cause business analysts quite a little misery. They do, however, make "seasonal adjustments" in their figures to allow for the change.

For example, the federal reserve board's index of department store sales provides for certain seasonal adjustment figures for March and April when Easter comes in March and different adjustments if Easter falls in April. Theoretically, these adjustments make comparisons feasible for each month with the same month in other years.

Many experts in the retail field, however, find that the best basis for comparison is to add the sales for March and April together, making a two month period that includes Easter in any year. Then the two month comparisons can be made without going in for seasonal adjustments.
